City Acts to Help Needy Families.

Tension in dealing with compulsory eviction disorders in the Negro district was decided on yesterday by the authorities who, however, insisted that every humane consideration be given the hundreds of destitute families. The promise of aid from charitable organizations also was received.

The riots of Monday, in which two Negroes were killed and three whites injured, had abated. Although hundreds of Negroes congregated in meetings in Washington park several of which were addressed by communistic speakers, there was no report of the slightest trouble.

100 Police Held in Reserve.

At the Wabash avenue police station 100 policemen were held in reserve all day and a greater number were to be instantly available throughout the night. But assurances were being given by leaders of the colored race that their people were not seeking an encounter either with the police or with any other group. They admitted a need of some kind of relief, however, the leaders said.

Chief Albert Horan of the Municipal court agreed to withhold further writs of eviction warrants pending action to the city of Mayor Cermak, who has been directing the program of preserving the peace from Miami. This action was believed to have forestalled any demonstrations by the poverty stricken Negroes who have succumbed to the suggestions of men paid to spread the Red Russian propaganda.

Plan to Care for Needy.

The evictions may not be stayed indefinitely, it was stated authoritatively, because the courts' orders must be obeyed and they will be resumed soon as soon as plans have been completed to care for evicted families.

"I have some funds at my disposal which may be used for the relief of the needy," Mayor Cermak telephoned. "Please see that no more families are put on the street before I return."

The Rev. Msgr. W. E. Cummings of the Catholic Charities and Miss Florence Kelley of the United Charities have promises at a meeting held yesterday in the office of Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton that their organizations will give temporary shelter and food to homeless families. Sexton said his office was making arrangements to give some financial aid.

Guards on Order in City.

While all agencies announced themselves ready to do their utmost in alleviating conditions, the necessity of dealing firmly with rioters was stressed by Judge Frank M. Padden, acting chief justice of the Municipal court.

"The integrity of the courts must be maintained if law and order are to prevail in our community," Judge Padden declared.

"Any one interfering with the courts' officers in service of writs, or any person inciting such action, is guilty of contempt of court and will be punished accordingly. It is even possible that such persons may be guilty of conspiracy to obstruct justice of more serious crimes, and subject to indictment and prosecution in the criminal courts.

Policy of Municipal Court.

"The law provides that a tenant against whom a judgment is entered shall be evicted five days from the date of the judgment unless he removes his furniture voluntarily. It has always been the policy of the Municipal court to delay as long as possible the causing of extreme hardships and that policy will be continued, but no interference with officers of the court will be tolerated."

That statement was made in connection with a request by Judge Padden for the names of the twenty-one persons arrested Monday night when the rioting started after an eviction at 3559 South Dearborn street. It is possible that contempt proceedings will be instituted against them, he said.

Negro Leaders Meet Officials.

Meanwhile the leaders of the Negro race were meeting with public officials and representatives of the charitable organizations in Mr. Sexton's office. The colored leaders agreed to spread the word to their people that their plight is being viewed with concern and that those in authority are using their utmost in behalf of the poor.

Present at the meeting in Mr. Sexton's office were: Ald. Robert Jackson, colored, who represents the Third

BULLETIN.

AKLAVIK, Northwest Territories, Canada, Aug. 5.—(Wednesday.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed here at 3:05 a. m. Pacific Coast Standard time (6:05 a. m. Chicago daylight time) today, completing a 1,115 mile flight from Baker Lake.

BAKER LAKE, N. W. T. [By Wireless to Churchill], Aug. 4.—(AP)—Beginning a daring 1,115 mile dash across the most treacherous of Canada's bad lands, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off at 6:35 p. m. [Chicago daylight saving time] today for Aklavik.

Contrary to all previous information, it was announced just before the take off that if weather permitted, a single jump would be made to Aklavik.

"However, we may stop at Coppermine," said Col. Lindbergh.

Check Over Their Plane.

Before they left the United States they said they would plot a northerly course direct from here to Aklavik. Later at about the time some Canadian aviators expressed apprehension over the safety of such a route, it was said the Lindberghs would travel in a more southerly direction by way of Hunter Bay, Fort Norman and up the Mackenzie river to Aklavik.

Plane Circles Parting Good-By.

Thus Col. Lindbergh's announcement that they would go by way of Coppermine came as a complete surprise. The Lindberghs will have the benefit of the unusually long period of daylight in this territory during the summer.

The take-off was perfect, especially in view of the fact that the plane was heavily loaded with fuel for the longest jump thus far of the Washington to Tokio flight. The white pontooned plane sped along the water, then rose into the blue sky. It circled a parting "good-by" to the waving Eskimos and whites, and droned away toward the arctic coast.

At Coppermine—should they stop there—they will find a Canadian government radio station, a post of the Royal Canadian mounted police, and a Hudson bay post. There is also an Eskimo settlement and a mission station.

Aklavik on Rim of World.

The metropolis of the arctic, however, is Aklavik, situated at the mouth of the Mackenzie river, on the rim of the world. It is a thriving community with a couple of hospitals and mission schools. Radio communication with Aklavik passes through a series of stations up the Mackenzie river. These are conducted by the Royal Canadian corps of signals.

At his usual speed Col. Lindbergh should be able to lay his plane down at Coppermine—575 miles from Baker lake—before midnight [Chicago time]. But the slow radio communication from Coppermine to Aklavik and thence down the Mackenzie river network may not report the plane's arrival before morning. If the Lindberghs press on nonstop to Aklavik they probably would reach there by about 5 a. m. [Chicago time].

Laughs at "Crash" Report.

The flying colonel enjoyed a good-natured laugh just before the take-off when the radio operator here told him that it had been generally rumored that he was injured in an attempted take-off. The report had been broadcast even before the low wing Lockheed was unmoored and made ready for its dash toward Aklavik.

Before retiring last night the Lindberghs obtained weather information from veteran observers here, and it was on the strength of such forecasts that they delayed their take-off until late today after the head winds in the choppy Baker lake harbor had abated.

Upon their arrival here yesterday at 5 p. m. [Chicago time], three hours and 15 minutes after taking off from Churchill, the Lindberghs were applauded by this trading post's dozen white settlers for their navigating

POLICEMAN JAILS CHAUFFEUR FOR MOE ROSENBERG

Harold Mealing, colored, 27 years old, 1230 Independence boulevard, is chauffeur for Moe Rosenberg, Democratic committeeman for the 24th ward. Last night Mealing parked the Rosenberg car in front of the Hotel Sherman, where Mr. Rosenberg was conferring with Ald. Jacob M. Arvey and Emil Denemark, the city's superintendent of compensation.

A little later Mealing was struck on the head with a pistol butt by Traffic Policeman J. J. Hahn. What happened between the parking and the striking is a little uncertain—versions differ.

According to Hahn, the chauffeur refused to move when it was pointed out to him that he was near a fire plug. Then, Hahn added, Mealing resisted and struck him when he tried to take the car keys. Hahn delivered his blow and took his prisoner to the Central station, where Mealing was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting an officer.

Tom's Public Goes Home in Glad Relief

Tom's operation was a success—thanks to two human and humane friends—and the folks who trade at Haffner's drug store, 1353 Devon avenue, went home after their vigil last night considerably relieved.

Tom is a very large, yellow-streaked and unhandsome cat, but "the darndest he-cat on the north side," in the affectionate words of one of his public. This public is large and some of it is of long standing, for Tom has been the mascot of the store for seven years.

He has thus attained venerability and with it that rare and mellowing sweetness that sometimes gilds old age. The tiniest child's pat was rewarded by an arching back that grew into such a hoop as might draw envy from a younger and more supple cat. The pats came often and from many hands.

Tom Comes Crawling Home.

Early Monday Tom left the store. He was gone all day. A strange performance, thought the clerks, but it was understood when he crawled home at night. Somewhere Tom had broken his lower jaw, or maybe some one broke it for him, and three of his front "gnawing" teeth were ragged stumps.

He could walk but he could not eat, even though he wanted to. Milk trickled from his mouth after he had lapped it, and the whole process was obviously quite painful, as his disconsolate murmurs attested. Most of yesterday he spent curled up in a cool corner by one of the showcases, where he drowsed or lay awake but unmoving and unappreciative of attention. His public was warned of his injury as it approached, and was careful to avoid hurting him.

Medical Aid Is at Hand.

Two staunch members of Tom's public are Dr. Bertram Fitzgerald, a physician with offices over the store, and Dr. William Grabow, a dentist next door at 1354 Devon avenue. This pair had a professional as well as a friendly interest in the ailing one, and along towards evening came the decision to operate.

This meant that Dr. Fitzgerald had to make a hurried trip to a medical supply house for some special sutures with which to bind the broken jaw, if it could be drawn together. Then his office was arranged for the operation.

Downstairs the store force was telling each customer who happened to belong to Tom's public of the impending act, and by the time the doctor and dentist came to fetch the patient a score of men, women, and children were waiting.

Upstairs the physician and the dentist donned their white coats and Tom was placed on the operating table. Dr. Fitzgerald administered the anesthetic—a few drops of ether—and when the patient was quiet, Dr. Grabow, with his colleague's assistance, drew the jaw together.

The broken teeth were extracted and two tiny holes were drilled in the jaw bone. Through these the sutures were threaded so that the break might heal.

Tom was "coming out" while he was being carried downstairs, and in the center of the crowd he was placed gently on the floor. He looked groggy but had enough stamina to carry him to his corner with a wide and wobbling gait, a gallant performance which drew cheers from his public.

WHITE IS LEADING IN GOVERNORSHIP RACE IN MISSISSIPPI

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Hugh White and Dennis Murphree were running ahead on incomplete returns late tonight in the race for governor and lieutenant governor, respectively, in today's Democratic primary.

Complete returns from 178 precincts out of 1,590 gave White 4,660 votes and his nearest opponent, Mike Conner, 3,750. Paul Johnson was third with 2,176, and George T. Mitchell, supported by Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo, was trailing with 1,998.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 4.—A whiff of perfume cost Mrs. Vera Brand, 51 East 74th street, New York City, about $38,000 today. Entering a department store, she stopped for a sniff of the expensive perfume. As she sniffed she placed her hand bag on the counter. A quick fingered purse snatcher did the rest. Her purse contained a platinum bracelet valued at $30,000 and a brooch worth $8,000, as well as $280 in cash.

Bomb in Mail Package? Out Jumps Mexican Bean

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—A girl clerk receiving mail at the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce today heard a clocklike ticking inside one small package. Fearing a bomb, she called police, who soaked the package in water, gingerly took off the wrapping, and carefully pried off the lid of the tin box. Out hopped a Mexican jumping bean.

Acid Throwers Cause Havoc in Cleaning Plant

Three gunmen walked into the plant of the Michigan Cleaners at 1339 West 63d street about 7 o'clock this morning, threatened two employes with death, and with a sprinkling can poured acid over clothing throughout the main floor of the establishment.

Officials of the company said they would be unable to estimate the loss until after an examination of all the clothing, but the police believed it would run into several thousand dollars. The two employes, Harry Osborne and Jesse Nichens, colored, said the vandals brought their acid with them in a jug and emptied it into the sprinkling can which they found in the plant.

The cleaning establishment was the center of labor trouble some time ago in which sluggings of representatives of the concern were reported to the police and a number of arrests were made. For a time a detail of policemen was asigned to guard against disorders at the plant.

Society Girl Slain; 2 Are Shot by Captor

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 4.—(AP)—A Birmingham society girl was fatally shot and two other girls, both prominent here, were wounded tonight when they were fired on by a colored man who had held them captive for more than four hours in a wooded section near the exclusive Mountain Brook residential section.

The dead girl was Miss Augusta Williams. The wounded are her sister, Miss Nell Williams, shot in the right arm, and Miss Jennie Wood, shot in the spine. The latter's condition is serious.

Miss Augusta Williams died in a local hospital shortly after the shooting. Her father, Clark Williams, is a prominent Birmingham attorney.

Miss Nell Williams told police she and her sister and Miss Wood were driving along a highway this afternoon when a man jumped on the running board of their car and ordered them to drive into the woods.

Their assailant kept them captive for about four hours, she said, and then began insulting them.

When she jumped at him and attempted to get away he started firing, she said. She made her way to a nearby home and summoned police.

FLAMES ATTACK FOUR DWELLINGS; SIX ARE RESCUED

Several families were driven to the street and five children and an elderly woman were carried to safety early this morning in a fire that attacked four dwellings at 18th street and Racine avenue and caused damage estimated at $3,000.

The fire started from crossed wires in a garage at the rear of 1715 South Racine avenue. The gasoline tanks of two automobiles in the garage exploded, throwing flaming oil against a nearby cottage occupied by George Cudina and Frank Landek. Cudina and Landek escaped as sparks, swept on by the wind, set fire to apartment houses at 1715 and 1717 South Racine avenue and a frame dwelling at 1160 West 18th street.

As fire apparatus led by Chief James Adams of the 18th battalion arrived Mrs. Mary Sporer, living on the third floor at No. 1715, reached the street carrying her two children, LaVerne, 5 years old, and Emil, 4, wrapped in a blanket. Fireman Edward James ran into the first floor apartment of the same building and carried out three children and an elderly woman.

William O'Connor, 45 years old, was critically burned early this morning in an explosion which set fire to his apartment at 207 West 71st street. Firemen of truck 20 found him lying on the kitchen floor with his clothing aflame. Chief Thomas Gaffney of the 12th battalion said he believed the pilot light of the stove had been extinguished and O'Connor had tried to light a cigaret in the gas filled room.

TROOPS CLOSE BIG OIL FIELDS IN OKLAHOMA

Gov. Murray Fights for $1 a Barrel.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—National Guard troops, under orders of Gov. William H. Murray, were busy tonight closing down all of Oklahoma's 3,100 oil wells and putting martial law in effect throughout the 27 great petroleum producing fields in the state.

GOV. MURRAY.

The fiery governor, who prefers to be called by his political sobriquet of "Alfalfa Bill," proclaimed martial law this afternoon as his latest move in his fight to force crude oil prices from the present level of 50 cents to a minimum price of $1 a barrel.

It is the second time within ten days that he has ordered out the military to enforce his will. The previous occasion was when he posted National Guard troops along a strip on the Oklahoma bank of the Red river at Durant, to close a toll bridge there in defiance of court orders and to keep open a free bridge paralleling it.

Gasoline Shortage Near.

Today's action threatens a serious gasoline shortage in the state. Virtually every gasoline plant will be forced to close down within the next 24 hours.

By tomorrow night it is expected all the 3,106 principal producing wells, which were recently ordered to curtail production under a "pro-rating" order of the state corporation commission, will be closed. The average daily production of these wells is 350,000 barrels a day. Only the small "stripper" wells, with an average daily production of under 25 barrels, each, are exempt from the governor's order.

Gov. Murray's order followed announcement from the federal court in Guthrie that no decision could be expected soon on the Champlin Refining company's case against the state corporation commission, attacking the proration of production. This test case is built on the assertion that the commission has no authority to make rules and regulations regulating the production of oil.

Attacks Sinclair Interests.

In his order the governor defended his actions on the grounds that he is protecting the natural resources of the state.

A considerable portion of the proclamation was given to an attack on the Harry Sinclair interests. The governor charged that Sinclair attempted to bribe forty members of the legislature and to impeach the governor; that Sinclair maintained a large oil lobby during the last session of the legislature and that the Sinclair company has continually attempted to break down proration of production.

The order established martial zones for 50 feet around all but "stripper" wells and directed the troops to maintain control against all authority, "except an order from the President or the Supreme court of the United States."

Don't Wait for Order.

Three hours before the executive order was issued over 100 state troopers had moved into the Oklahoma City field, largest producing area in the state, and shut down all except twelve of the 811 producers.

By nightfall the greater Seminole district, with 1,300 wells and a daily average production of 135,000 barrels, was partially shut down. Only three isolated pools in the state had no troops patroling the leases.

The detachment of troops were accompanied by Cicero Murray, the governor's cousin, bearing a special commission as colonel. He personally directed the closing of the great valves that control the flow of oil. A number of the large producers, including the Champlin company, which brought the test suit, voluntarily closed all wells before the military arrived. Included in the number was the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company, the largest producer in the Oklahoma City field. The Sinclair wells also closed without waiting for military action.

Stripper Wells Can't Compete.

The stripper wells, exempt from the governor's shutdown order, have been for the most part idle for weeks, as the small producers claim they cannot operate at a profit at the prevailing low prices.

Little or no opposition from the non-

August Furniture Buyers Get Big Chance to Save

If you buy a pound of sugar today and the price of sugar goes up 50% overnight, you have made a fortunate buy, but not one about which you get very much excited. The amount of money involved is small.

With furniture it's different. Chairs, beds and tables are something of a long-term investment. The condition of the market when you buy them is all important. If you buy at the peak of the market, you furnish your home under a handicap. But if prices are low you not only can secure the quality you prefer but you can buy more pieces.

That's why the time to buy furniture is now. Wholesale prices are the lowest by far since the war. Prices are off nearly 50% from the peak.

Chicago stores during their August sales are showing new models and styles bought at the new wholesale prices. Current retail prices afford one of Chicago's greatest buying opportunities. Shop the furniture advertisements yourself and then visit the stores. You will recognize at once that now is a desirable time to furnish or refurnish the home.

ducers was anticipated, but tonight there were indications that the big purchasing interests would start action in the morning in an endeavor to have the courts upset the decree.

The decree itself is a document characteristic of the hard hitting governor. In addition to the attack on the Sinclair and Champlin interests the governor set forth that he is fighting "for the interests of the school children of the state, who benefit on a percentage basis from oil produced on state lands."

In upholding his authority to close the wells Gov. Murray said:

"Article 6 of the constitution declares the governor 'shall cause the laws . . . to be faithfully executed,'" he said.

The oil conservation laws, he added, prohibited "the taking of crude oil . . . at a time when there is not a market demand therefor at a price equivalent to the actual value of such crude oil."

How the Fight Started.

The shut down order culminates a movement started two weeks ago by a handful of operators in the Oklahoma City field to shut down production until the price of crude goes to a reasonable price. Appeals were made to governors of the other oil producing states, but one by one they sidestepped the issue, holding that they had no authority to shut down fields.

At the time the voluntary movement started the top price for crude oil in Oklahoma and Kansas was 22 cents a barrel, with the Sinclair Refining offering 50 cents a barrel flat. The chief source of the Sinclair's supply is in the Oklahoma City field, where it was buying 45,000 barrels daily in addition to its own production of 20,000 barrels daily.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 4.—(AP)—City and county police, continuing their work in connection with the unsuccessful attempt yesterday to kidnap Oscar Johnson II., wealthy 26 year old son of one of the founders of the International Shoe company, tonight were seeking Tommy Hayes, notorious gangster, as a principal in the plot.

Two men, accused of being the pair that held up Johnson at the point of a shotgun and released him when they became alarmed at the vigorous struggle he put up, were held in jail without bail. The men, Felix McDonald, 28, and John Davitt, 26, were charged with kidnaping and with robbery with a deadly weapon. The latter carries a penalty ranging from ten years in prison to death by hanging.

Johnson, in a hospital today with four scalp wounds, two wounds in his lower jaw, and three broken and loosened teeth, identified McDonald positively as one of the pair.

FIND STIMSON'S GROUSE SHOOTING SPOT IN SCOTLAND

LONDON, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The location of the spot where Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson is spending his vacation during the grouse shooting season was disclosed tonight as the Parish of Rogart, seven miles from Golspie, Sutherland, north Scotland.

Heretofore the secretary's whereabouts have been kept secret, but tonight it was announced that Prime Minister MacDonald expects to leave for Rogart Thursday to spend at least two days with the secretary at the latter's invitation.

Secretary Stimson has rented a house there for the season.

POLICE LEARN AUTO STICKERS CAN BE STOLEN

Thomas J. Garrison, 4952 Eddy street, last night proved to the police that the problem of preventing the theft of vehicle tags has not yet been solved. He reported to the Irving Park police that the vehicle license sticker had been removed from the windshield of his car while it was parked in front of his home.

The theft was the first that has been reported. It has been stated that the stickers would have to be destroyed to be removed.

Bomb Explosion Damages Flats on Near West Side

Damage estimated at several hundred dollars was caused early this morning by the explosion of a bomb in a doorway at 1123 West Ohio street. The blast was heard for a distance of nearly two miles and windows of nearby buildings were broken. Families living in the building are those of Vincent Sansone, Michael Giglio, and Joseph Imborgia. The police theory was that extortionists may have set off the bomb, but the three men all denied having enemies or receiving any threats.

GIRL IS BEATEN TO DEATH BY HER STEPFATHER

Confesses When Seized as He Slashes Wrists.

Sigurd Soross, 37 years old, unemployed painter, last night confessed the killing of his stepdaughter, Ruth Elnersen, 17 years old, whom he beat to death with a hammer in their home at 2224 North Lawndale avenue early in the day. He made his confession in the Bridewell hospital, where he is recovering after slashing his wrists in an attempt at suicide.

He slew the girl, Soross said, because he could not support her, himself, and wished to take her care, and his own care, from the shoulders of her mother, Mrs. Inga Soross, 45 years old. This was his claim, but there were statements in his confession which led police to believe another motive existed.

Tells of Struggle.

"I just went crazy," he moaned to Lieut. Walter Healy of the detective bureau. "I was out of work, I couldn't support her, and after my wife left for work about 7 a. m. I went into the kitchen and got a hammer and went back into the dining room, where she was sleeping on a day bed.

"When my wife left she gave me a dollar bill to look for work with and said, 'Now, behave yourself,' and I knew she meant I shouldn't get drunk again. I'd been drunk a few days ago.

"I stood over the bed thinking about all this, and then I raised the hammer and hit Ruth on the head with it. I just went crazy, I guess. She struggled up, looked at me, and said, 'O, Sigurd, I would confess, but Florence won't let me.' [Florence refers, perhaps, to Mrs. Florence Jensen, 3629 Dickens street, Ruth's sister.]

"I hit her three or four times more, and then the outer half of the day bed collapsed and she fell to the floor.

"I beat her until she lay still and then I went back to the kitchen, and hid the hammer in the oven of the stove, behind some flatirons."

Writes Note to Wife.

Soross then sat down at the dining room table, beside the girl's body, and wrote this note: "Inga—I am in the lake. Ruth said I could apologize, but it was Flo's fault. She said goodby forever. I am dead, too . . . But I don't want no expense for you."

He dressed then, he said, and took a street car to 47th street and Lake Park avenue, whence he walked to the lake front and climbed on one of the large boulders which form the land side breakwater. He jumped in the water, seeking to drown himself, but it came only to his hips and he climbed out again and, crouching on the boulder, slashed at his wrists and chest with a pocket knife.

A cruising police squad saw him and took him to the Chicago hospital for treatment. He refused to explain his suicide attempt. They left him there, but on returning to the station found an order for his arrest and took him to the Bridewell hospital, where his wounds were said to be superficial.

Consider Cry a Clew.

The purport of Ruth's statement to Soross when he first struck her puzzled Lieut. Healy and Capt. James Fleming of Shakespeare avenue station. They learned from the mother that last Saturday the sister, Florence, and her husband, William, visited the Soross' and quarreled with him. He ordered them from the house. This incident would explain the content of the note he left at the home, but did little to explain the girl's cry as she lay dying.

Police also learned that the girl had been working at an electrical company, but started on her vacation last week. This would tend to discredit Soross' alleged motives in killing her because he could not support her, according to police.

Soross denied vehemently that he had been intimate with her. He denied that he had tried to attack her yesterday morning.

May Give Up World Flight.

TOKIO, Aug. 5.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—A Rengo news agency dispatch from Khabarovsk, Siberia, said the American flyers, Hugh Herndon Jr. and Clyde Pangborn, were undecided today whether to continue their globe circling flight to Nome as originally planned or to try some other route.

With rain continuing to fall at Khabarovsk and the flyers pessimistic over their futile hopes of beating the record flight of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, the airmen told Russian aviation officials that if the weather did not clear by tonight they are inclined to abandon the journey to Alaska.

Hint at Tokio-Seattle Hop.

If they changed their plans, however, Pangborn and Herndon hinted they might go to Tokio for the purpose of attempting a nonstop flight to Seattle. The flyers told the Russian officials they would make a definite decision tonight.

The flight of Pangborn and Herndon was halted when they landed at Khabarovsk at 3:50 p. m. Monday [1:50 a. m. Chicago daylight time] with a damaged wing. After the wing was repaired the inclement weather prevented the airmen from taking off.

Before leaving Col. Lindbergh said he hoped to make the trip in a single jump if weather permitted. A stop at Coppermine, almost half way to Aklavik, will be made in event of a storm. Maintaining their average rate of speed since they left Washington, the Lindberghs are expected to reach Aklavik at 5 a. m. [Chicago time] today.

From Aklavik the couple will fly to Port Barrow and Nome, Alaska, thence over the Bering sea to Tokio. Col. Lindbergh had previously planned to reach Aklavik in short jumps by way of Hunter bay and Fort Norman on the Mackenzie river.

Communication with Khabarovsk had been cut off for hours prior to receipt of the Rengo dispatch. Wire lines failed and weather conditions had prevented successful operations by radio.

Amy Nears Goal, Refuels Plane.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 5.—[Wednesday] —(AP)—Amy Johnson, British airwoman, came down at Tsitsikar, Manchuria, to refuel her airplane at 8 a. m. today [7 p. m. Tuesday Chicago time] on her way to Tokio from London, advices received here said.

Speeds to Break Record.

ALEPPO, Syria, Aug. 4.—(AP)—J. A. Mollison, Australian airman, seeking to lower the Australia to England flight record of ten days and 23 hours, arrived here from Basrah, Iraq, this afternoon, and will push on across the Mediterranean to Athens tonight hoping to reach London tomorrow, thereby lowering Lieut. C. W. A. Scott's record by 36 hours.

SEATTLE-TOKIO HOP FAILS; JAIL YAWNS FOR PAIR

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Twice thwarted in attempts to make a nonstop refueling flight from Seattle to Tokio, Reg Robbins and Harold S. Jones, Fort Worth, Tex., aviators, have decided to go to jail.

When they flew into Seattle a month ago to make the flight, they were trailed by a telegram from their friend, Sheriff "Red" Wright of Fort Worth.

"If you don't reach Tokio don't come back. Take up deer ranching in Kamchatka. Keep away from Fort Worth or I'll jug you," wired their friend "Red."

Came another telegram from Wright.

"Stay with it, boys. It's safer to risk your lives going to Tokio than to return here. I've two nice cells awaiting you."

Again they turned the nose of the monoplane Fort Worth northward and again bad weather, failure.

Yesterday W. W. Connor, governor for Washington of the National Aeronautic association, telegraphed them at Fairbanks, Alaska, where the second attempt ended, to try it again. "We're backing you in Seattle," he said.

Last night came Robbins' answer to the invitation.

"Jones and I can't thank our Seattle friends enough for all the help they gave us. We certainly appreciate it. But we won't try another Tokio attempt right now. We've decided to go to jail."

ORDERS BROKERS' ARREST; WIDOW'S $600,000 GONE

Entire Fortune Lost in Alleged Swindle.

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—On the complaint of Mrs. Ella De Bevoise Patterson, widow of William Patterson, advertising expert, that she had been defrauded of her entire fortune of $588,987.50, Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr. ordered the arrest today of two brokers. They described themselves as Earnest Suffern, Montclair, N. J., and Philip J. Barnes of Glen Ridge, N. J.

Mrs. Patterson, in telling her story to Mr. Bennett and his assistants, drew the comment from the attorney general, "the case is the most unfortunate that has come to my attention since assuming office."

Suffern and Barnes, who are alleged to have defrauded the woman of Curtis Publishing company stock in a series of stock transactions, were arrested in the attorney general's office and taken to police headquarters, and will be arraigned in the Tombs court tomorrow. Other arrests were predicted.

Posed as Friend of Husband.

In her complaint, Mrs. Patterson said that in February of last year she was approached by Barnes and an unidentified person for the purpose of interesting her in the purchase of shares of stock in the Western Empire Mines company, Ltd., of California. The companion of Barnes, according to the widow, said he was an old friend of Mr. Patterson and expressed surprise and sorrow at the latter's death.

Mr. Patterson died May 27, 1928. He had been at the time of his death president of Patterson-Andreas company, Inc., in this city. Prior to that, he was office manager in New York for the Curtis Publishing company, and left an estate of more than $1,000,000, most of it in common and preferred stock of the Curtis Publishing company.

Didn't Want Mine Stock.

Mrs. Patterson said she told Mr. Barnes and the man with him that she was not interested in buying gold mine stock, her husband having lost in worthless securities of that nature. It was said that Barnes at that time was employed by Ernest Suffern, then an expert accountant.

Later, according to Mrs. Patterson, Barnes and a companion interested her in the stock of General Industrial Foundation, Inc., a company formed for the purpose of holding Western Empire Mines, Ltd.

Mrs. Patterson claims this fact was withheld from her; that she was told that the General Industrial Foundation, of which Suffern was described as president and director, was a successful engineering corporation then consummating among other deals the purchase of the Belmont hotel. Mrs. Patterson said she was informed the company would supplant the Belmont with a modern office building, and on May 30, 1930, she invested $20,000 in this stock. In subsequent contacts, Mrs. Patterson said, she was persuaded to make Suffern trustee of her Curtis stock, but she claims he was not given power to sell the securities.

Sell Her Curtis Stock.

Mr. McCall said his investigations disclosed that all the Curtis stock, 3,000 shares of common and 1,800 shares of preferred, was sold and the proceeds used in part to maintain the pay roll of the General Industrial Foundation, "which corporation at this time is apparently insolvent."

Mrs. Patterson says she was not aware that the Curtis stock had been sold until last June. She received dividend checks from the defendants despite the bulk of the stock had been disposed of.

Among the directors of the General Industrial Foundation, Inc., according to Mr. McCall, is Thomas D. Campbell, said to be one of the largest producers of wheat in the world and a close friend of President Hoover. It was made clear that Mr. Campbell had no part in the transaction in which Mrs. Patterson figured.

CAPITAL'S CRIME AGAIN ON PAGE 1; POLICE SLAIN

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—(Special.)—Crime news featured early editions of the capital's Wednesday morning's newspapers tonight as streamer headlines told of the murder of a policeman near the United States soldiers' home. Patrolman Charles B. Poole, attached to the 12th precinct, was the man shot. He was killed by an assailant called "Davis," who walked up to within a few feet of the police officer and fired three bullets into his body.

A man believed to be Davis was captured a few hours after the shooting and was taken to police headquarters. The motive of the killing had not been determined tonight, although there were reports that the shooting might have been the outgrowth of a raid last night on one of the numerous speakeasies which, according to police, honeycomb the Fort Totten section in the vicinity of the soldiers' home.

Poole had been on leave since Aug. 2 and was not attired in his uniform when killed.

CHICAGO AMONG COOLEST CITIES IN U. S. IN JULY

Weather Man Shows How Lake Tempers Heat.

Lake Michigan again demonstrated its efficiency as a cooling system for Chicago during July, according to records produced yesterday by Meteorologist C. A. Donnel. Taking eighteen representative eastern, middle-western and western cities, it was found that only five of them enjoyed a cooler mean temperature for the month than Chicago.

Tuesday's temperature reached a maximum of 92 at 4 and 5 p. m., and Forecaster Donnel said the mercury would rise to about 95 today, with continued southwest winds, but unsettled and cooler weather, with possible showers, was predicted for tomorrow.

Fourth Hottest July Here.

Although Chicago's temperatures for July were below those of most of the country, the mean temperatures of 75.4 for the month, as compared with the normal mean of 72.5, made it the fourth hottest July of record here, Mr. Donnel's figures show. A comparison of the mean temperatures and the maximum attained during the month for the eighteen cities is shown by the following table:

	Mean temp.	Maximum temp.
Chicago	75.4	99
Boston	74	97
Cleveland	76.3	96
New York	76	100
Des Moines	78.6	107
Detroit	77.6	100
Milwaukee	75.5	99
Louisville	81.2	97
Cincinnati	79.2	99
Minneapolis	76.8	101
Pittsburgh	77	97
Buffalo	72.3	91
Kansas City	81.7	102
Los Angeles	77.2	94
Indianapolis	79.7	98
Omaha	80.4	105
Peoria	79.2	102
St. Louis	82.2	104

Los Angeles Weather Warmer.

The records show that Los Angeles, with its vaunted glories of climate, was warmer than Chicago during July, with a mean temperature of 77.2 as against Chicago's 75.4, although its maximum was only 94 as compared with Chicago's 99, indicating consistently warmer weather, both day and night. Los Angeles experienced the hottest July of all time, five degrees above its normal mean.

The effect of the cooling breezes from Lake Michigan on Chicago's temperature is shown by a comparison with Peoria, where one of the near-by weather stations is located, according to Mr. Donnel. Peoria's mean was 79.2, or 2.8 degrees above Chicago.

Wins Divorce from Movie Star

INA CLAIRE WINS A DIVORCE FROM JOHN GILBERT

Film Star Asked for No Property.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Ina Claire, stage and screen star, was granted a divorce late today from John Gilbert, romantic figure of the screen, at a brief session behind closed doors in the court of Superior Judge Joseph W. Sproul. Gilbert was not present. They were married May 9, 1929.

Miss Claire told of leaving Gilbert twice and of returning to him twice.

Tells of Gilbert's Letter.

"Then it became impossible to live with him any more," she said.

Once, she went on, she received a letter from him, saying, "I have tried to make a go of it, but everything is against us. I am sure that we will be giving ourselves a better chance by living apart. But I am not for company, nor do I want any one about me."

At the hearing it was announced a property settlement had been made out of court. Later, in the offices of his attorney, Gilbert denied there had been a property settlement in the usual sense of the term.

"Whatever the reason," Gilbert's statement said, "and wherever the responsibility for the failure lies, one thing has been established and that is the dignity of the lady who was Mrs. Gilbert.

Praises Ex-Wife.

"She has been more than fair in every way and has refused all offers of a financial settlement from me. In fact, I know that money has never been in her thoughts at all. She voluntarily signed away, one year after our marriage, all rights to my property.

"And the only time money has been mentioned at all between us was as the result of our lawyers' efforts to wipe the slate clean in auditing certain legitimate expenditures made by her as my wife during the two years since our marriage."

NED WAYBURN, DANCE TUTOR, UNDERGOING A TWO STAGE OPERATION

New York, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Ned Wayburn, well known dance instructor, is ill in the Claremont hospital, Claremont, N. H., where he is undergoing a two-stage operation.

Advices received here today said the theatrical man became ill several weeks ago. He was rushed to Bayside, L. I., last Wednesday, for a consultation with his family doctor when his condition became acute. He was returned to Claremont and the first operation was performed yesterday. The second will be in about ten days.

Wayburn is widely known in vaudeville and theatrical circles, having trained a number of the dancers who later became famous on Broadway.

MONTH'S WORK IS 72 HOURS IN CRIMINAL COURT

Crime Commission Lists Hours of Judges.

Lawyers have complained through the bar association that Chicago judges take vacations of too long duration and spend too few hours on the bench and in chambers. This complaint caused the Chicago crime commission to make public a criminal court timetable yesterday which shows that the judges are paid an average of more than $17 an hour for the time they spend in public court duty.

The judges of the Circuit, Superior and Criminal courts receive salaries of $15,000 year. A court day is ordinarily 5 hours, with 2½ hours on Saturday. This makes 120 hours a month as full time.

Seventy-Two Hours a Month.

But, according to the crime commission's table, the total hours spent on bench and in chambers by all the Criminal court judges during the first seven months of the year was 4,524 hours, or an average of 647 hours a month. On an average, nine judges are regularly assigned to Criminal court bench. Therefore 72 hours is the average monthly time each judge has spent in court, according to the commission's report. On the basis of a monthly salary of $1,250, this is an average of $17.36 an hour.

The crime commission table shows, however, that not all of the 4,524 hours on the bench in seven months can be credited to the regularly assigned judges because there were six other judges who sat occasionally on the west side or were assigned for only a part of the seven months' period.

Following a recent published complaint that some of the judges sitting in the civil branches were spending too few hours in actual court work, the reply was made on behalf of the judges that the time spent in court work was only a small part of their duties. It was stated that the judges were compelled to spend long hours of study on abstruse legal questions and on complicated legal situations. Lawyers point out, however, that this need for outside study does not apply to Criminal court judges to the same degree that it does to judges sitting in the civil branches.

Burke's Hours Are Longest.

Of the regular Criminal court judges, the table shows that Judge Joseph Burke, with a total of 757½ hours in seven months, led the list, while Judge Harry Fisher, who is now in Europe and who has been elected chief justice for the next year, put in the least number of hours, his record being 167½ hours in seven months.

Criminal court observers reported that Judge Fisher and Judge Joseph David put in only occasional days hearing criminal trials. Judge David, who was shown by the table to have put in 249 hours in five of the seven months, has been staging "rush days" when he would hear anywhere from ten to thirty cases and then would be absent for a week, according to the timekeepers. Judge Fisher was said to have given some time to meetings of the judicial advisory council, of which he is a member.

Judge David, according to the record, took a two months' vacation in February and March. Judge Fisher's present trip to Europe is not in the nature of a vacation but as a member of the state commission for which the legislature voted $50,000 to conduct a study in foreign countries.

One Three Months' Vacation.

Judge Charles Williams had three months' vacation, the table shows, during January, February and March. Chief Justice John P. McGoorty has been in a hospital since the latter part of June, it was explained, accounting for his absence during all of July.

The record shows that Judge Ross C. Hall, after three months in the criminal branch, went to the county building to hear civil cases, and that Judge Harry B. Miller has recently gone to the west side to help out.

A recent report by the crime commission declared the judges were able to do a good bit of loafing and still make a showing in cases disposed of because of the fact many defendants are now waiving juries and the judges can hear several cases a day if they will put in full time.

DAVID SPEEDS CAMPAIGN.

Judge Joseph B. David of the Criminal court yesterday prepared to continue his campaign to reduce the population of the county jail by arranging to dispose of 84 cases on Thursday and 60 more on Monday, all of the defendants having agreed to waive jury trials or to enter pleas of guilty. Last week he disposed of 88 felony indictments. In 48 of these cases the defendants were sent to prison. The remaining 40 defendants were fined, placed on probation, or found not guilty.

Hours Spent by Judges in Criminal Court

The table below, compiled by the Chicago Crime commission, shows the number of hours a month spent by the Criminal court judges on the bench or in chambers during the first seven months of the year. The first nine judges on the list are regularly assigned to the Criminal court, while the last six on the list are not regularly assigned or were assigned for only a part of the seven month period. Fractional hours are shown by decimals in the tabulation.

GUM DROPS FOR HOOVER? CIGARS, SAYS SECRETARY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Gumdrops or cigars? That is the question—and the source of the most notable White House mystery since President Hoover's recent search for leaks through which details of his activities became news.

JAMES R. NUTT.

"President Hoover has acquired a weakness for gumdrops," headlined a Washington paper when Joseph R. Nutt of Cleveland, treasurer of the Republican national committee, explained that the wrapped box he was carrying into the President's office this morning was a box of gumdrops.

"They are gumdrops for the President," Mr. Nutt was quoted as saying. "He likes a special brand that we make out in Cleveland and I brought some along when I left home last night."

And Mr. Nutt's face was happy and beaming as he entered the executive office.

But the face of Theodore G. Joslin, presidential secretary, was serious as, later in the day, he held his usual conference with the press.

And from his own desk drawer he pulled a cigar box. "This is it," said he. "They're the President's or I'd pass them around."

"These are mine," he said, and passed them.

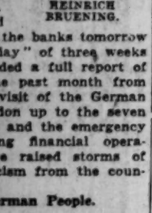
BRUENING URGES GERMANY: FIGHT YOUR OWN BATTLE

Warns Public to Begrudge No Sacrifice.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—In an eloquent appeal over the radio tonight Chancellor Bruening placed the burden of lifting Germany out of its financial chaos on the German people. He called on them to spare no efforts and begrudge no sacrifices that might be instrumental in quickly alleviating the conditions which have held the country on the brink of bankruptcy during the last few weeks.



HEINRICH BRUENING.

His speech, which anticipated the reopening of the banks tomorrow after their "holiday" of three weeks and a day, included a full report of the events of the past month from the time of the visit of the German ministers to London up to the seven power conference and the emergency decrees controlling financial operations which have raised storms of protest and criticism from the country.

Praises German People.

Chancellor Bruening commended the people for their courage during the last three weeks, and declared that they had a right to know what the government has been doing to stay disaster and why.

Regarding this point, the chancellor admitted that some of the government's drastic measures may not have been sufficient or in all cases wise, but he said that under the necessity for timely action the cabinet had acted vigorously and boldly and had wasted no precious moments in seeking out a perfect solution for the problems.

Chancellor Bruening pointed out that deep under the shattered hopes based on the Hoover plan and the London conference, a solid foundation for rehabilitation is becoming discernible.

All Peoples Linked Together.

A positive result of the present crisis, he said, is that the whole world now agrees that the destinies of peoples are tightly linked together and that disruption in the organization of a great economic entity such as Germany can never remain without grave consequences to other countries.

While this is recognized, the chancellor warned, yet, the rest of the world cannot be expected to regain confidence in a nation which dissipates its recuperative powers during a crisis with subversive criticism.

It is important, therefore, he said, that the German people forget political differences and struggle together for the common good, not only for dissolution of the present difficulties as they affect the people, but for restoring the confidence of the world for future developments.

Opposes Diet Referendum.

Concerning this he mentioned the Steel Helmet referendum next Sunday for the dissolution of the Prussian diet. He declared that at this time such a manifestation of political antagonism is distinctly out of place. As a private citizen, he said, "you will not find me at the ballot box." This refers to the fact that if a majority of the electorate abstains from voting the referendum will automatically fail to carry.

Chancellor Bruening said that the exchange of views between France and Germany will continue, but warned that because negotiations have been opened and carried on frankly it is not to be expected that international events will move so quickly as to make internal caution unnecessary.

Pleads for Faith in Banks.

He pleaded with the people not to lose faith in the country's banks, but to keep their savings and deposits in the banks and rest assured that the country will weather the crisis and that their money will not be lost.

With comparative calm reigning in financial circles on the eve of the reopening of the banks, confidence is felt that there will be no excessive demands for payment when these institutions open their doors tomorrow.

While there has been a great accumulation of deferred payments which the banks must meet, it is believed that money drawn out to settle liabilities will soon find its way into circulation and back into the banks without disrupting banking machinery.

Payments into banks have exceeded the small authorized withdrawals, and these were aided by activity in the sale of commodities which started briskly throughout the country on the first of this month. Since check transfer between the banks became general yesterday, the banking situation has improved, experts believe.

New York Bankers Act Today.

New York, Aug. 4.—New York bankers were engaged today in studying a report on the German proposals for dealing with outstanding German short term credits, prepared by the subcommittee of four organized last week to investigate the problem. A general meeting of representatives of all the intersted banks will be held tomorrow at the Federal Reserve bank to discuss the report.

If an agreement can be reached tomorrow among the American banks, a reply will be dispatched to Germany and a copy will be sent to London, where English and continental bankers are engaged in studying the German proposals. Whatever arrangement is finally agreed upon by the bankers of this country and Europe will have to be embodied in an official decree of the German government.

In effect, this means that the German government will have to lay down restrictions upon the payment of foreign obligations. The agreement among the foreign bankers will simply provide the German government with an understanding of how to best formulate its restrictive measures so as not to alienate foreign creditors.

GERMANY DECLARES HATRED IS INJECTED INTO DEBT PROBLEM

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 4.—(AP)—A blind hatred has been injected into discussions of the German reparations problem rather than a spirit of fair coöperation in rebuilding an almost ruined world, Prof. Herbert von Beckerath of the University of Bonn told the Institute of Politics here tonight.

In the first of three lectures on the German economic situation, Prof. Von Beckerath said the reparations scheme had proved a complete failure from an economic viewpoint.

"Perhaps not so much by reason of exchange difficulties," he said, "but because Germany in her actual state could not do without the capital which year by year was withdrawn for her reparation service."

Prof. Von Beckerath said it was true that out of more than six billion dollars of foreign credits which have been used since the Dawes plan started, more than half was due to excessive interior consumption and to the faults of German interior politics.

"Nevertheless," he said, "there are about two and one-half billion dollars of foreign credits which we took in order to make reparation payments possible."

The German economist said it would have been impossible for Germany itself to provide these sums even with the utmost thrift.

100,000 STRIKE IN CUBA; RIOTS SWEEP HAVANA

Mobs Toss Bombs Into Street Cars.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 4.—Bomb explosions, shootings between strikebreakers, police, and strikers in which scores were injured, and free for all fights in various quarters of Havana marked the commemoration of the third international communist day in America by the Cuban National Labor confederation today.

The disturbances followed the walkout shortly after last midnight of 40,000 workers in Havana and between 60,000 and 70,000 others throughout Cuba in a general strike in sympathy with the street car men's strike and as a protest against alleged governmental restrictions of labor rights.

Bomb Street Cars.

Three dynamite bombs were exploded on street car lines in the fashionable Vedada residential district. One motorman was injured and windows were blown out of the cars. Collisions between street cars operated by inexperienced strike breakers were frequent. Bombs placed in taxicabs injured several people. One bomb, exploding near the building of the Heraldo de Cuba, blew off the hand of Amador Vales, a photographer for the review, Bohemia, who was sitting in an automobile nearby.

Numerous riots and clashes were reported by the police in all sections of the city.

José Maria Conception, prominent Havana newspaper man and one of the directors of the leading Spanish language paper, El Pais, was arrested with other newspaper men whose names have not been revealed. All are confined in the Cabanas fortress. The charges against them have not been made known.

Make 40 Arrests.

More than 40 arrests were made throughout the day after serious rioting at the national labor confederation building this morning. Persons arrested include labor leaders, newspaper men, strikers, and other elements. Prominent among them are Lucio Fuentes, president of the Commercial Employés association, and Jose Llera, leader of the striking car men. All labor unions allied with the confederation are under the surveillance of reinforced police forces.

Directors of the 24 hour general strike announced tonight that the strike will be called for an indefinite period unless those arrested today are immediately released. Government officials refused to comment on the workers' demands.

Car Men Refuse Compromise.

The street car strike continues, the conductors and motormen's syndicate refusing to accept the compromise offered by the president of the Havana Railway company.

First reports from cities and towns in the interior of the island state that there were minor disturbances during the day. Further precautions were adopted for Havana following today's riots and the announcement that labor leaders propose to make the strike last indefinitely.

Stillman, Home, Denies He Intends to Remarry

New York, Aug. 4.—(AP)—James A. Stillman, banker, returned from England today on the White Star liner Olympic and denied emphatically he intends to remarry. Stillman's marriage to Mrs. Anne U. Stillman was dissolved by divorce.

2 PARK SYSTEMS TO CUT $600,000 FROM EXPENSES

Tell Plans to Governor's Revenue Board.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The south park commission plans to cut the operating expenses $310,000 this year as compared with last. The Lincoln park board cut its expenditures $200,000 last year under those of the previous year and plans to save $200,000 this year.

That summarizes the information given to Gov. Emmerson's revenue committee at last night's session in the Union League club. The west park board was invited, but had no representative present. Chairman Joseph E. Brittain was the chief interrogator.

The pointed questions, such as were put to the city, school, and county officials, were not asked of the park officials. Samuel Insull, Fred Sargent, and E. E. Thomason were absent, and Mr. Brittain did not appear to have collected information about the parks in advance, such as Mr. Sargent used in questioning the school officials.

"To Stay Within Income."

President Kelly of the south park commission said that his organization will stay within its income and save all it can.

Joseph T. Donoghue, superintendent of the south parks, explained the great increase in expenditures since 1917 by saying that labor costs were low at the beginning of the war, while in 1920 they were high. Labor in 1917, he said, was paid 28 cents an hour, while it now gets 60 cents; teamsters were paid 35 cents as compared to $1.42 now; and carpenters 45 cents as compared to the present $1.50 an hour. Other labor costs have increased at about the same ratio, he said, and supplies have gone up.

In addition, the area of the parks has increased 2,080 acres in the period and many new field houses have been built, it was pointed out.

Explains Larger Expenses.

Mr. Donoghue also explained why Chicago spends more money on its park system than New York, which has about twice as many inhabitants. He said that Chicago gives much greater park service. New York has no field houses and no community centers, he asserted, while Chicago has many of these facilities.

"If New York can get along without them, why can't Chicago?" asked Douglas Sutherland.

"There is nothing worse than thinking that," replied Mr. Donoghue. "These institutions keep down delinquency."

"Why shouldn't all the parks be consolidated?" asked Mr. Brittain.

"There might be a little economy in it," replied Mr. Donaghue. "It would take about as many employés. Each of the larger park systems is now large enough to buy at advantage."

Kelly Questions Brittain.

"How would you select the commissioners?" asked Mr. Kelly of Mr. Brittain. "If they were elected, you would put politics into the parks at once. Consolidation means politics. There is nothing in the South parks we are not proud of."

Attorney William Beckman and Controller E. L. Mitchell spoke for the Lincoln park board because neither President Warren Wright nor Vice President Sheldon Clark could be present.

After asking about reducing expense, Victor Olander, member of the commission, asked:

"You cannot lay off any lions or tigers, can you?"

"No, they have to be fed," said Mr. Mitchell.

"I'm a member of another commission, and we were unable to feed all the men and women we should last winter," remarked Mr. Olander.

"We laid off no employés last winter and will not this winter," said Mr. Mitchell.

Urges Building of Airport.

George Nixon, another member of the governor's commission said that the airplane center has switched from Chicago to Detroit because the necessary airport facilities had not been provided here. He suggested that the Lincoln park board use the newly made 260 acres on the lake front for that purpose. Attorney Beckman replied that such a task is not within the legal purposes of a park board.

"With that additional park space, the new bridge across the river," said Mr. Beckman, "we will need more money next year than this. Yet there is a threat of a 20 per cent cut in taxes. The present board in the last year and a half has effected every economy which could safely be put into effect."

Runs for Congress

MRS. HENRY ALLEN COOPER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Racine, Wis., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Henry Allen Cooper, widow of the former Congressman from the first Wisconsin district, today announced her candidacy to fill his unexpired term. The call for the special election at which the place will be filled has not yet been made by Gov. La Follette.

Mrs. Cooper's name was mentioned as his successor soon after his death but until today she had not decided whether she would make the race.

She was closely in the confidence of her husband for many of his years in office and her familiarity with Wisconsin affairs and her acquaintance with the people of the district will give her candidacy strength, her supporters say.

TAX COLLECTOR FOUND GUILTY OF SPEEDING; FINED

Manuel Sultan, tax collector of Bloom township, was found guilty of speeding and resisting an officer by Justice of the Peace Frank Synakiewicz in Blue Island yesterday. He was fined $10. He announced he would appeal the conviction.

Sultan was arrested three weeks ago by County Highway Policeman George Truesdale, a recruit, who found him driving 56 miles an hour on the Lincoln highway near Chicago Heights. Truesdale testified that Sultan attempted to evade arrest, saying that he was a state parole officer on the way to an important trial and could not stop. Truesdale followed him to his home and was driven from there when Sultan produced a gun, the policeman said.

Sultan told Assistant State's Attorney E. B. Jackson yesterday that he had been relieved of his state position because of the incident.

Jacobs Attacks Plea for Emergency Funds.

The charge that the board of assessors has wasted its appropriations in the employment of inefficient political pay rollers was made yesterday by J. L. Jacobs, county efficiency expert, in response to the assessors' request for an emergency appropriation to complete the 1931 quadrennial reassessment.

C. J. HARRINGTON.

Jacobs' charge was backed later by a similar one from Harry S. Cutmore, whom the assessors discharged recently from his post as director of appraisals after he had set up the scientific appraisal system on which the 1928 reassessment was based. Cutmore said that although his force for the 1930 assessment, completed just before he was dismissed, numbered only 1,200 employés at any one time, 8,000 pay rollers passed through his office within a few months.

"Those I kept were not too efficient," he said. "But those I fired could not function at all."

Asks $75,000 Appropriation.

Charles E. Fox, recently appointed to succeed Cutmore as director of appraisals, presented the request for a $75,000 emergency appropriation to the finance committee of the county board. At the same time Andrew W. Gatenbey, chief clerk of the board of review, asked for $59,880 for extra clerks to handle the 40,000 complaints against the 1930 assessments which have been filed with the reviewers.

On behalf of the assessors, Attorney Cornelius J. Harrington cited a law which gives the county board power to make emergency appropriations for the relief of a public catastrophe as grounds for helping out the assessors. The statute gives the commissioners power to appropriate "in case of unforeseen casualties by fire, flood, or otherwise happening after the annual appropriation bill shall have been passed or adopted."

Committee Defers Action.

The finance committee deferred action and asked an opinion from County Attorney Hayden N. Bell as to whether the operations of the board of review and board of assessors fall in the category cited by the statute.

In requesting the additional appropriation Fox informed the committee that although work on the quadrennial assessment was not started in full force until Aug. 1, the assessors before that date had milked the appropriation for technical work on the reassessment, reducing that fund from $126,000 to $84,000. Most of the withdrawals, made with the consent of the county board, were for payments to the regular pay rollers of the board of assessors out of the extra and overtime fund.

That fund, intended to last until the end of the fiscal year, is now depleted, and Assessor John E. Conroy, secretary of the board, informed employés Monday that they will have to work three hours a night overtime, without pay, until they finish the 1931 personal property assessments, six weeks hence. The added appropriation which Fox sought will permit the employment of extra help and save the pay rollers from the payless overtime, he said.

"The budget, as made, was wholly insufficient for the work to be done," Conroy told the finance committee.

Raps Political Pay Rollers.

At that Jacobs arose from his seat at the conference table. His face was red and he pounded the table as he spoke.

"The reason for the condition of their appropriations is that the service for which the assessors paid was not performed," he said. After the meeting he amplified his statement.

"The extra and overtime roll was used to give jobs to political pay rollers," he charged. "The assessors carried on the practice from time to time of transferring funds appropriated for one purpose or another to the extra and overtime roll. The situation as it is today was predicted to me by Harry S. Cutmore before his discharge."

Cutmore Story of Transfer.

Cutmore discussed the same situation with the following comments:

"The transfer of funds was not at my suggestion, but was by action of the assessors, who refused to give me a free hand in handling the personnel of the office. When I took that office, I had an agreement with the assessors that I was to hire men capable of performing their duties. As soon as I found that men who were not capable had been placed on the pay roll, I fired them. As a result, my force was constantly in a fluid condition.

"Squandering money on the extra roll in getting up the 1930 personal property assessments was the cause of the present deficit. On the 1930 assessment my force amounted to 1,200 men, whom I sorted out of 8,000 pay rollers, most of whom were unable to function at all. Assessor Conroy was especially active in bringing these pay rollers into the office."

Because, he says, it will be necessary for his employés to work through their vacations without extra compensation, Conroy said yesterday that he would see to it that they were not included with all other county employés in the deduction of fourteen days pay for economy purposes. M. J. O'Connor, deputy county controller, said, however, that the county would pay none of its help for the first half of September, and that the assessors' employés would have to suffer with the rest, even though they also lose their vacations.

POLICE DEPARTMENT TO PUT GOLD STARS ON CITIZEN HEROES

Citizens who perform outstanding service for the police department will be given gold honor stars inscribed "For Meritorious Service," Acting Police Commissioner Alcock announced yesterday.

The first presentation of these stars will take place this morning, when Alcock will pin them on the breasts of Ernest Schaeublin, 2804 Logan boulevard, and Frank Mason Rogers of the Elite hotel, Madison and Green streets.

Schaeublin on April 30 captured Frank Jordan, now under sentence of death, after Jordan had fatally wounded Policemen Anthony Ruthy and Patrick Durkin at Randolph street and Michigan avenue. Rogers pursued and caught two bandits on June 8 after they had shot and fatally wounded Policeman Edward M. O'Donnell in a holdup near Rogers' hotel.

OVERDUE WAGES PAID TO 4,500 COUNTY WORKERS

Approximately 4,500 county employés yesterday were paid $500,000 in overdue salaries for the first half of July. The money was borrowed from the county's share of the gasoline tax fund and a 1931 tax anticipation warrant was given as collateral.

Signboards which made dangerous road intersections near the forest preserves were ordered removed yesterday. The county commissioners also ordered that all directional signs in the forest preserves should bear the name of Emmett Whealan, president of the board. The name of Anton Cermak, who was president of the board before he became mayor, was ordered removed from the forest preserve signs shortly after the new board took office.

FREED ON U. S. DRY CHARGE.

Louis Cernocky, owner of Louis' place, Fox River Grove, was freed yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker when government agents failed to prove that several glasses of beer which they bought from him contained more than ½ of one per cent of alcohol.

Five little girls = seventy little frocks
A lesson in clever laundering by
Mrs. James E. Bennett

"My girls are so fresh and gay that I couldn't bear to see them in faded-out little frocks, or doom them to wearing dull, practical things," says charming Mrs Bennett.

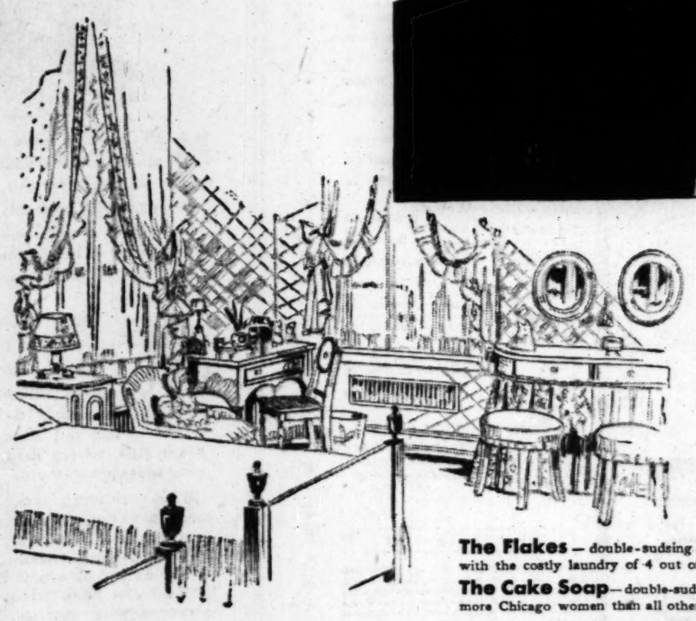
"But two dresses a day means seventy to seventy-five dresses in every week's washing. To say nothing of undies, stockings, sweaters, and the linens for five little beds. Besides all the curtains, linens and other laundry of a twenty-six-room house.

"American Family Flakes is the only possible answer. It's so pure it cannot harm the finest threads; so everything wears longer. The girls outgrow and pass on their clothes instead of wearing them out.

"No danger of colors fading in these suds; so flowered frocks can go in with white things. No rubbing or whiteners — we'd never get our laundry done if we had to sacrifice quick cleansing for safety.

"Even the ironing is easier, for this soap rinses out more perfectly than any other soap I know—see how bright and unclouded our china and glasses dry! And with such a large household to care for, the fact that our maids request it for dishwashing and cleaning 'says everything' for American Family Flakes efficiency.

"Yes, it's wonderful the way American Family Flakes preserves the beauty and life of one's delicate chiffon stockings and precious French tablecloths. But I want to tell mothers it's even more wonderful in saving work and worry when you have a big laundry and house to keep clean."



Here's a home that says "happy" the moment you open the door. Mother planned it—a handsome big Georgian brick between Lincoln Park and the lake. Father drew up the plans (he's a broker of national importance). Beautiful heirloom furniture, vast sunny rooms, ten gorgeous colored-tile bathrooms. "I wouldn't think of trusting all this beautiful porcelain to a harsh soap," says mother Bennett. "Be mighty careful of the luster when you wash this painted woodwork," says father Bennett. And "Give us American Family Flakes—it makes such good soapy suds," say all the Bennett maids and laundresses. So the cleaning problem is no problem at all. For mother Bennett buys American Family Flakes by the case, and is worry-free to enjoy her golf clubs, bridge, music.

The Flakes—double-sudsing—the only soap trusted with the costly laundry of 4 out of 5 Gold Coast women.
The Cake Soap—double-sudsing—for 90 years used by more Chicago women than all other laundry soaps combined.

ward; State Senator Adelbert H. Roberts, colored; the Rev. Harold Kingsley, colored pastor of the Good Shepherd Congregational church; the Rev. J. C. Austin, colored pastor of the Pilgrim Baptist church; Sheridan Bruseaux, a colored investigator, and several other colored business men.

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, said he would not prohibit peaceful meetings in Washington park, but that south parks police would tolerate no Red speeches nor any appeals to the passions or prejudices of the colored people which might incite them to violence.

Others at the Meeting.

Others at the meeting were: Commissioner of Public Works A. A. Sprague, Bailiff Horan, Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, city commissioner of public welfare; Attorney E. R. Newman, representing 250 pieces of property in the colored district; Melville J. Kolliner, agent of the building where the rioting started on Monday; Msgr. Cummings, and Miss Nesbitt.

A poll of the Negroes present showed that a majority favored relentless action by police to stop speeches in which violence is advocated and also to halt plundering of stores and resistance to law enforcement officers. Only one or two wanted the meetings in Washington park dispersed altogether.

"Something must be done to check those gatherings," Ald. Jackson said. "No meetings or parades should be allowed without permits. Secret service men should ferret out the ringleaders and throw them into jail."

"Too much free speech is being allowed," said Senator Roberts. "The paramount thing is to nip this movement in the bud. Washington should know what is going on. If it can run down an income tax dodger surely it can run down a person more dangerous. If the ringleaders are grabbed and put in jail it would be like taking the head off a viper. The rest of the body would die."

"The events of last night show we are in a critical condition and we should do something about it," said Ald. James B. Waller [43d], who heads the special council committee on unemployment and who conferred with Mr. Sexton.

"The real reason is idleness," said Miss Nesbitt. "I don't believe the situation can be met by charity. Work must be provided."

"The trouble is caused by Russian communistic propaganda," said the Rev. Mr. Austin. "It's a challenge to the law abiding people and should be handled by the United States government. The hungry and homeless Negro is being used as a tool. Charity pauperizes the spirit of man."

Another Conference Is Held.

Later there was another conference in which United States Attorney Johnson, State's Attorney Swanson, Sheriff Meyering, Acting Police Commissioner Alcock, Henry Sonnescheln, secretary to Mayor Cermak, and Judge John F. O'Connell of the Renters' court, took part. It concerned ways and means of raising funds to feed and lodge the needy, to put down any uprising with a minimum of force and to avoid anything of a sensational nature which would enable the agitators to assume martyr rôles.

Last night in Washington park a crowd of about 1,000 persons applauded the speech of a Negro who stood on a box in the center of the throng and counseled peace. Earlier another speaker had urged a group to organize and send a committee to the mayor and governor asking a portion of the $5,000,000 relief fund raised last fall and winter by Gov. Emmerson's relief committee.

In that connection, Ald. Waller was arranging for meetings to discuss unemployment relief with the governor's committee.

VIRGINIA DAWES PAYS SPEEDING FINE BY PROXY IN EVANSTON

Having pleaded "not guilty" over the telephone to a charge of driving 45 miles an hour past the Northwestern university campus on July 28, Miss Virginia Dawes, 17 year old foster daughter of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, yesterday paid by proxy a fine of $3 imposed by Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter of Evanston.

Andrew Rogers, an Evanston banker, who appeared in behalf of Miss Dawes, explained that if she was driving at the rate charged by the arresting officer she did not realize it and was sorry. Mr. Rogers pointed out that Miss Dawes had recently replaced her four cylinder roadster with an eight cylinder sedan, which might account for her error in judging her speed.

Miss Josephine Templeton, 16 years old, 1250 North Elm Tree road, Lake Forest, arrested for speeding in Evanston on Monday, was freed yesterday when she explained that she was hurrying to a dentist with her mother, who had an aching tooth.

DOCTORS PERMIT EDISON TO TAKE A 20 MILE RIDE

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Thomas A. Edison had so far recovered today from his collapse of last Saturday that his physicians permitted him to take a twenty mile automobile ride late today, in the course of which he went from his home, Llewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J., to Montclair and Verona and back again.

The outing was the first enjoyed by the aged inventor since a complication of ailments including diabetes, nephritis, and a stomach disorder brought about his collapse in his home and it strikingly evidenced his remarkable recovery.

This has been so rapid that Dr. Hubert S. Howe, chief of the attending physicians, felt it necessary to point out in his 7 o'clock bulletin tonight that "it will of necessity be slower from now on." All the bulletins throughout the day, however, clearly showed the gratification of the physicians at the 84 year old inventor's improvement.

As on preceding days since his illness became generally known messages of sympathy poured in in great numbers. Among the senders of messages were Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration; Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company; Samuel Insull, mid-western utilities magnate, and William G. Barstow, one of the Edison pioneers.

FIGHTING GANGS IS A STATE JOB, MITCHELL SAYS

W. D. MITCHELL. [© Harris & Ewing.]

A full disclosure of the government's file in the Al Capone case, which would include the terms of the unsuccessful agreement with the gangster chief, was promised by Attorney General William D. Mitchell in Washington yesterday, to be released when the case is disposed of in the courts.

In announcing that the governments intends to keep no secrets about its agreement with Capone Mr. Mitchell reiterated his position that prosecution of gangsters and racketeers is primarily the job of local governments.

Terms of Agreement Unknown.

The understanding between counsel for Capone and United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, approved by the latter's superiors, called for a recommendation as to punishment in exchange for pleas of guilty to tax evasion and conspiracy against the dry laws. The terms of the agreement, upset when Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson declared he would not be bound by it, are as yet unknown to the public.

"As long as the case is pending in the courts," said Mr. Mitchell, "no statement can be made by this office. The reasons for this are obvious. After the case is finally disposed of any information we have will be available for the press."

Judge Gets Information.

Such information would include communications between Mr. Mitchell and District Attorney Johnson, which were called for and obtained by Judge Wilkerson during Capone's hearing last week. The gangster was permitted to withdraw his plea of guilty to tax evasion, and his arraignment was set for Sept. 8, when the motion to withdraw the plea of guilty in the beer conspiracy case will be disposed of. Attorney General Mitchell, in discussing the government's aid in eliminating gangs and racketeering, declared that most federal weapons are suitable merely for "flank attacks."

"There is not much satisfaction in jailing a racketeer for violating the income tax laws when they are making gunning children in the streets," he said, referring to the recent incident in New York. "Most of the serious offenses of the gangsters are committed against the states."

Says U. S. Can't Do It All.

Commenting on the government's activity in New York and Chicago, where he said the department of justice is cooperating with immigration authorities in ferreting out deportable aliens and with the revenue agents in attacking income tax dodgers, Mr. Mitchell said:

"Every time we make a move like that people think we are taking over the entire job of extinguishing the rackets. It is not our job. Of course, we are glad to help, but there will be rackets so long as the public and the municipalities allow them to stay.

"The government is not in a position to handle local offenses even if it wanted to, and it would not be right to shoulder this responsibility upon Uncle Sam. In fact, it would be the worst thing that could happen. It would upset the whole scheme of our government."

U. S. Prepares for Capone Trial.

Government forces in Chicago went forward yesterday with plans to try Capone on the income tax charge in September. About fifty witnesses are being subpœnaed to appear Sept. 8, but District Attorney Johnson has announced that his office will require about ten days or two weeks longer to get ready for trial.

Elmer L. Irey, chief of the intelligence unit, arrived from Washington to confer with A. P. Madden, head of the local unit, which developed the tax case against Capone.

Some of the witnesses subpœnaed are Pete Penovich, Capone gambler who was a defense witness in the income tax trials of Ralph Capone and Jack Guzik; Louis La Cava, Frankie Pope and Louis Alterie, all gamblers, and Louis Cowen, Cicero publisher and bondsman. Fred Ries, whose testimony for the government clinched the prosecution of Jack Guzik, also is expected to be called. Ries was a Capone gambler for years.

Booze Case Is Reopened.

During the day the booze conspiracy case against Capone and 68 of his henchmen was reopened before the grand jury, in accordance with Judge Wilkerson's instructions, by Assistant United States Attorney Victor E. La Rue and special prohibition agents.

The court instructed the jury to determine whether the defendants could not be indicted on substantive counts carrying heavier penalties than are possible under the conspiracy indictment.

Yesterday was Chicago day at the Citizens' Military Training camp at Fort Sheridan and the 1,780 students from Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin paraded in the afternoon before the commandant, Col. Edward Davis, and the visitors. Tomorrow has been designated north shore day and Saturday governors' day. The chief executives of the three states have been invited to attend.

ROBBED OF HIS ALL, HE HELPS SEIZE BANDITS

Three new friends took Edward Hogan, 20 years old, a saxophone player from Omaha, who is in Chicago looking for a job, for a ride last night. When they had driven a large automobile far out on the south side they halted and took Hogan's suit, his watch, his $5 bank roll, and his cap.

Then, after one of the three new friends had given him an ill-fitting pair of pants, they all drove away laughing. Hogan went to the central police station and told his troubles to Lieut. Louis Klatzko, who sent Detectives John Steiv and Ralph McKenna out with him in a police car.

At Ohio street and Michigan avenue they found the robbers shooting dice and arrested them. They are Eddie Bentley, 17 years old; John Kubas, 18 years old, and John Slapikas, 20 years old. It was Bentley who had scraped an acquaintance with Hogan and invited him to ride. Slapikas, who lives at 3943 South Rockwell street, asserted that he owned the automobile. He was wearing the Hogan garments when the trio were arrested. Restitution was made at the station.

Out of Prison a Week; Seized on U. S. Charge

Clark Henderson, 48 years old, who last week completed a five year term in Joliet for passing bad checks, was held by federal authorities last night charged with passing counterfeit $10 bills. He was arrested through Kenneth Goodchild, clerk in a drug store at 1859 East 79th street, who chased him from the store after recognizing him as the man who gave him a counterfeit $10 bill a few days ago.

MADE ILL BY SLEEPING POWDER.

Edna Weaver, 34 years old, was found unconscious in her room in the Union Park hotel, 1519 Warren avenue, yesterday, and taken to the county hospital where physicians said she was suffering from an overdose of sleeping powder.

Wife Granted Separation After 15 Year Court Fight

A case which has been in the courts since Aug. 13, 1916, was settled yesterday, when Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude signed a decree of separate maintenance awarding Mrs. Ida Delson, 4024 Clarendon avenue, $25 a week from Alexander C. Delson, former knitting mills head. She married him in 1895, when he was a mill hand, and charged that after he had risen to the head of his own company through her aid he told her that he wanted a wife with more social polish.

HITS U. S. BANK AS PORTO RICO'S FARMS GO BROKE

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, P. R., Aug. 4.—Gov. Theodore Roosevelt today made public a letter to the directors of the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore urging modification of their recent foreclosure policy, which has aroused island farmers, approximately 5,000 of whom owe the bank $13,000,000.

Asserting that in his opinion the interests of the land bank and the interests of the government in a proper rehabilitation program for Porto Rico were identical, the governor said the bank should assume leadership in encouraging the borrowers in their struggles to rehabilitate farms and repay the bank. Foreclosed farms, he said, are rapidly reverting to jungle with little hope of finding buyers at this time.

Regrets Banker's Resignation.

The letter followed a cable to Baltimore in which the governor expressed regret over the resignation of E. B. Thomas as manager of the bank's Porto Rico branch because of a disagreement as to the bank's policy here. Mr. Roosevelt said Mr. Thomas' departure would be a loss to the island and bank as well, and "Thomas' policy has my unqualified indorsement and I believe it would be disastrous from the standpoint of the island, the bank and the United States to reverse it."

Thomas resigned when his recommendations for the bank's cooperation with the farmer borrowers was rejected.

Mr. Roosevelt in his letter said he did not believe the bank directors had a clear realization of the condition of the island farmers, otherwise he could not conceive the bank following a policy which he said would cause great suffering, cause resentment of a bitter and thoroughly justifiable type, and injure the bank itself and cause an unnecessary loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars ultimately recoverable.

Finds Farmers Discouraged.

His letter, the governor states, was written after a personal investigation among the farmers whom he found discouraged with some completely disheartened. Basically, the governor asserts, the land bank is treating Porto Rico as though there had been no cyclone, and disregarding the fact that it requires five years to bring a destroyed coffee farm back to a basis where it will carry its operating expenses.

"Baltimore believes that our farming situation is identical with that on the continent," the governor wrote. "I know it is common to say, 'this man can pay if he would pay. Let's put the screws on him.' Instances where this is the case in Porto Rico are practically nonexistent. The farmers had no money, kept few accounts with banks, and now cannot lay hands on money to meet mortgage payments."

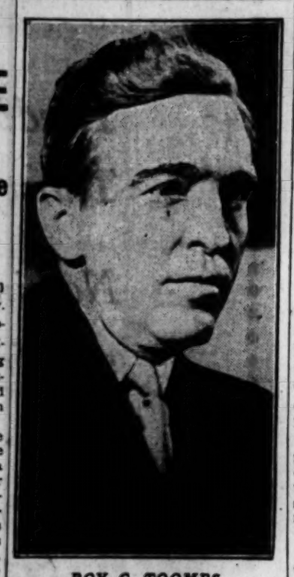
The governor's letter states that the Porto Rican hurrican relief fund commission created by congress and composed of the secretaries of war, agriculture and the treasury, which is handling a $6,000,000 rehabilitation fund, shares his views as to the island's farmers' needs. He asserts that in many instances farmers receiving rehabilitation funds have turned installments over to the land bank temporarily to stave off foreclosure, and in doing so have been compelled to cease farm work.

Newspapers, continuing severely to criticize the bank's policy, publish an instance this week of a farmer with a wife and children being ejected from his home following foreclosure, with the household belongings piled on the roadside outside his home.

GUNMEN SEIZE GIRL IN CAR.

Two gunmen yesterday robbed Vincent Leyden, 15 North Sangamon street, of $10 and drove away in his car with his companion, Miss Edna Elden, 23 years old, 522 North Avers avenue. They freed her at Sacramento boulevard and Madison street.

EX-BANKER FREED



ROY C. TOOMBS.
[Associated Press Photo.]

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Roy C. Toombs, 44, of Chicago, sentenced to three years in the Missouri penitentiary here from Feb. 26, 1930, for manipulations in connection with the collapse of the International Life Insurance company of St. Louis, was released today under the prison merit system.

Toombs' sentence would not have expired until Nov. 24, but he was given three months and a few days' time off for his service as an attendant in the prison hospital.

The former insurance man, who was convicted of issuing stock certificates in excess of the amount authorized by the charter of the company, said he would go to Winfield, Kas., to spend a few months with his mother before making any plans for the future.

FIND ARGENTINE OFFICIAL IN PAY OF SOVIET AGENCY

Raided Safe Shows He Received $33,500.

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The safe of the Yuzhamtorg, soviet South American Trade corporation, was opened today in the presence of officials of the treasury, police and navy departments after blow torches had again been used to cut through the heavy walls.

Police found the locked safe when they raided the Yuzhamtorg headquarters two days ago, arresting more than 150 people and confiscating a great number of records and documents.

Find Officials Receipt.

In the safe today, it was reported, the officials found soviet securities valued at $1,000,000, other securities and a sum of Argentine money together with a number of receipts, one of which indicated the payment of about $33,500 to Dr. Mario Guido, vice governor elect of Buenos Aires province.

Dr. Guido is a prominent radical and was the radical vice presidential candidate in the recent elections in which Honorio Pueyrredon, former Ambassador to the United States, ran on the same ticket for governor and received a plurality of votes. Dr. Pueyrredon was since requested to leave the country, and he departed for Europe a week ago.

Counsel for Soviets.

Dr. Guido has been counsel for the Yuz Amtorg, as also was Dr. Pueyrredon. The payment indicated by the receipt found today, it was said, covered fees for drafting the corporation's charter.

Police indicated that many of the approximately 100 persons who are still held after having been arrested in the Yuzhamtorg raid would be released immediately.

Spanish Cities Inaugurate Dole for the Unemployed

MADRID, Aug. 4.—(AP)—For the first time since the advent of the republic, Madrid and various other cities of Spain began paying a dole to unemployed workers today. Spain has no law providing for a dole, but the municipal governments of many cities voted to provide from 45 to 70 cents a day for the idle.

J. M. PATTERSON IN PLANE SMASHUP, BUT CLIMBS OUT UNHURT

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—J. M. Patterson, his pilot, Frederick Becker, and mechanic, Charles Sutter, escaped with a slight shaking up when the publisher's twin-engine Sikorsky-38 amphibion plane cracked up this afternoon in taking off from Roosevelt field, L. I., for the Patterson home at Ossining, N. Y.

"It was simply a poor take-off," said the publisher, "I was at the controls. I have flown the S-38 about forty or fifty hours. It was my first crack-up. No one was hurt."

The victims of the mishap surveyed the wreckage a few moments then the publisher of the New York News ordered his speedy Laird biplane out on the line and they took off at once for Ossining.

On the field at the time was his daughter, Miss Alicia Patterson, a pilot herself. The Sikorsky was demolished.

CHINESE SUITOR IS NEW CLEW IN SLAYING CASE

Willy Wong, a Chinese admirer of Mrs. Bernice O'Connor, 24 years old, the cigaret girl who shot and killed her divorced husband, Edward, when he forced his way into her apartment at 4330 Lake Park avenue on July 31, was sought by the police yesterday.

According to a statement made to Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Johnson by Mrs. O'Connor's sister, who is married to a Chinese by the name of Yepp, Wong was with Mrs. O'Connor shortly before the shooting.

On the night O'Connor was killed, according to Mrs. Yepp's story, the two sisters and the two Chinese went out together in Wong's automobile. After the drive Yepp and his wife were taken to their home on Warren avenue and Wong left to take Mrs. O'Connor to her apartment. It was a few hours later that the shooting occurred, and since that time Wong is reported to have absented himself from the Pershing hotel, where he lived.

To give police further time to investigate, Assistant State's Attorney Johnson requested and was granted a continuance of Mrs. O'Connor's case until Aug. 10 by Judge John J. Rooney in the felony court.

SPAIN NIPS PLOT TO PUT ALFONSO'S SON ON THRONE

Scheme for Revolt Traced to Naval Officer.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Aug. 4.—The first monarchist conspiracy against the republic was uncovered today, according to reliable information reaching THE TRIBUNE.

Drastic measures were taken tonight aboard the cruiser Almirante Cervera at Santander which squelched what was believed to be a plot to declare for the exiled Bourbons and particularly for Prince Don Juan, in favor of whom Alfonso abdicated, and to launch a revolt in northern Spain.

Republic's Sleuths Out.

The government was mum tonight, but a note is expected to be issued tomorrow telling exactly what kind of a move was on foot aboard the warship. The republic's sleuths have been on the trail for the last week of monarchist agents who were supposed to have been supplied with funds which were raised by Spanish aristocrats in Paris to support Alfonso's third and healthiest son. One of these was traced to an officer on the Almirante Cervera.

The navy, unlike the bourgeoise army, is fashionable, and many of the officers, by birth and breeding, are still monarchists in their sympathy. Many of them were the former king's most intimate friends and who remained in the navy at Alfonso's express orders after the advent of the republic. The presence of monarchist officers, which had already given rise to several mutinies among fervently republican crews on certain ships was known.

Trouble Looms for Republic.

A clandestine monarchist paper appeared in Madrid and strangely enough it was published by the same persons who got out a republican organ some months ago.

The monarchist machinations in northern Spain stirred up a real nightmare. In Andalusia, the communists and syndicalists are at it again trying to create more trouble for the republic. Minister of Interior Maura tonight said that signs of a new attempt by the hungry peasantry to rise were appearing over the horizon. The military and civil authorities have been ordered to stand by and be ready to clamp on martial law at the first outbreak.

A SOCIETY GIRL ASKS $250,000 FROM AUTO MAN

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Ross W. Judson, former chairman of the board of directors of the Continental Motor corporation, is named defendant in a suit for $250,000 started by praecipe in the Wayne Circuit court. Gertrude Eugenie Salmon, well known in society circles is named as the plaintiff.

Peter Boyle, attorney for Miss Salmon and Herbert V. Barbour, attorney for Judson both have declined to make statements regarding the suit.

Mr. Judson, who is married, retired from the directorate of the Continental Motor corporation last October. Miss Salmon is the daughter of Charles B. Salmon, ink manufacturer. She is 22 years old.

"Take a squint at this Ball and Bottle Test.. you can SEE that New Iso-Vis Stands Up"

RESULTS

1 Iso-Vis Motor Oil did not thin out from dilution.

2 During the entire test of 9,000 miles, the engines and chassis of all cars were lubricated effectively.

3 Oil Added: only 68/100 of a quart—average for all cars—of Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy) in 1,000 mile test at 30 miles per hour.

WATCH FOR THE ISO-VIS TEST CARS

15 Iso-Vis test cars used at Indianapolis Speedway in intensive lubrication study conducted by A. A. A. are now on individual tours to auto dealers from Michigan to Montana. Watch for them.

The more body an oil has, the slower the ball drops. Note that used New Iso-Vis (Tube 2) has practically the same body as the fresh oil (Tube 1), while used "x" oil (Tube 3) has thinned out decidedly.

"IF YOU want the low down on a motor oil these little steel balls certainly give it to you. Maybe they'll hand you a jolt like they did me.

"I thought I knew something about motor oils, but this test changed my mind mighty quick. From now on I'm for New Iso-Vis—first, last and all the time."

You, too, will be for New Iso-Vis first, last and all the time when you see this test with oil from your own car. Put in a fill of New Iso-Vis. When it's time to drain go into any Standard Oil Service Station or dealer and use this oil in the Ball and Bottle Test. This proof will convince you!

New ISO-VIS MOTOR OIL 30¢ A QUART

New Polarine also is refined by our new process—giving it an efficiency which is exceeded only by New Iso-Vis. The price is 25c a quart

STATE-ST. GROUP DENIED PLEA IN SUBWAY SUIT

Refuse Petition to Enter Injunction Case.

About 1,000 owners of $14,000,000 worth of real estate involved in the subway assessment sought to intervene yesterday in the transportation litigation pending before Judge William J. Lindsay of the Superior court. The court refused to accept the petition.

JUDGE LINDSAY.

This suit, started by two taxpayers, Mrs. Elizabeth M. Bass and Augustus E. Olsdn, is a plea for an injunction to restrain the city from spending any money on subway plans or construction, as provided for in the transportation program. Through their attorneys, Stephen A. Foster and Frank E. Harkness, the original complainants have questioned the validity of the enabling legislation, the subsequent franchise ordinance and to some extent the subway ordinance.

Another Suit Attacks Subways.

The subway ordinance is being attacked directly in proceedings before Judge Rose Hall by these 1,000 property owners and others involved in the State street subway. Homer Cooper of the law firm of Scott, MacLeish and Falk, representing them, asked yesterday for permission to file an intervening petition before Judge Lindsay.

"In the litigation before this court," said Mr. Cooper, "it is alleged by the complainants that the subway is not a local improvement, and consequently cannot be built by special assessment. In this proceeding the state supreme court may pass upon that question, without hearing from my clients.

"We are prepared with traffic engineers, electrical engineers, subway engineers, architects, soil and real estate experts and economists to submit evidence on this issue. Without this evidence, we believe that a fair decision is impossible."

Fisher Opposes Move.

"It is unthinkable," replied Attorney Walter L. Fisher representing the city, "that at this late date, we should start taking evidence in this suit to determine whether the State street subway ordinance is valid."

The court then denied the Cooper motion to intervene.

Attorneys for the city and Mr. Harkness have agreed upon a stipulation of the facts in the original case, which they submitted to the court yesterday. Judge Lindsay indicated that he will give his decision within a short time, perhaps today. Then this case can be appealed to the State Supreme court.

Siamese Prince, Princess and Son Leave for West

Prince and Princess Svasti of Siam and their son, Prince Arjuna, paid their adieus to Chicago yesterday as they boarded the Columbine of the Chicago and North Western railway westward bound. The party will go direct to Denver for a tour of the Colorado rockies, will also go on to Salt Lake City, visit Yellowstone National park, Zion and Bryce canyons and then to Los Angeles. They expect to join the king and queen of Siam at Vancouver before sailing for their native land.

Policeman Dies Suddenly in Town Hall Station

Policeman James H. Denniger, 55 years old, fell dead of heart disease yesterday in the squad room at the Town Hall station. He had been a member of the police force for twenty years. His widow and a daughter, who live at 3348 North Keating avenue, survive.

DIVORCED

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr.

VANDERBILTS ARE DIVORCED BY RENO COURT

Wife Given Decree at Secret Hearing.

Reno, Nev., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—A divorce was granted here today to Mary Weir Vanderbilt from Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., on grounds of mental cruelty. It was the second divorce for both parties, who met in Reno while they were seeking divorce from other mates and who married here after they had obtained their marital freedom.

The divorce went to Mrs. Vanderbilt on her cross-complaint, which alleged extreme cruelty and which had been filed by her after her husband had filed action for divorce on similar grounds.

The bill of particulars was not made public, and today's trial was behind closed doors.

Vanderbilt filed for divorce here a few weeks after he and his second wife returned to Reno to make their home.

Peter Arno Mentioned.

The suit closely followed a statement issued by his attorney that he had gone "gunning" for Peter Arno, caricaturist, after he had seen Arno and Mrs. Vanderbilt returning from a late party.

Just before Mrs. Vanderbilt went into court, attorneys for her and for her husband issued a joint statement which said:

"All property rights and interests have been amicably adjusted between the parties."

It is understood that Mrs. Vanderbilt is to receive alimony in the amount of more than $500 a month and that she has waived any rights to any property of Vanderbilt or any inheritance he may receive.

The case drew a motley assemblage of townsfolk, tourists, ranchers and divorce colonists to the courthouse. But Mrs. Vanderbilt, near tears, eluded them by slipping out through the judge's chambers.

She paused a moment on the courthouse steps to say that she had absolutely nothing to say, then drove away with friends. It was reported she plans to leave Reno immediately. She was wearing a smart black and gold frock and a close fitting black straw hat.

Vanderbilt was more talkative. Before the case was heard he declared at his home:

"I have been up all night. I wanted to get away from here on this day, but I decided to stick it out. I'm glad it's all over.

He denied a reported attempt on his part to effect a reconciliation last night, saying: "We just wished each other good luck over the phone."

For the last three weeks Vanderbilt's home here has been the scene of parties every night and 40 to 50 persons attending. Vanderbilt has been assisted in his entertaining by Craig Kershow, his secretary, and Pietro Marisca, his Sicilian barber, bartender, bodyguard and valet.

"It's easier to forget when there are a lot of people around," Vanderbilt said. "But it's a pace that kills. A diet of eggs and milk is all that's keeping me going. But we'll have a big party tonight."

Vanderbilt came here about four years ago and his first wife divorced him. Then he married Mary Weir Logan on July 3, 1928, she having shortly before that date obtained a divorce from Waldo Hancock Logan, Chicago broker.

NO! All Cars Are Not Alike—

Essex is a Super-Six

With Exclusive Features of Super-Six Design and Super-Six Performance

Selective FREE WHEELING Further Emphasizes the Difference

All who know the facts recognize that in performance, smoothness and reliability the Super-Six principle gives Essex a distinction that cannot be likened to any other car. With it, vibration is reduced to nil.

No motor was ever so well known. None has ever shared its fame for reliability. On that one score Essex, because it alone can use the Super-Six, stands distinctive in the six-cylinder field.

But the difference is not limited to its Super-Six motor and Super-Six performance.

Now Essex includes Selective Free Wheeling. That adds another joyous motoring sensation. Driving takes on a new zest. You free wheel in traffic to the almost total elimination of gear operation. You shift gears in utter silence without need to use the clutch.

In its price field it is also the largest car. It is inches longer—seats are inches wider—leg room is greater—and everyone who examines it closely also finds it more carefully and finely built in respect to chassis detail and body appointments.

In these days men are critical in their purchases. It is well to inquire into the facts and to know just how deep and well-grounded are the qualities they seek. Essex quality goes beyond its motor, fittings and upholstering. It goes to the very foundation. Isn't it a great satisfaction to know that you can get such assured quality in a car so easy to own?

No, all cars are not alike.

Coach or Business Coupe $595, Standard Sedan $695, Sport Roadster $725, Town Sedan $735, Touring Sedan $775, Special Sedan $855, 7-Pass. Sedan (long wheelbase) $895—Selective Free Wheeling $35 additional. All prices f. o. b. Detroit—special equipment extra.

175 BUILDERS AFTER CHICAGO POSTOFFICE JOB

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The fat $15,000,000 contract for the construction of the new Chicago postoffice has attracted the attention of 175 contractors and builders, the treasury department disclosed today. Not all of the firms that have asked for information regarding the new structure are expected to submit proposals, although department officials believe that at least twenty bona fide bids will be submitted for the construction of the building itself, while another twenty contractors will compete for the contract to install the mechanical equipment.

Up to noon today the contractor's office in the treasury building had forwarded 175 sets of blueprints to prospective bidders, the queries coming from all sections of the United States. The unusual size of the structure, however, will deter a large number from actually bidding for the contact. Officials estimate that every contractor who submits a bid will have to spend from $5,000 to $7,000 of his own money in preparatory work on his proposal. When completed the new Chicago structure will be the largest postoffice building in the world, according to previous announcements made by government officials.

Begin Work Next Fall.

Bids for the Chicago postal structure are scheduled to be opened the first of next week at the treasury. Postal and treasury officials promise that the contract will be let and work on the building begun early in the fall. No structure on the government's list of building projects has been held up so much by governmental indecision and delay as this building.

President Hoover announced today that the value of public buildings, contracted for or in process of being contracted for on July 15, amounted to 179 million dollars as compared with 140 millions on May 15. Administration officials said the treasury would have more than 200 million dollars worth of buildings under contract by Oct. 1.

The treasury and postoffice public building program calls for the eventual expenditure of about 700 millions.

May Spend 125 Millions This Year.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, last, the treasury expended $66,000,000 on building construction work. The present estimates call for the expenditure of 125 million during the current year. Whether this amount is spent will depend on the success of the treasury in overcoming red tape and getting buildings on the market.

On July 15, the White House stated, the treasury had completed 97 buildings, had 192 under contract, had sixty-one in process of being contracted for, and had sites acquired and plans completed for 19 more. In addition, according to the report, sites for 256 others were in process of purchase.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The distribution of "wine bricks," a new form of grape product which, it is charged, may be converted into wine through ordinary processes of nature, is receiving consideration from the justice department, along with other grape concentrates.

Officials said no new legislation to restrict the distribution of wine concentrates was under consideration, although they did not know what bills congressmen with prohibition leanings might introduce at the next session.

With the "wine bricks," as well as with other grape concentrates, the question of law violation hinges on whether the sale is made with the knowledge and intent of the seller that the law is to be violated. Officials admitted that this is difficult to prove.

The wine bricks are being sold in New York like hot cakes.

New York Publisher and Reporter in Libel Case

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Magistrate Overton Harris today issued four summonses requiring the appearance of J. M. Patterson, president of the News Syndicate Company, Inc., and Sidney Sutherland, Daily News staff writer, in court to answer charges of libel brought by the mother and stepfather of the late Starr Faithfull.

The summonses were returnable Thursday. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Faithfull, who live in Greenwich Village, asked to have warrants issued for the two newspapermen, but Magistrate Harris refused. He said they had a right to offer in court evidence to support the truth of a series of articles regarding the life and death of Starr Faithfull appearing in the Daily News. The Faithfulls said they would instigate a prosecution for criminal libel.

Harry H. Van Aken, attorney for the two men, said the summonses having not been served; he contemplated no action until that had been done.

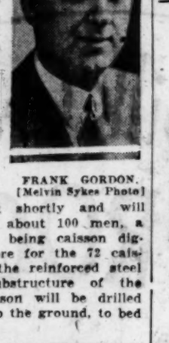
HOSPITAL WORKERS FLEE FIRE.

Twenty cooks and scrub women were routed from their beds in the service annex of the West Side hospital, 1844 West Harrison street, early yesterday when fire, caused by the spontaneous combustion of several mattresses kept in the storeroom, sent clouds of smoke through the building.

LET $288,648 CONTRACTS FOR BRIDGE APPROACH

Work to Be Started Soon on Outer Drive Link.

Contracts for almost $300,000 worth of work on the north approach of the new outer drive bridge across the Chicago river were let yesterday by the Lincoln park commissioners. The project calls for the construction of a 200 foot concrete strip from the river to the Ogden slip.



FRANK GORDON. [Melvin Sykes Photo]

The Al Johnson Construction company, 520 East North Water street, was awarded the contracts on a low bid of $288,698. Work will start shortly and will provide jobs for about 100 men, a number of these being caisson diggers who will bore for the 72 caissons to support the reinforced steel and concrete substructure of the strip. Each caisson will be drilled about 100 feet into the ground, to bed rock.

Raps Judge for Leniency.

In addition to the awarding of contracts, the board passed a resolution condemning the lenient treatment being given Lincoln Park speeders by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman of the Town Hall court. The resolution referred this reported leniency to Chief Justice John Sonsteby and urged greater cooperation between Judge Edelman and the park police force.

The resolution charged that "certain flagrant cases of speeding have been brought to the attention of the court and the defendants were either discharged or dismissed with inadequate fines." To support the latter contention the board cites six cases of men arrested while driving from 50 to 74 miles an hour through the park and only one of these was fined—$1.

Speeders Endanger Lives.

"None of the board members ever 'fix' speeding tickets," said President Warren Wright. "It is against our policy. Several serious accidents have resulted from speeding in the park and last year four policemen were killed and five were injured when they jeopardized their lives attempting to stop speeders. Safety should be demonstrated for the hundreds of thousands of persons who visit the park. Their lives are continually endangered by speeding motorists."

A third action of the board yesterday was the election of Frank M. Gordon, 1430 Lake Shore drive, as treasurer. Mr. Gordon is vice president of the First National bank and will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George Woodruff.

VICE PRESIDENCY NO LURE; MOSES SEEKS 4TH SENATE TERM

Concord, N. H., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Senator George H. Moses [Rep., N. H.] announced today he would seek a fourth term. He made it plain that the Vice Presidency had no attractions for him. Senator Moses predicted that Newton D. Baker, secretary of war under President Wilson, would be a compromise Democratic candidate for the Presidency. He had previously announced his conviction that President Hoover would receive the Republican nomination.

LOWER PRICES CUT NAVY AND ARMY COSTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—National defense savings due to falling commodity costs and a generally lower cost of living are expected to amount to approximately $10,000,000 for the 1932 fiscal year.

Through a reduction in the daily ration cost officials of the army, navy and marine corps expects to save $8,000,000. Additional savings will be effected through the purchase of uniforms and shoes at considerably lower prices than prevailed a year ago. It is understood the navy saved $2,000,000 through the purchase of fuel oil at prices far lower than prevailed when the annual appropriation bills were passed by congress.

Although ration costs will be slashed, officials state that no change will be made in the amount and quality of food served.

ARTHUR DAVIS SEES HAPPIER ERA FOR TRADE

Holds Standard of Living Will Bring Buyers.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Increasing industry and education and the influence of better things themselves, will continue to raise the standards of living in this country and prosperity will come after a cycle ending with such a depdession as the present.

These predictions, made yesterday by Arthur Davis, president of the Davis company, were cheered by the hundreds of merchants from the four corners of the country who are attending the Interstate Merchants council at the Palmer house.

"So long as men can appreciate and demand the things that others produce, and are willing to render an equivalent for them in terms of their own labor, just so long will commerce and industry thrive in this land of opportunity," Mr. Davis asserted in his address at the luncheon gathering.

"Improvement Must Go On."

"The great cycle of improvement must go on until every man who deserves to be will be better fed, better housed, better equipped, better trained, better clothed, better educated.

"Our opportunity, as citizens of this country, and as merchants, and manufacturers, and distributors, is to have a part in bringing all this to pass. Our part can be as big and as satisfying as we have the ability and will to make it."

Recalling the depression period of 1920 and 1921, Mr. Davis pointed out that after it passed there followed perhaps the greatest period of prosperity this country has ever known.

"But," he added, "I am not one to say it was the greatest we shall ever know. I haven't anything upon which to base a belief that we have passed the peak of the possibilities of this country for the demand for good merchandise.

"Standards Must Continue."

"The American standard of living, in which the average family has tastes and desires and conveniences formerly enjoyed only by a few, must continue. And the replacement of such things will create a demand which will sooner or later build up our lagging trade and commerce to a point worthy of our best hopes and endeavors.

"Next to having the right kind of merchandise, the foundation of good business is having enough of it at the right time. The faults of merchants in this respect seem to run in cycles, the way they say business depressions do. At any rate, the faults of a generation ago are not the faults of today.

"This is a country of many and great and rapid changes. Over an inconceivable area there are natural resources awaiting discovery and development. The population is steadily increasing at the rate of 16 to 20 per cent every ten years. It requires but the simplest of calculations to show that in all probability many of those sitting in this room will still be in active business when this country shall have attained a population of about 200,000,000.

Predicts Increasing Demands.

"All this while the present and then existing population will be acquiring an ever increasing appreciaton of the good things of life, and an ever increasing determination to have them. And this will make a truly vast amount of business yet to be done—vast beyond present comprehension."

M. S. Szymczak, city comptroller, welcomed the visitors at the luncheon on behalf of Mayor Cermak. He assured them that the city is being adjusted to current conditions just as a business would be under similar circumstances, and that Chicago eventually will be put on a cash basis.

Demands Hoover Take Drastic Action.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 4.—(AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor today warned of "a rebellion of the army of unemployed which will upset our present political system unless industry and government coöperate with labor" in the current industrial depression. Green spoke before the 46th annual convention of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor.

WILLIAM GREEN.

Stressing the seriousness of the unemployment situation, President Green asked: "Are we going to make it necessary for workers to raid stores because their children are starving? Can the financiers and the wealthy feel secure in their homes when millions are hungry?"

Distribution of work so that every man shall have his share, even if it were necessary to reduce the work week to three days, maintenance of the present wage scale, and expenditure of government moneys for public works were cited by Green as means of solving the unemployment problem.

Says Balance Is Wrong.

"There must be something wrong with a land of such resources as ours," he continued, "where there are six million persons out of work and 25 million others dependent upon them for support. The balance is wrong and our whole economic structure is affected. The duty rests upon society to balance it so that this suffering may be remedied.

"Some say that the government owes these workers a living. No, it does not. But it does owe them this obligation. Organized labor proposes that the one person clothed with the ability to speak for the 120 millions of people of this nation call to the capital city the economists of our nation for the purpose of dealing with this problem of unemployment.

President Hoover, Green said, "should urge, should insist, he should do more than this, he should command that these leaders of industry come and sit in the conference room at the capital city to study and to make plans to overcome this situation."

"Organized labor will tell industry how to do it if they do not know themselves," Green said. "While 6,000,000 are idle there are still between 20,000,000 and 40,000,000 employed. But the man who is idle can't buy. And the other 20,000,000 refuse to buy to their maximum capacity because of fear that they may be idle tomorrow.

"We can make these 20,000,000 purchase when and if their employers tell them that no matter what happens, they are secure in their jobs. There is nothing else that could have such a magic effect."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The newly reorganized federal employment system found jobs for 281,769 workers between April 1 and July 31, Secretary of Labor Doak reported to President Hoover today.

WILLIAM N. DOAK. (Harris & Ewing.)

The secretary assured the President the service would have an appreciable effect on the unemployment situation during the coming winter. Including the placements made by coöperating agencies, 638,689 workers were provided with jobs in the four month period since the service was reorganized and expanded.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MR. COOLIDGE AS A STATESMAN.

When Calvin Coolidge was President he seemed at times a trifle odd with a weakened philosophy of economy. He was at high tide of the new era and there never was to be an ebb. New but immutable laws had been discovered and there never was to be a diminution of the golden flood. Nevertheless, the Vermonter said that economy in government was the requisite of its safety. He said it every time he saw an opportunity and that was three or four times a week. This was regarded as atavistic. A New Englander with billions of government funds surging about him could not shake off the principles of the old order. He probably would be found making paper squibs to save the White House matches.

Mr. Coolidge now does not seem so odd. He has more the appearance of one of the world's most thoughtful statesmen. When prodigality was being advanced as the highest economic law of politics and when the country's income seemed to justify any extravaganza of expenditure he had his finger pointed at the danger spot. He was the only man in government here or in other countries, with the exception of France, who kept his head and was thinking straight.

He knew that political enterprise could not waste the substance of the country without finally prostrating its private enterprise and reducing its political organization to chaos. Proof of his wisdom is offered by bankrupt nations, crediteless states, broken cities, payless public employés and busted taxpayers, from the city of Chicago to the dominion of Australia. The new era proved to be just some more of the old. The old principles asserted that the new were false. Prodigality did not remain a prince nor was thrift a pauper nor prudence an unworthy attribute. The United States has seen a surplus fade into a deficit. It has found many of its states as unable to take care of their indigent citizens as others of its states are unwilling to bear their own local expenditures. Half the civilized world can't find its way out of the wreck of its public finances or confidently predict the recovery of its flattened out citizenship.

We are beginning to see that Coolidge was right. We must return to the Coolidge methods. Perhaps we must return to Coolidge.

DISORDER SPREADS IN CHINA.

THE TRIBUNE'S correspondent at Peiping reports a serious spread of crime and disorder in northern China. The Chinese are not normally given to crimes of violence, but Mr. Dailey says that local authorities are unable to cope with present conditions. Meantime military operations have been expanding and Red activities increasing. Serious fighting in north China last week and reports of advances by the Cantonese rebels in the south and a reappearance of Red bands on the Yangtze indicate a situation profoundly discouraging to every one who realizes that peace is the overshadowing need of China. Floods and crop losses in several provinces are intensifying the need, and in the warfare going on in the south and north there is no prospect of any solution unless the government and its Manchurian ally can soon achieve decisive victories. If the rebels can keep the field, even though they do not succeed in defeating the armies of the Nanking government, they can prevent the extension of responsible administration in many provinces the resources of which are needed by Nanking. If the northern rebels are able to drive Chang out of Peiping and win over Shantung while the Cantonese rebels hold the south, they may break the Nanking government, but when that is accomplished they are virtually certain to disagree among themselves. They have, it is said, little or nothing in common except their determination to destroy the Chiang Kai-shek-Soong group, and when that is done will not be able to create a common instrumentality of government for the nation. They include radicals and reactionaries and ambitious leaders whose object is power and wealth for themselves.

The leaders of the Nanking government have been charged with graft and the ambition to entrench themselves permanently in power, and outsiders are in no position to judge whether or to what extent these accusations are true. But it has seemed, and still seems, that they represent the most likely agency of pacification and reconstruction in China, and on this ground their government has been formally recognized by the United States and other principal powers. But the moral support thus given has not been sufficient to offset the results of continued disorder in China, so that conditions have grown worse rather than better.

Chinese chaos, and it is hardly less than chaos, is undoubtedly one of the factors in world depression. Mr. Dailey tells us that the new census gives the present population of China as 478,418,000, a good fourth of the human race, and this indicates an increase in 20 years of about 140,000,000, with no signs of a check in this rate in spite of the wars and famines of recent years. The stabilization of so large a proportion of the world's population, now living on the narrowest margin of subsistence, would make China perhaps the greatest market in the world for goods, services, and money. But its possibilities depend upon the establishment of a general and assured peace under a strong and fully responsible government. The prospect of such an accomplishment seems distant, and that is a tragedy for China and a misfortune for the rest of the world.

WHERE THE TAXES GO.

The federal department of agriculture has nearly 28,000 employés and costs the taxpayers $177,000,000 a year. Is it worth the money? Mr. Henning writing from Washington says it is generally conceded that the number of government employés is too large by anywhere from 10 to 33 per cent. Certainly the department of agriculture must be a principal offender.

The department seems to be organized as if it were the only organization in the country devoted to the scientific study of agricultural problems. The assumption is absurd. Virtually every state in the Union has its agricultural college, staffed by competent scientists and equipped to take the new discoveries to the farmers with a minimum of wasted effort and money. Agricultural research directed from Washington may have had its usefulness in the days before crop surpluses became a serious problem and before the states went into the business of agricultural research in a large way. Now the need for the federal bureaus has pretty largely disappeared. The fact ought to be reflected in sharply reduced appropriations.

Then there is the department's extension service, which "cooperates with the state agricultural colleges in the conduct of extension work in agriculture and home economics . . . and acts as an agency for coördinating the extension activities of the several bureaus of the department with similar work carried on by the state agricultural colleges." This bureau provides jobs for 5,831 men and women and costs the taxpayers $9,199,000. If the states are not competent to do their own extension work the United States government ought not to do it for them. And if the states do not care to pay the cost of extension work it is certainly not the business of the federal government to foot the bill or any part of it.

The bureau of agricultural economics employs 2,600 men and women and costs nearly $6,000,000 a year. It is not wholly useless, but much of its work could be dispensed with without loss to farmers or any one else.

The bureau of home economics is devised to instruct the farmer and his family in what they should eat and wear and how the home should be equipped and decorated. It supplies this information through bulletins and newspaper and magazine articles. It has 100 employés and it costs $160,000. It is not the business of the federal government to perform any of these functions. The United States government was not created to serve as dietitian to the population or as a missionary society to teach the heathen farmer how to live like a Christian. This bureau, like others in the department, ought to be abolished.

BEER UNDER VOLSTEAD.

The barley growers of the grain states would do well to look about in Washington for a capable prohibition firebrand in the department of justice or the prohibition unit. Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt must have had a successor. Such person, when found, should be retained by a maltsters' coöperative and then an approach should be made to the farm board to find a friend or two who can take as broad a view of 4 per cent beer as has been taken of 12 per cent Burgundy.

With a government subsidy and a benediction the malt and hops industry could emerge from its semi-furtive state of mind and become an endowed institution. It would do much better with the sanction and approval of Volstead than under the restless attempts of government agents to find some way of stopping the sale of home brew materials. It now seems to be the dry government's contention that the malt beverages do not contain enough alcohol. They seldom run to 4 per cent and a higher content in beer is not desired by most of its users. They want a pleasant, palatable beverage, not a strong intoxicant. California grape products are said to get up in the neighborhood of 20 per cent. Twelve is a heady wine. It is unreasonable of a Volstead government to insist upon such a high content. A 3 or 4 per cent beer is just as worthy of eighteenth amendment support and endowment and if the grain growers presented their case politically they might get somewhere. After all, California is only one state in the electoral column and it need have no more grace under prohibition than a grain state.

Editorial of the Day

THE LAST MUSKETEER.

[Providence Bulletin.]

It was Cochet, the last of the three musketeers who brought the world's tennis laurels to France and kept them there for five years, Cochet who saved the day for France in the matches just over. He played brilliantly, especially in those moments where the cool and even fire of his British opponent threatened disaster.

At these times he displayed his real genius. His anticipation of shots was uncanny. Wherever they landed there the energetic little Frenchman unfolded himself and shrewdly returned them. It was his tennis sense which availed against the superb skill of his opponent.

This same incalculable individualism displayed by the three French tennis champions has led to the generalization that they epitomize modern France—nervous, energetic, shrewd, most clear headed in moments of peril. A dramatic generalization, and, we are convinced, a false one.

They were just three exceptional athletes brought together by the eccentricity of time, which so often cements a brilliant partnership. Two of these famous fellows are done. Lacoste has renounced the strenuous game for more leisurely ones. Borotra's fire, as these recent matches prove, is waning. Cochet remains.

There are no promising youngsters coming on in France "to epitomize the national genius." The three musketeers, like their illustrious predecessors, have made romantic history and are passing. They have enthralled the sport world. There is a note of melancholy in the dissolution of this splendid triumvirate, a sentiment which undoubtedly has added to the poignancy of Cochet's victory.

DUSTING POWDERS.

WHAT is written here applies to hot weather practice.

It is almost in the nature of things for the feet to swell somewhat in hot weather, though in many the increase is not great enough to attract attention. When the swelling is noticeable and no organic disease is present to serve as an explanation, and tight garters and bands cannot be used as an alibi, we say that local acidosis is the cause. If that be true there is no reason for thinking that a foot powder serves to remove the cause, but there is an abundance of experience proving that it relieves the symptoms.

A generation ago a certain firm built up an enormous business for a foot powder. The use of this powder did promote foot comfort, though none of its constituents were absorbed and the effects were practically altogether mechanical. Possibly any other powder would have done as well.

Dusting the inside of the shoes and dusting the feet before putting on the socks will go a long way toward preventing burning of the feet, painful feet where the pain is in the skin, and those thickenings of the skin that we call calluses and corns. It will benefit soreness and burning of the skin element of a bunion. I have a suspicion that plenty of powder thus used is of value in the prevention and cure of those blisters on the feet that develop in hot weather, and that are commonly known as pompholyx. There is no reason for thinking it will help in ringworm of the feet.

Perhaps the formula of the powder is not a matter of much consequence. A very smooth powder is better than the rougher kind, and one that is mildly bactericidal has advantages.

The use of dusting powders on the skin is helpful in preventing and curing prickly heat. Much the most important element in the causation of this annoying skin trouble is soaking the skin with sweat. The best single measure for preventing it is to keep the air below the temperature at which perspiration rolls out. The next most important measure for control is prompt removal of sweat soaked garments. Covering the skin with a smooth, bland powder is of service. Some use powdered soda for the purpose. This is not good practice. The sweat converts the powder into a strong alkaline solution that is harmful to the skin cells. A simple dusting powder is better.

INSULIN.

M. D. writes:

1. Can one make a home sugar test of the urine?

2. What do you think of insulin injections as an aid in increasing one's weight.

REPLY.

1. Start with some Benedict's solution and a test tube. Pour about one-half inch of the blue solution in the test tube. Heat it to a boil. If the solution loses its blue color it is not to be used.

Add 5 to 10 drops of urine to the hot solution. If sugar is present the color of the solution will change from blue to yellow, or reddish yellow, and a precipitate will be thrown down.

2. It is not practicable. The need does not justify the trouble and expense. If the thinness is due to a disease, the cause should be removed, if it can be. If it is due to nervousness, lack of sleep, lack of regular habits, the proper policy is to correct the faulty habits. Aside from those who are emaciated because of disease, the lean are lucky. They have lower death rates than the fat. They live longer, stand operations better, overcome emergencies better, are more comfortable, have more endurance, and are less subject to disease. Where is there a place left for the use of insulin?

CAMPHORATED OIL FOR BREASTS.

Mrs. C. writes: Will massaging the breasts with camphorated oil and then steaming them enlarge same permanently?

REPLY.

No. Some people use camphorated oil for just the opposite purpose.

"A" also claims that English settlers are the real Americans. "B" claims that Indians are full blooded and real Americans, and being such don't need any citizenship papers; also that English settlers cannot be real Americans. Who is right? H. M.

You are confusing racial inheritance with citizenship. The term "full blooded Americans" has no definite legal significance. Either Indians or English settlers can become citizens but are not necessarily citizens.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

BARNYARD CHORUS.

Chicago, July 20.—[Friend of the People.]—For the last two weeks a neighbor's howling dog has kept us awake at night. I talked to this man and he admitted that his dog howls and promised to keep him in the basement until he could build a kennel for him. He has at least three other dogs that sometimes join in the chorus. Now he has built a chicken coop and we have crowing mixed with this other din. Hope you can do something to help us catch up on our sleep. A. W. A.

One of our officers interviewed the owner of the dogs and roosters, and he informed the officer that he will try to eliminate further cause for complaint of this nature. Instructions to all members of the district have been issued to give special attention during their tour of duty to see that there is no further cause for complaint.

BEACH PARTIES.

Chicago, July 20.—[Friend of the People.]—Have we, who live on Loyola and North Shore avenues, bordering on the beach at the east end of Albion avenue, any recourse from the noise of rowdy bathers and beach parties that last well past midnight every night? Bathers park their cars directly under our windows in the alleys back of the above streets, then depart late in the night, with much gas and noise. Your help will be appreciated. A. M.

A patrolman has been assigned from 4 p. m. to midnight to keep order on the beach in question and regulate the cars that park in the vicinity. Also, the Ford auto squad will visit this beach after midnight, in an effort to stop any and all disturbances.

Acting Commissioner of Police.

It is the luminous blossoming
Of those infinite flowers of gold
In the purple meadows of night;
The mystic and delicate hovering
Of twilight on quiet waters.

It is the sighing of roses uttered in fragrance;
The ecstasy of lifted wings
That seek the radiant halls of the air at sunrise;
The leap of a flame in the darkness.

It is the aching of weighted clouds
To loose their burdens of silver over the earth;
The fathomless passion of seas,
Forever spending itself—yet never spent.

It is the groping hunger of the heart
To break through the human doom of loneliness;
It is the spirit's immemorial cry:
"O Love, Love, Love!

MICHIGAN WILL REDUCE property valuations for taxing purposes nearly $600,000,000. That naturally will reduce the amount of taxes collected unless the rate is raised. Even to one not an expert on economics, it would seem wiser in periods such as the present to lower taxes rather than seek new means of taxation for more revenue. Sooner or later Illinois tax spending bodies will learn they cannot spend money which cannot be raised. Exorbitant taxes right now are one of the greatest problems facing small home owners and farmers. Votes at the next election may convince our tax spenders in a manner that no other method would.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 5, 1915.

LONDON.—The entire British empire today entered into a solemn pledge to fight the war to a bitter end and until England's enemies go down to definite defeat. In every corner of the dominions special services were held commemorating the first anniversary of Great Britain's declaration of war against Germany. Identical resolutions were adopted at hundreds of public meetings held throughout the empire expressing inflexible determination to continue the war to a victorious end.

LONDON.—After having tried for three weeks to force the Russians to evacuate Warsaw and the Polish salient by encircling movements from the north and partly from the west, the Austro-Germans have begun attacks on the fortresses of the capital and those of Lomza and Ostrolenka to the northeast and Ivangorod to the southeast. Berlin claims that the Russians have been driven back to the advance defenses of Lomza.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Scott, chief of staff of the United States army, issued orders directing Maj. Gen. Funston, who is in command of the Mexican border forces, to rush an additional battery of artillery from Fort Sill, Okla., to El Paso. Gen. Funston has orders to use his artillery and shell the Mexican factions out of their positions in any fighting that endangers Americans, without referring the question further to Washington.

AUGUST 5, 1901.

PITTSBURGH.—President Shaffer of the Amalgamated association declared that the steel strike is to be made a test of the strength of unionism and that all union sympathizers employed in the steel mills or handling their goods will be on strike within a week. The union men promise surprises in the number of mills they will close, but the steel combine hopes to be able to reopen many plants with nonunion labor. At Wheeling, W. Va., members of the Amalgamated associaton are organizing military companies to prevent mob violence.

NEW YORK.—The White Star line's new steamship Celtic, the largest vessel ever constructed, arrived here at the end of its initial passage over the Atlantic. The ship is 700 feet long, 75 feet wide and 49 feet deep and it has a registered tonnage of 20,808. It made the trip in eight days without any attempt at speed.

BERLIN.—A bulletin from Cronberg states that the condition of Empress Frederick, mother of Emperor William, and sister of King Edward of England, is near death. The emperor has been summoned to his mother's bedside and King Edward will leave England tomorrow for Cronberg.

AUGUST 5, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—Dr. D. W. Bliss reported that this is decidedly the best day President Garfield has had since he was shot. The President had no fever. Dr. Frank Hamilton, another of the President's physicians, said: "You may quote me as saying that the President certainly will get well. I consider him out of danger."

WASHINGTON.—In a remarkable document Charles J. Guiteau, who shot President Garfield, has petitioned to be admitted to bail. The petition is now in the hands of District Attorney Corkhill. In it Guiteau expresses sorrow that the President has suffered so much and so long from the wound he inflicted, repels with scorn the idea that he is now insane or was insane when he fired the bullet, offers a bond of $1,500, announces that he proposes to make his own defense, and declares he wants his freedom for a time so he can take a trip to Europe for a month or two. However, since filing the petition he has become convinced that it would not be safe for him to be free on bail for fear of violence and has asked Mr. Corkhill not to present his petition to court.

SOCORRO, N. M.—The murderous red devils—the Apaches—are now ravaging in this neighborhood and are killing off people by the score. A battle between them and Mexicans at Paraje resulted in thirteen Mexicans being killed.

BANK FAILURES.

St. Joseph, Mich., July 28.—Senator Fletcher of Florida, quoted in today's TRIBUNE by Mr. Henning, makes the point that, since 1920, 60 per cent of the bank failures have been among institutions capitalized at $25,000 or less, 70 per cent among capitalizations of less than $50,000, and 90 per cent among banks with capital below $100,000. On the basis of these figures, apparently, he indorses an opinion of Melvin Traylor that $100,000 should be the minimum capital for any banking institution.

Quite possibly the opinion ascribed to Messrs. Fletcher and Traylor is well supported by such considerations as the ratio of overhead to volume of business, diversity of risk, etc., but to infer that their opinion is based mainly on the figures cited does them no credit. It is as if they had surveyed statistics of the late war, discovered that there were a hundred times as many casualties among the infantry as among the air force, and concluded therefrom that trench fighting is a hundred times more hazardous than sky fighting.

The only figures that mean anything are the percentages of mortality in the several groups of banks when classified on a basis of capital. Perhaps one of your financial writers is prepared to compute the percentage of failures among all the $25,000 banks; the same percentage for all the $50,000 banks, and so on through all the capital classes.

Even then the figures will be misleading if the survey be started with the year 1920, for that was the year of the great agricultural deflation, which was followed by an abnormal amount of mortality among banks in agricultural communities. It happens that agricultural banks are small banks, but there is no reason to believe that the percentage of mortality would have been materially lower had they been consolidated into larger units. Bigger banks would have meant only bigger failures.

W. B. JONES.

THE MODEL YACHT BASIN.

Chicago, July 27.—It seems a crime against taxpayers of Chicago to have an investment of $60,000 in a model yacht basin which the south park commissioners put in and deprive the children throughout that section of going in the water because it is unchangeable, unsanitary and dangerous to health.

When it was first constructed and the children were allowed to go in every one on the south side commended the thoughtfulness of the commissioners at that time, but when they found it was only to be used as a yacht basin, depriving the children of their pleasure, we feel it a waste of a great amount of money for something which is absolutely useless. A TAXPAYER.

A CAR RIDE.

Chicago, July 27.—In last SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE there appeared on the front page an item under the headlines, "A Street Car Ride in City's Longest Line." I would like to extend my congratulations to THE TRIBUNE and the unsung, if not obscure, reporter whose name does not appear under the headlines and who gives us a cleverly graphic, almost poetic description of this prosaic event.

N. P. N.

PROHIBITION AND DEPRESSION.

Chicago, July 27.—If Mr. Orr and your editorial writers are possessed of even the slightest bit of sincerity in their opinions regarding prohibition and the eighteenth amendment, they will at least give some consideration to the following facts:

Mr. Orr has repeatedly presented cartoons which purport to show prohibition as the cause of the present economic depression. Has he stopped to think that Canada, England, France, and Germany—countries without prohibition or even an approximation of it—are in the throes of the same slump? If prohibition is the cause, why is not this country the only one to suffer?

A second fallacy in the argument that the overthrow of prohibition would end the depression is found in the fact that the resumption of the manufacture, sale, and distribution of liquor would not stimulate employment. Does Mr. Orr or any other gentleman of intelligence and sincerity believe for a moment that liquor would be consumed in addition to the present beverages on the market? Any stimulation given employment by the resumption of the liquor industry would be entirely offset by a compensating slump in employment in the substitute industries. The men who would find employment in the distilleries and in the distributing and selling end of the liquor trade would kill the jobs for those now engaged in the soft drink business and in the ice cream industry. No sane man will continue to eat and drink the same amount of products now on sale and add to his consumption several bottles or glasses of liquor daily. This fact should be so obvious as to shame those who would delude the uninformed and the prejudiced regarding the economic gains which would follow the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Finally, if a resumption of the liquor business would offer the farmer a market for his grain, the compensating slump in the ice cream industry would wreck the dairy products market. This fact alone should result in a stronger support of prohibition by those who are benefiting economically from it—namely: farmers, ice cream and soft drink manufacturers, drug stores, and soda fountains. If any group would receive aid in the resumption of the liquor industry it is the prostitutes and their allies, the politicians. IMPARTIAL OBSERVER.

WASTE IN THE SCHOOLS.

Chicago, July 25.—Trustee Savage of the school board says there is no waste of money spent in keeping the schools clean. Those who attend the schools know him to be wrong on two counts. There is waste of money and the schools are not kept clean.

In passing the Morgan Park High school a week ago I saw window washers busy on a school which is not in use this summer, and I found men cleaning the windows of the Morgan Park Elementary school buildings which were dismantled in May when the new building was opened. I have sat in a classroom where the windows were only washed once during the school year and once the glass on the door scrubbed three times in the same half hour. I wonder how many of the parents know of the insanitary conditions in the washrooms? Half as many janitors of the right kind, if intelligently supervised, could make things twice as clean and sanitary. R. E. M.

What wonders the talking-pictures have performed! No other industry in the world has moved with such speed and precision!

It took a thousand years or more to bring the regular stage to what it is today. It is still far from perfect. But in less than three years, the Talking Screen has been created and developed to a high state of technical and dramatic perfection.

It seems but yesterday that you were enthralled by the first Talking Pictures, even though they were crude. Your screen favorites emerged from their long silence, as if in real flesh and blood, and talked, "even as you and I" and you were thrilled. You thought it marvelous. And it was.

But if those pictures were wonderful to you, be prepared for even greater amazement. The new Talking-Pictures that you will see from now on are so superior that a new era dawns for the entertainment world—and new history begins!

Studio producers have learned more in the last six months than in the entire previous two and a half years of talking-picture history. We have seen many of the new finished pictures. They are indisputable proof that the public will receive far greater value in entertainment than ever before.

Some of the new pictures now being shown at Publix Balaban & Katz theatres are striking examples of the great progress and improvement talking pictures have made, as for instance: Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul"; Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Politics"; and Maurice Chevalier in "The Smiling Lieutenant".

We previewed Theodore Dreiser's "An American Tragedy" and were held spellbound by its intensity and flawless production. We were charmed with Janet Gaynor's wistfulness and beautiful innocence, and Charles Farrell's dramatic skill in "Merely Mary Ann". The Fox Company has another "Seventh Heaven" in this romantic drama.

Greta Garbo and that rising star Clark Gable, what a combination they make in "The Rise of Susan Lennox". We saw Ronald Colman in a perfect performance of "The Unholy Garden" and the distinguished actor George Arliss brings new laurels to the screen in "Alexander Hamilton".

These and all other outstanding productions are being shown, and will be shown, at Publix Balaban & Katz theatres which present the best pictures of the year, EVERY YEAR.

This has always been, and will continue to be, our undeviating policy.

CROMWELL SUES LETTER WRITER FOR $250,000

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Charging that his reputation was injured by a letter written to his mother, Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, society woman of Philadelphia, James H. R. Cromwell of 277 Park avenue filed a suit for $250,000 damages today against Robert F. Norton of 12 West 74th street.

Mr. Cromwell asserts that his mother was in Palm Beach when she received a letter from Mr. Norton asking her to repay $50,000 which Mr. Norton said he had lost in one of Mr. Cromwell's real estate deals.

According to the complaint, this letter said in part:

"Knowing you to be a lady of great wealth as well as fair-mindedness, wouldn't you, or couldn't you, spare me dragging this matter through the courts, with such terrible unpleasantness to all concerned, by repaying me?"

Refers to Hotel Lease.

The letter went on to say that the writer had invested in the Cromwell Arms corporation, which had a lease on property at 59th street and Park avenue, subsequently taken over by the present Hotel Delmonico. The letter added:

"All the time he [this apparently refers to Mr. Cromwell] was representing that his wealthy wife, Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell [now Mrs. Delphine Dodge Baker], was backing him he and his wife were living apart and planning a divorce.

"I also understood that Mr. J. P. Morgan refused to allow you and Mr. Stotesbury to establish your residence in New York City or become interested in the property."

This reference to Mr. Morgan was not otherwise explained, but the letter asserted that Mr. Cromwell disclaimed responsibility when his corporation was dispossessed, "crying wolf and saying somebody had received a secret commission he knew nothing of and therefore the lease was invalid."

Involved in 1928 Suit.

In 1928 Norton sued Cromwell for $50,000, declaring he had bought 150 shares in the Cromwell Arms corporation through false representations made by Cromwell. The suit was dismissed because other actions were pending for the same cause.

Mr. Cromwell was a much sued man shortly after the collapse of the Florida real estate boom, which sent skyward the dreams of the exclusive Floranada club where the king of Greece was at one time supposed to be building a house. Cromwell was president of the American-British Improvement corporation, a holding company. In that capacity, after the club was a $6,000,000 failure in 1928, he was defendant in two suits to recover $265,000. With Mr. and Mrs. Stotesbury he was co-defendant in a suit brought by a Miami building contractor to recover $250,000. Later the suit was dropped.

FIGHT TO FREE D. C. STEPHENSON IS ON AGAIN

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Final briefs in the plea of D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan grand dragon, for ending a writ of prohibition, were filed in the Indiana Supreme court today by attorneys for Judge Harry L. Crumpacker of the Laporte county Superior court, against whom the writ was issued, and attorneys for Stephenson.

Attorneys for Crumpacker contended that the brief filed by James M. Ogden, state attorney general, with the Supreme court should have been properly filed in the lower court, as a challenge to its jurisdiction.

The Supreme court recently issued a writ of prohibition to halt habeas corpus proceedings in Laporte county Superior court and the briefs have been filed to determine whether the writ should be made permanent. Attorneys seek release of Stephenson from the Indiana state prison, where he is serving a life term for the murder of an Indianapolis young woman.

Privileges of Convicts Restored at Prisons

Prisoners at the Joliet and Statesville penitentiaries were released from their cells yesterday and permitted routine privileges after having been locked up for more than two weeks while guards made a careful search of the buildings and grounds for weapons believed to have been secreted by the convicts in preparation for a general riot. The search revealed a number of crude gasoline bombs, knives, clubs, ladders, and several lengths of rope. Warden Hill said that visitors and mail for the men would be allowed today.

Rob Ice Cream Company Office of $1,500 Pay Roll

Three gunmen yesterday forced their way into the offices of the Belmont Ice Cream company, 3551 Addison street, and escaped with a pay roll of $1,500. The bandits compelled Miss Alice Rolfe, 3347 North Lamon avenue, the cashier, to open the door leading into her cage. They scooped the money out of the safe, which was open. Two truck drivers who walked into the office to get their pay were seized and forced to stand in the corner while the bandits escaped.

U. S. WILL PUBLISH INDORSERS' NAMES IN PAROLE CASES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The names and residences of all persons who endorse or urge paroles for federal convicts are to be made available for publication in the future, Attorney General William D. Mitchell announced today. While no reason was given for this change from the policy of secrecy, it is understood a desire to eliminate undercover political pressure in parole cases was one of the factors prompting the attorney general's decision.

"The attorney general today made an order," the department announced, "that in every parole case hereafter arising, the names and residences of those who endorse or urge paroles shall, on request, be given to the press or to any public official. It has long been the practice of the department to treat such communications as confidential, but there seems to be no good reason for that practice."

In the past virtually all attempts to obtain the names of politicians and friends interested in the parole of well known federal prisoners met with failure. Department officials met queries of that nature with the statement that it was not the practice of the department to make public names of persons recommending paroles for federal prisoners.

AUSTRALIA STATE ASKS $2,500,000; TREASURY BROKE

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Premier Lang said today that unless the loan council grants New South Wales $2,500,000 immediately there will not be enough money to meet the civil pay roll on Thursday.

The premier will not attend the loan council meeting tomorrow, but will be represented by the attorney general.

A clause in the New South Wales salaries bill making $4,500 a year the maximum salary for civil servants has been removed and an amendment substituted providing a graduated scale of salary reductions. The new scheme, it is estimated, will result in a saving of $925,000 a year.

● The great Saguenay Cruise carries you from Niagara or Toronto, the length of Lake Ontario, through the Thousand Islands, down the rapids to Montreal, on to the walled City of Quebec, into the heart of old French-Canada, visiting fashionable Murray Bay, quaint Tadoussac and at last the lonely reaches of the Saguenay River.

Phyllis Regards Stylish Speech as "Devil's Due"

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

THE many readers of the novels by Phyllis Bottome will be glad to know she has written another, "Devil's Due," just published [Boughton Mifflin]. To some it will be something of a disappointment, for it lacks the power and strength as well as the simplicity of most of her other books.

PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

There is a theatrical quality about it that detracts from the force of the narrative. Her characters speak in perfectly epigrammatic sentences that sound more like the divisions of actors on a stage than the conversations of real flesh and blood persons. One can fairly see the characters making dramatic gestures, elaborate bows, and indulging in all the other tricks beloved by the barnstormers of the old days. Once in the mood of the book the speeches and epigrams come more naturally, but at first they have a most artificial flavor.

Descriptions, too, are a bit overromantic. "Lili's eyes, between their fringe of chestnut lashes, opened wider than ever, her lips parted and revealed two lines of exquisitely even pearls. All that there was of her, Max reflected, except her heart, was good, and in a state of perfect preservation." There ought to be a law against likening teeth to pearls. After all, there are plenty of other less overworked nouns.

By far the best writing in the novel are the pictures of the mountains, the snowy peaks, the narrow valleys of the Austrian Alps in which the story is laid. The book is well worth reading just for those moments of beauty. There are descriptions of skiing and ski jumps that are thrilling, and of all the outdoor sports for which that section of the Tyrol is noted. One sees the country in the winter, in the spring, when all the ground is thawing and the mountain streams come racing down into the valleys with a noise heard everywhere, and in the summer and autumn.

The portrayal of a simple peasant family, the Prems, and especially of Heinandel, one of the daughters, is also skillfully done. This unpretentious girl seems, somehow, more real than the Countess Nathalie, who is more the brain child of the author than a live woman.

Max von Ulm, the romantic and conflict hero of the novel, is also difficult to grasp as a real person. The author never really gives one a true insight into his character. He is made noble and base at the same time without a reason for being either. His actions never seem the inevitable result of his nature; each one comes as a complete surprise and does no more to reveal Max to the reader than any other. You are given to understand that he is a rascal, but are only told vaguely why.

You see him first a cynical, sophisticated do-nothing young fellow, breaking the news to his wife that he is penniless again, and this time permanently so. She being as debonair as he cares not a whit, for she knows the value, in dollars and cents, of her own alluring smiles. So she goes her way and he goes his, which is straight up the side of an Austrian Alp to live as a servant in a family of peasants his brother has helped financially.

While working for them he chances to meet the Countess Nathalie, whose wild and free spirit instantly attracts him. However, even the unconventional countess is shocked when she hears of his unscrupulous actions in the past. Her uncle, a cardinal, tries to break up her affair with Max, but fails.

For a time it appears that Lili, Max's wife, will win him away from Nathalie, and here is a most amusing situation, indeed, although it is not intended to be so. It is the situation of a man being lured away from the woman he loves by his wife, instead of the usual one in which he is lured away from his wife by another woman. However, the effect is exactly the same.

Miss Bottome shows two people, each used to power: arrogant, fearless, adventure loving, craving any sport with danger in it and always achieving whatever they attempt, no matter how great the risks. When they meet it is inevitable that they love and just as inevitable that disaster follow, for one is a person who cherishes honor and self-respect (according to her own code) and the other is by temperament unable to understand any one with ideals. Max is too much the ne'er-do-well ever to reform, and Nathalie, though she has an elastic set of morals, balks at certain things.

In spite of the disparity in their natures the reader in hardly prepared for the tragedy that comes into the love of these two. And the end of the tale leaves one with a letdown and rather jaded feeling. "What's the use" might be the last words of "Devil's Due."

The figure of the cardinal is well drawn, as is that of Tante Gusta, the spinster aunt of Nathalie, whom life had cheated and left high and dry on the shores of middle age. Nathalie's father, who dies a horrible death, is a bit too strange and mysterious, and Ewald, her brother, is another odd note, a bit off key, but Edith, his English wife, is one of the most lifelike people in the novel.

Although Miss Bottome has not written another "Dark Tower," you will be entertained by her new book and, perhaps, amused.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Have you noticed the billboards all over town, boys and girls, announcing the coming of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus on Aug. 8? Aren't they enticing and don't they make you a bit impatient for our party a week from tomorrow! It will be a grand show, you can be certain, for it has everything in it that makes for good entertainment.

There's Con Colleano who is known in "big top" circles as the wizard of the high wire. He performs the most astounding feats on the tight rope not the least of which is a reverse somersault. There's a huge sea elephant of such monstrous proportions that it takes a large truck to haul it about and tons of fish each day to appease its appetite. There are famous riders who put their equally famous mounts through the most difficult of paces. And there are aerialists who swing from bar to bar at a dizzying height far above the heads of the audience.

All in all, it's a thrilling show and the hundred boys and girls who win invitations to our circus party on Thursday, Aug. 13, will be fortunate indeed. You know, tomorrow's the day when your letters will be read and my guests selected. You should write and mail them today if you haven't sent them already, for there's still time. Remember, each writer must tell me his name, address and age, or I may not include him in the lucky hundred even if his letter is a convincing one. Just address it to Sally Joy Brown, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Radio Sought for Rainy Day at Algonquin

Director Says Visitors Are Fond of Music.

It isn't very often that echoes of requests for something or other to make life more pleasant at the camp are heard in the Algonquin editor's office. There are a good many recreational facilities, but even these sometimes cannot be used on rainy days.

Yesterday came a request for a radio. A new radio, not an old one, because the use at Camp Algonquin by nearly 500 persons calls for one with a sturdy constitution. It needn't be expensive, said Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent.

"The mothers who come here love music. So do their children," Mrs. Save explained. "And we have no music except the singing that the campers do themselves. A radio might be looked upon as a luxury but we don't feel that way here in camp. Music is realy essential."

One of the favorite foods of Camp Algonquin visitors is candy which can't be served very often because the budget can take care only of the fruits and vegetables, meats and cereals on the regular daily diet. The other day A. Ettlinger of Cary, Ill., one of the camp's neighbors, treated the camp with 480 sticks of candy, which was received with shouts of enthusiasm by grownups as well as the youngsters.

THE TRIBUNE free ice fund received two more gifts yesterday earned by children. Sally Ann's lemonade stand, operated by Saly Guynol and Frances McFarland at 97th street and Vander poel avenue, sent $1. The children of 5511 and 5513 Cornell avenue collected $2, the proceeds of a magician's act.

Loyola Confers 55 Degrees on Summer School Students

Forty-nine bachelor degrees and six master of arts degrees were conferred yesterday at the annual commencement exercises of the Loyola university summer school by the Rev. Robert M. Kelley, S. J., president of the university. The Rev. Timothy Bouscaron, S. J., professor of philosophy, delivered the commencement address.

Mrs. H. M. Lydig's Will Gives Charities $979,739

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Hannah M. Lydig, widow of David Lydig, who died in 1917, and aunt by marriage of the late Philip N. Lydig, left an estate appraised today at $1,979,705 gross and $1,932,792 net, of which she gave $979,739 to charities and public institutions.

AT 105 YEARS SHE LISTENS TO RADIO, READS OF LINDBERGH

Landsdale, Pa., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Miss Mary Knapp of Montgomery Square, near here, observed her 105th birthday today quietly at her home. For the last 96 years she has been a resident of this village.

Part of the day she devoted to reading about Col. Lindbergh, whom she admires very much.

Miss Knapp reads without glasses, but slowly, so she can absorb all she reads.

She believes the present economic depression was caused by "too much fast living, spending too much money and time on things we don't need, forgetting the simple life that the Bible advocates."

Miss Knapp likes automobile rides and the radio, reads newspapers, is much interested in politics, and approve of woman's suffrage.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—How the Los Angeles board of education tries to protect an infant under six months of age was revealed through the experiences of the Radio Pictures company, which needed a baby for "Consolation Marriage."

First a contract with the board of education had to be signed; then the baby could not be allowed to work under studio lights for more than thirty seconds at a time; then it had to have its mother and a welfare worker [paid by the studio] on the set.

The welfare nurse is the final authority; she stands with stop watch and sees all the rules are obeyed. Maximum working hours of the baby are two hours mornings, and two in the afternoon, with regular rest periods between its thirty second working limit.

One of the new ways to make money out of the film colony is that discovered by the owners of yachts. They rent their yachts by the week-end, by the day, or by the cruise, the renters—often a party of actors and actresses—going aboard and paying so much per person to the yacht owner.

Lila Lee and Patsy Ruth Miller [Director Tay Garnett's wife] are sailing from San Francisco for the south seas tomorrow as guests of Mrs. Gouverneur Morris, wife of a writer. They will stay at Morris' plantation on the island of Tahiti. Garnett remains here. He and Horace Liveright, the New York publisher, have completed a deal under which Garnett will have a volume printed giving his impressions of Hollywood. Lila Lee is still recuperating from a lengthy sickness during which she spent nearly a year in sanitariums in Arizona.

Estelle Taylor fairly sizzled today because Joe Dempsey, Jack's brother-in-law, she said, took her $8,000 imported limousine from her chauffeur, Frank Buford, at Paul Bern's house, where she was attending a lawn party. "Jack gave me that car for a Christmas present last Christmas," she said. "It is true the pink ownership slip was not in my name, but the car was an outright gift at the time. I gave Jack a present of an automobile of another make just as expensive, but I put my gift in his name. What is more, I would not stoop to such an act as taking back a present," Estelle said. "Jack Dempsey and his brother, Joe, will both hear more from this incident."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is starting a new co-starring team, Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper, their first assignment being "The Champ," with King Vidor to direct. Part of the story scene is laid in Tia Juana. "War Mamas" is the next vehicle inviting the laughs and tears of the fans to the co-starring adventures of Zasu Pitts [Mrs. Tom Gallery] and Thelma Todd. They play a couple of young war nurses who are eager for romance, but in quest if it, blunder into enemy entanglements.

LILA LEE.

Guinn "Big Boy" Williams and Reed Howes, both of whom were near stars in the silent days three or four years ago, have found their voices, and play the leads opposite Zasu and Thelma. Hal Roach is making it. Incidentally, Thelma Todd is the only high ranking actress I ever heard of, out here, who is making pictures at two different studio lots at about the same time, and under two different names. As a star in "Corsair" at United Artists, Miss Todd's name was changed to "Alison Lloyd" whether she preferred her old name or not. The United Artists explanation was that she was known as a comedy player under her own name, and it wouldn't fit her dramatic part in their picture.

Grant Park Band Shell Now Under Construction

Just in case you're wondering about that structure in Grant park that resembles a huge fan, it's the new band shell. It isn't completed yet, but will be very soon, officials of the Chicago Concert Band association say, and as soon as the last nail is driven the vicinity north of the Field museum and south of Buckingham fountain will become the Mecca for lovers of band concerts. The shell is being erected by the city, but the band will be provided by the association, which is raising a fund for that purpose.

Ravinia Turns Back to "Il Trovatore" on Night After Novelty

From the fine drama and understandable words of "Peter Ibbetson," the Ravinia company, though not many of the same artists, went last night into the work whose story no one ever has been able to relate and the fine old crusted tunes of "Il Trovatore." Such are the quick shifts of the land of the grand opera.

Among the assets of Ravinia are to be counted a list of artists with full understanding of how to sing operas of the old school of which "Il Trovatore" is perhaps the most notable example. Elisabeth Rethberg, possessor of as lovely a soprano voice as there is on the stage today, was the lovely Leonora. Julia Claussen, a magnificent artist, who understands the art of the old school as though it had been written for her, was the Azucena. Giovanni Martinelli, whose mellow trumpet of a voice was in far better form than it has been during his last several appearances, was the troubadour, Manrico. Guiseppe Danise, also with a remarkably fine voice as well as being unvaryingly reliable in its use, was Count Di Luna.

These artists, with Louis D'Angelo, Philine Falco, and Lodovico Oliviero in the rôles of less length, also with the notable conductor, Gennaro Papi, at the baton, projected Verdi's famous work with a spirit and tone such as it gets only in infrequent performances. The auditors applauded lustily, with which verdict the present account is in thorough agreement.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 4.—(AP)—The prettiest girls in all Ireland and the finest horses, were gathered at the Balls Bridge fair grounds today for the famous Dublin horse show week. This year marks the 200th anniversary of the annual event under the auspices of the Royal Dublin society.

Seventeen hundred horses are entered, with 522 hunters, said to be twice as large as the entries in this class at any other fair in the world.

The event has brought 11,000 visitors from Great Britain, many from the continent and from the United States. Nine countries are competing in the military jumping event, but the United States has no entry.

Famous Biologist Recites the Three Notes of Love

OXFORD, England, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Sir Arthur Thomson, biologist, told the British Hygiene council today the safeguard of life is to fall in love.

"Love," he said, "has three notes—physical fondness, which is indispensable; emotional attraction linked to purely physical attraction through appeal of beauty and strength, and the third note, often missed altogether, of higher sympathies in intelligence, purpose, and ideals."

Hoover, Kings Send Word to Col. E. M. House

Wed Fifty Years, Holds Family Reunion.

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Col. and Mrs. Edward M. House observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary quietly with family and friends today, but the world remembered them.

To Overledge cottage, the simple New England seashore home where Col. and Mrs. House have spent the last 35 summers came messages of congratulations from President and Mrs. Hoover, the king and queen of England, the king and queen of Belgium, the prince of Wales, and statesmen of many countries.

President Hoover said: "Mrs. Hoover and I should like to join with your legion of friends in extending our heartiest congratulations to you and Mrs. House on your golden wedding anniversary. We wish for you a plenitude of health and happiness."

King George cabled: "The queen and I offer you both our heartiest congratulations on this the fiftieth anniversary of your wedding day and hope you may be spared to each other for many years to come."

Col. House expresses particular pleasure at the message from President Hoover. It was recalled that this summer he had broken a silence of several years by a statement terming Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt the most available man for the Democratic presidential nomination next year.

"It is a great privilege to have lived a happy wedded life for fifty years," Col. House said. "It is nice to be remembered by good friends and we both appreciate their thoughtfulness, but neither of us is young any longer, so we must restrain our enthusiasm, much as we should like to entertain our good friends."

The day's events were limited to a dinner given by John Hays Hammond for Mr. and Mrs. House, their two daughters and their grandchildren. In the afternoon 100 guests came to a tea given by their daughter, Mrs. J. Randolph Tucker, at Wenham.

Census Bureau Cites Rise in Increase Rate Among Negroes

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The rate of increase of the white population of the United States during the last decade was .3 per cent less than for the previous ten years, the census bureau reported today.

The Negro population, however, showed a considerably higher rate of increase from 1920 to 1930 than in the preceding ten years. The 1910-'20 rate was 6.5 per cent that of 1920-'30 was 13.6 per cent.

Despite the fact, the actual rate of increase recorded for the white population in the last ten years remained higher than that of the Negro population, the former increasing by 15.7 per cent, compared with the Negro rate of 13.6 per cent.

According to the bureau's figures, the white population of the country, 98,820,915 in 1920 was 108,864,207 in 1930. The lower increase rate was attributed to restricted immigration and a falling birth rate.

The census figures show an increased Negro population in the north of about 1,000,000. The southern area reported an increase of five per cent in its Negro population. That increased from 8,912,231 in 1920 to 9,361,577 in 1930. A large increase in the number of Negroes in the west also was shown in the bureau's figures, the number having jumped from 78,591 in 1920 to 120,347 in 1930.

The general gain in Negro population, recorded at 13.6 per cent, was interpreted as meaning that the mortality rate among Negroes has been lessened considerably.

Galesburg, Ill., Will Open Three Junior High Schools

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Three junior high schools were voted by the board of education last night because of congestion in the present high school building. "Old Main" at the former Lombard college, whose grounds were acquired some months ago by the school board, is to be used for one of the junior highs. A grade school will be remodeled to provide the second, and the other will be at the present downtown school plant.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In a report of the death of Attorney Merritt Starr it was stated that he established the navigability of the Des Plaines river before the United States Supreme court. Mr. Starr represented the state of Illinois in earlier hearings before the Illinois courts, but Attorney Clarence N. Goodwin, former justice of the Illinois Appellate court, later successfully represented the federal government before the United States District Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme court, where the navigability of the river was affirmed and established.

Herbert Kipp, 2 years old, 1619 North Meade avenue, who died Sunday of a fractured skull, was not injured in a fall from a second story window, as was stated in a news item. He was hurt when he tripped in the living room of his parents' home, according to Dr. Thomas Dwyer, coroner's physician.

Trousers for Women Are Autumn Style

Made for Both Day and Evening Wear.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Trousered skirts for modern, independent woman's street and evening wear were added to the already conglomerate 1932 style picture today by prominent women dressmakers who refuse to follow the old-fashioned mode.

Dresses of watermelon red angora wool and wine purple pebbly tweed, were designed with close-fitting bodices, snug hips, and trousered skirts which made no pretenses of disguising their bifurcated designs.

New divided skirts which Paris calls "culottes" were considerably narrower than heretofore displayed and unhampered by panels, either in front or back.

Black, brown, and dark red street suits with round-necked, knitted cool bodies and tightly fitted short jackets, also displayed divided skirts.

Evening gowns of black and silver brocade, or crimson, crinkled silk crêpe featured full pajama and trouser skirts. Several of these had trains designed to hook up on the side of the gown.

Many novelty ornaments featured the collection. A black wool frock had a white coil spring belt and a bracelet. A dark blue dress had a choker necklace or white uncurled ostrich. Suits were closed with brass rings instead of buttons.

Dresses were designed with high, round necks, close fitting bodices and exaggerated, widened shoulders, giving a slenderizing effect to the hips.

Coats of black, wine red, brown, and dark green rough wool were generally designed on semi-fitted lines with broad shoulders and scarf collars, sparingly furred.

Skirts were generally twelve or thirteen inches from the ground.

From waist-length evening wraps almost entirely swathed in huge sable capes to wool day coats with bodices, skirt incrustations, yokes, and entire sleeves of fur, the exhibition forecast a lavish use of pelts for wealthy winter warbrobes.

Even fur coats were often combined with pelts, breitschwanz collared, and incrusted with Astrakan being the favorite combination. Mink, sable, skunk, leopard, and beaver, Astrakan, and seal all were used in the luxurious pageant.

A jade green wool coat designed for semi-fitted lines had a square standing collar and entire sleeves of beaver tangerine. A red wool coat had a waist-length cape of black seal and a tiny seal muff. A full-length green duvetyn evening wrap was collared and cuffed and edged in black skunk.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

Twenty-Three Finds Restricted Girlhood Hindering Influence

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I was brought up a mission school in a world of mid-Victorianism where little girls were taught "to be seen and not heard." Five year ago I saw America, my native land, for the first time since a baby. I have found since that its people dance, smoke, play cards, and love the movies—and that they are not vicious or wicked, as I had been led to suppose. I find them fascinating—and good.

"But I am by nature silent and unapproachable, and as baffled by my reticence, as others must be, although I will admit to some ability to at- tr How I wish I could enter into th inary pleasures without that h ng childhood and young wom- a influence of which I've spoken you think, to put it frankly, th I'll ever be able to go in for p and necking before I reach an in pendent but solitary spinsterhood?

"TWENTY-THREE."

My personal opinion, Twenty-three, is that you're learning fast and that, in all probability, you'll master the arts mentioned, if such they may be called, in time to rescue you from the dreaded spinsterhood fate. But I wouldn't rush into the instruction classes too eagerly, Twenty-three. After all, it must be rather a wholesome treat for young men to meet a girl whose necking and petting education shows neglect. My opinion is that young men rather like the job of "first instructor" in courses of the kind.

Anyway, I'd concentrate more heavily for the time being on trying to overcome that reticence you find so baffling. Although, again in this, too, may lie a wholesome charm, reticence not being one of the noticeable traits of our young, the novelty, indeed, might have strong appeal. Reticence, I believe, is one of the traits that men like, and one rather overlooked by girls in their intense eagerness to attract.

What I'm trying to tell you, Twenty-three, is that you might do better just being your own self and not trying to adopt a rôle for which your training hasn't fitted you. While we deprecate the narrow viewpoint involved in your training—still the manner in which you are overcoming it indicates that you, on your very own, will be equal to all the emergencies required.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Nice Compliment.

"Dear Miss Blake: What do you think of a fellow leaving a girl for a year and then trying to go back to her? BROWN EYES."

It shows that she must have outstanding qualities which draw him back.

Children Often Give Quiet Glimpses of Unsuspected Depths

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"What?"

"I love you . . . [A long pause.] That's all I've got to say."

"Anna."

"Anna."

"What, darlin'?" she would ask.

And he'd go on playing.

"Mommie."

"Mommie . . . Mommie."

Finally, one day she said, "Why do you call me that way, honey?"

He looked at her gravely a moment —then, "I don't know," he said.

Perhaps it gives them assurance of the love that they know exists, as if they said, "Are you there. I want to be sure." Perhaps it's a reaching out across space to bring closer the one who is dear to them. Perhaps just saying the name of a dearly loved daddy or mommie or Anna is like saying, "I love you." Their voices have that caressing quality at those times. We grownups, too, like to say the name of those we love.

This particular thing only happens in quiet times when you're alone with your child.

Children are loving, sensitive, with delicate spiritual and emotional perceptions. Whether you have one child or many, try to manage so that you have quiet times with just one son or daughter.

Brilliantine of Good Quality Does Much to Enhance Hair Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A correspondent asks about the of brilliantines on the hair. Will their use affect the hair for better or worse? And what, she wants to know, do brilliantines consist of?

Since the advent of permanent waving and hot air drying and the like, the use of permanent wave oils, brilliantine, preparations for hot oil treatments and oil shampoos has increased greatly. I have this on the authority of the trade itself.

Then, too, the recognition by the beauty aspirant that hair is not beautiful without a glossy sheen has contributed to a further indulgence in the use of brilliantines and the other oils already mentioned.

There is no question that these oily preparations are of great advantage in softening the hair, giving it a sheen and making it more generally pliable. But, of course, they must be of good quality or they have no value to speak of.

Brilliantines come either in solid or liquid form. The solids are ointment-like bases made up of waxes and oils. Of liquid brilliantines there are four types: those made of a solution of alcohol and castor oil; those which are a mixture of glycerine, alcohol and water; those with a mineral oil base, and those made of alcohol and mineral oil. Brilliantines made with liquid paraffin [mineral oil] are in general use.

You can see from the above content exposé that the ingredients in brilliantines are all good products for the hair, castor oil and mineral oil being especially beneficial in counteracting hair conditions resulting from dryness and other causes.

FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and death of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. She opens a hot dog stand on the Dixie highway. The estate of Sam Winstead, of carpetbagging stock, adjoins Oakleigh. Henry Winstead holds the Oakleigh mortgage. His only son, Sam, is a great help to Sally, although she doesn't know his real identity until the stand is successfully started. Sally falls in love with Lowndes Rutherford. Sam forces Lowndes to admit in front of Sally that he is engaged to the wealthy Gertrude Reinert. Sam asks Sally to marry him, although he knows she doesn't love him. Sally becomes Sam's wife in name only. Sam gives Oakleigh back to Sally as a wedding present. The night of the wedding Sally's grandmother dies. Sally collapses and is brought to Winstead's while she is still unconscious. When she recovers Sam tells her he is going abroad and when he returns she can sue him for divorce.

INSTALLMENT XXVII.

SEPARATION.

Sam stood up and took her hand. "It's all coming out all right, Sally," he promised, and kissed her fingers. Then he swung off down the garden path, and she turned her head and watched him, with troubled eyes. A most disturbing person, Sam Winstead! In a little while, he had promised, she would be free. O, why wasn't she glad? Why did her heart refuse to leap?

Henry Winstead never came home to lunch; Sam had his lunch sent to his office. Sally thought she would go back to the house and write a few overdue letters. But, seated at her graceful little desk, she found herself unable to write. She couldn't form her thoughts. She was too restless. She would wander over the Winstead house, not yet familiar to her, she decided. There were several pictures she wished to examine.

It was a beautiful house, its beauty differing from Oakleigh. The pictures, for instance, were all modern. A Matisse. A Picasso.

She peeped into the bedrooms. Henry's—she knew it was Henry's—was very simple and austere. A picture of his mother was over the mantel. A calm, quiet face, a dark face with grave eyes and banded hair. On the opposite wall the old carpetbagger himself, dominant and dynamic. Other rooms, furnished but unused. Then one at the end of the hall, the beginning of a suite. The girl who was to become an ex-wife without ever having been a wife stood in the sanctuary of the man who was to be her ex-husband without ever having been a husband.

Like the rest of Winsteads, it was beautiful. Over the mantel a picture that at first she thought must be himself as a child, until she examined it more closely and saw that it was a woman, a young woman, in a blue dress, with blue, blue eyes, and bright hair. A very young face, with smiling lips, and something in the blue gaze that caught one's heart. It had been copied from the miniature Henry had given Sam, and, because the painter had been fascinated by the ethereal hair and elfish eyes, he had managed to catch a striking likeness. Sam was like her, her girlish slenderness already into the tall shapeliness of her son. Books, a few etchings, flowers, the Moon clay figure of the Chinaman he had bought from Sally, sturdy furniture. Altogether a man's room. With that one face dominating it, as though he wished to share his sanctities with her.

Sally felt that she would have adored this creature, Never had she seen any face which more intrigued her. No wonder Henry Winstead still mourned her! Sally went out and closed the door softly. So that was his mother! And—and she was his wife! Only . . . he didn't want her, wouldn't have her . . . because she didn't love him. Sam Winstead! Ruthless men . . . terrible men . . . wonderful men . . . these Winsteads.

As long as she lived Sally would never forget that strange and unreal summer. She had entirely recovered her health, but she could not shake off the weight from her spirit, nor could she overcome a sense of wonder that she should be here, in this house—one of this family.

People called, in increasing numbers. Whenever Sam's friends called they always met his charming young wife. Joe Dixon—he who had been lost sight of at that phantasmagoric wedding—had now got himself married, and brought his new wife home to the pretty bungalow Sam Winstead had built for the pair, and for whom he now gave a small dinner. A family dinner.

Joe's wife was sweet faced, soft voiced, with ingratiating manners. It would be easy to be nice to her. And now that she knew him better she had given to like Joe Dixon himself, Sally decided. Sam showed shrewd good sense in choosing his friends, for Joe obviously loved and looked up to his old classmate. They were telling the bride some of the gay escapades of their college days, making her laugh heartily. Henry Winstead, listening, laughed an indulgent, fatherly laugh. She had never before heard Henry laugh, she remembered.

Coffee was served on the screened porch which gave upon the rose garden. The summer was waning. The Carolina moon swung goldenly over the pines and live oaks, high into a clear sky, transforming all things with its magic glow. The breath of many roses pervaded the night, made sweeter by the dew, which lay like a silver sheet over the world. A mocking bird sang madly to the moon.

Sally poured coffee from a silver pot which Caleb Winstead had given to his wife . . . a calm, peaceable, ordinary scene. It might have been Oakleigh. But Oakleigh was occupied by servants and caretakers only . . . because all the Rutherfords were gone. This was . . . Winsteads.

Lowndes was married to Gertrude Reinert now. A fashionable wedding. They had gone honeymooning on the Reinert yacht. Perhaps, even as Sally sat there on the Winstead porch, Lowndes was leaning against a ship's railing, looking down with his long gray eyes into the eyes of a girl who stood beside him—a girl who wasn't Sally Rutherford. But then—there wasn't any Sally Rutherford any more. She was married to Sam Winstead.

She had seated herself a little apart from the others, yet not too far withdrawn. She could see him clearly, lounging easily, a cigaret in his hand, his knees crossed, laughing at something Joe Dixon was saying. Mrs. Joe was begging him, prettily, to sing.

"What shall he sing for us, Mrs. Winstead?" asked the other girl, looking at the slight figure in black. Sam's wife was beautiful, the Virginia girl thought, watching the pearly oval of the face revealed in the moonlight. Dark eyes, dark hair, slim shoulders. Worthy of Sam himself.

"What shall he sing for us, Mrs. Winstead? I know whatever pleases you best will enchant us," repeated Mrs. Dixon.

"What shall I sing for you, Sally?"

"You see, Mr. Winstead, she likes anything you sing!" said the Virginia girl.

There was the sound of the piano under Sam's firm, sure touch. He played well. Too, he preferred to accompany himself. Then his raised voice singing "Drink to Me Only"—to please Joe Dixon. Presently the throbbing notes of Schubert's "Serenade." It seemed to blend with the moonlight, the scent of the garden, the perfect night itself, the man's voice singing that passionate love song. It shook her head with pain and pity and longing. How perfect life would have been if Lowndes had been true! It was having to know that Lowndes wasn't true, that he was selfish, weak, false—which had spoiled all life for her, made it empty.

After awhile the Dixons went home, walking close together. Then Sam came and sat near her. He was humming, "Flor de Espina."

"That's your song . . . 'Flower of Thorns,'" he told her in a whisper. "I couldn't sing it to anybody else."

No one thing was to be hers . . . that old, old song, sung by the man she didn't love.

She went upstairs to her room presently, and sat by the open window. The great trees swayed to and fro, the moonlight flooded the dew drenched gardens. Peace. Beauty. And loneliness. She put her head down on her crossed arms. Desolately, drearily, she wept.

The incredible summer passed. Joe Dixon knew how exactly what was to be done, and how. He was ambitious and clever.

"But I can't for the life of me see why he's got to go scallyhooting off," Dixon complained to his wife. "Of course, I'll do what he wants me to do. But something's wrong, somewhere!"

"I'm afraid so, Joe. But, even if it is, I think he'll make it come right. Nothing could be permanently wrong with a man like Sam Winstead!" she said stoutly. She shared Joe's estimate of Sam.

His wife was quiet, yet without a trace of concealment, were all the arrangements made, that there was no gossip. And then the morning rolled around inevitably. Sam was ready to go.

They were at the railroad station, waiting for the train. An experienced traveler, Sam did not carry much luggage—he knew what he would and wouldn't need, and he refused to encumber himself. Henry had come to the station with his son, and his face was gray. He looked old and tired. Sally didn't understand, but he surmised that Sam wouldn't want to be asked questions. When Sam had told him that he was going abroad again, and that Sally was to remain at home, Henry asked:

"It is necessary—absolutely unavoidable—that you should go, son?"

"Yes, dad. It is absolutely necessary," his son told him briefly.

The two looked at each other mutely. Henry said no more—what was the use? Sam knew his own mind, and as Sam had said that his going was absolutely necessary, why, it must be. Henry put his arm around his boy's shoulders.

"Come back as soon as you can, son," he whispered unhappily.

"I'll come back as soon as I can, dad."

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Sherm, age 3, was returning home from the barber shop with two sisters. One was for his sister and one for himself. He was told not to eat one until he got home. On the way home a sucker dropped and broke. Little Sherm said: "Poor Sissy's sucker broke!" S. J. L.

"Nobody likes you when you act like that," reprimanded the mother of my 3 year old nephew.

"O, yes they does," he came back cheerfully. "I likes myself, lots!"

Harbor Springs Club Opens in Spite of Rainy Day.

It was too bad that it rained pitchforks at Harbor Springs all Saturday afternoon for the formal opening of the new Beach club, but it seems that the affair was well attended anyway. Mr. Edward P. Russell, president of the club; his son-in-law and daughter, the Robert M. Curtisses; Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis, and Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Barnes were among the Chicagoans present. The MacDonald yacht, Mizpah, landed its large party of guests in time to participate in the opening festivities. The new clubhouse is early American in style, is finished in rough boarding, and is attractively informal looking.

The interest in Carleton Smith's lecture recitals about the opera, "Peter Ibbetson," which had its western première Monday night at Ravinia, have been so great that he's to give another one tomorrow morning at the residence of Mrs. Walter Dill Scott of Evanston.

You could spin a regular short story plot about the young diplomat whose chief concern when he arrived in Chicago was about being held up. He not only anticipated being in an actual stickup almost immediately but he fully intended that he should be. He figured that he couldn't achieve any diplomatic laurels to speak of during his service in Chicago, but if he could go back to Europe and tell about having had a desperate character accost him with a gun, snarling "Stick 'em up," that would be something. He waited for a few days, and he wasn't held up, and the holdup prospects didn't seem particularly bright, so he thought he'd better do something about it. He fixed his wallet with enough money, and not too much, so that he'd go unmolested if he surrendered it, and walked the streets downtown up and down for hours, and never even got a nibble. He's quite disappointed.

Don't you think it's interesting to know—that Thomas Truxtun Hare, father of Frederic McLaughlin II.'s fiancée, Miss Katharine Sargent Hare, is listed in "Who's Who" as "lawyer, author," and that between the years 1907 and 1919 he wrote a series of collegiate books—one a year except in 1915—entitled, successively: "Making the Freshman Team," "A Sophomore Half Back," "A Junior in the Line," "A Senior Quarter Back," "A Graduate Coach," "Philip Kent," "Philip Kent in the Lower School," "Philip Kent in the Upper School," and "Kent of Malvern." With 1919 the list ceases.

Travel bulletin—Mr. and Mrs. John Bancroft Hammond [she was Betty Williamson before last May 23] are moving from Buffalo, N. Y., to Peterboro, Canada [that's where the canoes and boats are made, isn't it?] because of Mr. Hammond's business . . . Mrs. Charles W. McNear and Mrs. Horatio Hackett were to depart early this morning to motor north around the lake for a series of visits. They'll stop to see the Neil C. Wards at their place at Batchawana bay, will go to Desbarats, and then, coming down on the Michigan side, will sojourn at Harbor Springs with the Byron Giffords . . . Theodore Sheldon went up to Batchawana for some fishing with the Wards last week, and James Curtis departed for the same destination Sunday night . . . Charles H. Swift sailed on the Ile de France on Saturday to join Mrs. Swift in Paris.

Society Hears About Prince's Special Auto

BY MILDRED JAKLON.

OUR London correspondent understands that the new car just built for the prince of Wales is a duplicate of the one designed by Sir Dennistoun Burney, whose wife is, as you know, the former Gladys High of Chicago. And such an automobile as it is! "It looks on the road like a black and red monster, but is really the embodiment of every comfort. It is built on stream lines and has two headlights like giant glaring eyes set in its sloping front. It is capable of enough speed to lift it momentarily off the ground. The engine is at the rear of the chassis, the roof runs in a semi-circle from the extreme front of the chassis to the end of the tail, and the top half of the vehicle is almost entirely of glass."

It seems that the thing is so weird looking that crowds gather around it all the time, and the Burneys can very easily be tracked all over London. Lady Burney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Henry High, are in England now for their annual summer visit, and perhaps Mr. High, who has won lots of prizes in amateur photography shows for his pictures, will bring back camera shots of the new motor car.

HEIR TO CROWN HAS ONE

This auto, built to reduce air resistance and increase speed, is designed by Sir Dennistoun Burney, well known to many Chicagoans, and famous as a designer of British airships. He was photographed as he looked at the engine that is at the rear of the car. The prince of Wales is said to have one of these autos.

Stories Enrich Heirs More Than They Did the Author

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The short stories of Richard Harding Davis are bringing more money to his widow and daughter than they ever brought to the author during his highly successful career, it was disclosed today. His net estate, $49,029 in 1916, the year of his death, has grown to $136,000.

Accounting filed in the surrogate's office at White Plains by the Bank of America as executor and trustee shows the increased royalties due chiefly to the sale of motion picture rights. Motion picture and dramatic rights since February, 1918, have brought in $65,613, but the largest item in this total is $54,000 received from the Fox Film corporation for the rights to sixty-seven stories.

Mr. Davis died April 11, 1916, at Mount Kisco. His widow, Mrs. Elizabeth McEvoy Davis, better known by her former stage name, Bessie McCoy, and his daughter, Miss Hope Davis, receive the interest from the estate, Mrs. Davis' share being contingent on her refraining from marrying.

Black Shows Beneath the Smart White Coat

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—No sooner do we get all set with the white dress and dark coat ensemble that we have been rightly told is the favorite child of Paris styles, than along comes somebody with a reversal of the idea, and a new fashion is on.

Every woman has a dead, chalk, or pure white dress this summer, worn with a coat or jacket of dusky tone, but the occasional white coat with a dark or black frock that is seen in Paris has the advantage of looking exclusive and new, and when anything looks exclusive and new it has a fashion future. Women who haven't hopelessly overspent their clothes budget are rushing about in search of a white coat or jacket, and when they choose it they pick out one that is short enough so all the world may see it is worn over a dark or black frock. Three-quarters is the length, as you may see by looking at the plaster white crêpe marocain coat sketched today. This is the coat that began all the excitement and cut in seriously on dark colored coat fashions. It has neither collar nor revers, but a double breasted closing, fastened by two big black onyx rings passing through buttonholes. Schiaparelli designed it as her own interpretation of the redingote.

Food Talk.

The large green peppers generally used for a garnish or as a flavoring material are rarely allowed to play the rôle of a green vegetable. But this they can do most admirably. A recipe recently brought to our attention and tried in our kitchen is of broiled peppers. It is a method often used by Italian families. The peppers are left whole and one broils them as one would broil meat or fish. The desired number of peppers is placed on the broiler and then near the broiling flame, turning often at first just like steaks.

Once the peppers are yellowed by the heat, they should be withdrawn and cooked at a lower temperature until tender. They require about 15 minutes to cook. Remove from the broiler, split in half and remove the seeds quickly. Sprinkle with salt and add about 1 tablespoon of olive oil. Send piping hot to the table. These are delicious served with spaghetti in tomato sauce or with rice.

Still another pleasing way to use the peppers is to cut them in inch crosswise slices and fill with hamburger filling. Pack the seasoned meat lightly into the pepper rings, making sure that the surface of the hamburger is as smooth as possible on both bottom and the top. A smooth surface is essential to accomplish the perfect searing of the meat on both sides. Place the meat in a hot frying pan brushed lightly with oil. Sear the meat well on both sides, then reduce the heat and cook about five minutes.

½ teaspoon salt,
Dash of pepper,
1 medium sized onion finely chopped,
2 tablespoons cooking sherry,

SALMON SALAD.

3 stalks celery, diced, or
2 pickles diced,
1 head of lettuce,
2 hard cooked eggs,
Mayonnaise dressing,
French dressing,
1 cucumber sliced.

A red salmon makes the most attractive salad. Remove the bones and skin and break into large flakes with two forks. Add the celery or pickle, then just enough mayonnaise to bind together. Pile salad lightly onto crisp beds of lettuce. Garnish with slices of hard cooked egg and pieces of cucumber dipped into French dressing.

PEACH COBBLER.

1 cup sugar,
1 tablespoon butter,
Rich biscuit dough.

Choose juicy, fine flavored peaches. Peel and slice directly into a deep pan (holding at least 1½ quarts) that has been rubbed over with butter. After a layer of peaches is in, sprinkle with sugar, then repeat with another layer of peaches and more sugar until all are used. Dot the top over with butter. Roll out the biscuit dough to a depth of a ¼ inch. Place over the top of the peaches. Cut off the dough around the edges so that it does not quite touch the pan. This allows for the escape of steam, and prevents the loss of the juices.

Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) until crust is a golden brown. Then reduce oven to medium temperature (375 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake until peaches are soft. Baking requires about 30 to 35 minutes. When natural heat is just about out of the cobbler it is in its most delicious state. Cut the cobbler in about 3½ inch squares and serve all the fruit and juice that belongs with each square of crust. This cobbler is delicious unadorned or it may be served with cream or a vanilla sauce.

Yield: 4 to 5 servings.

DON'T be confused by the careless expression, "just like Kotex." Perhaps the substitute looks the same. But demand to know more. Where was this substitute made? By whom? How? Who stands back of it? Is it hygienically safe . . . the kind of sanitary pad a hospital would select?

Last year more than 10,000,000 Kotex pads were used in hospitals. This is the pad that meets hospital requirements! You should be equally strict in selecting an accessory so definitely related to health.

Insist on Kotex. It's the world's standard. In addition, Kotex is supremely comfortable. Shaped to fit. Soft—and stays soft. Adjustable. Disposable. May be worn on either side with equal protection.

U.S. ASKS MEXICO TO KEEP CLAIMS TREATIES ALIVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—With some $600,000,000 in American claims at stake, the United States government is negotiating with the government of Mexico for an extension of the conventions under which claims commissions have been acting.

Rather, the commissions have not been acting, and there lies the reason why this government is determined that if another commission is appointed there is going to be a change of personnel and of method.

There also lies the reason why Fred K. Nielsen, the American commissioner and international lawyer of wide repute, is quitting the general claims commission in disgust.

Date Back to Huerta Regime.

The treaties under which the claims are being considered expire this month. It is admitted that if the Mexican government cannot be persuaded into an extension within the next three months or so, then the settlement of the American claims can be looked on as a matter indefinitely postponed.

Many of the American claims date back several years to the Huerta régime and the days of Villa. Some are the outgrowth of revolutionary raids on American property; others resulted from the application of the Mexican land laws.

The treaties, orginally negotiated in 1924, already have been once extended. Their expiration now is considered to have fallen in very aptly with the Mexican policy. Since the sums claimed by Americans far overtop the comparatively nominal sums claimed by Mexicans against the United States, postponement is all to Mexico's advantage.

Mexico already has laid down certain terms which are unacceptable to the United States. For one thing, she wants all future hearings held in Mexico City. For another, she wants the claims growing out of the Huerta rebellion and Villa's raiding activities excluded.

In addition to opposing these conditions the United States is insisting on a new deal. The state department is not talking about it through fear of jeopardizing the pending negotiations, but the long and short of it is that the tactics of the two Latin-American members of the commission have not been pleasing to this country.

Fernandes MacGregor, Mexican commissioner, and Horacio Alfaro of Panama, selected as the neutral member, have been accused of taking counsel with each other in the absence of Mr. Nielsen and to the prejudice of American interests. When not doing this they have been doing nothing at all, it is alleged. When Mr. Nielsen politely expressed the opinion that a commission of three should function as a commission of three, far off in Mexico City stories about Mr. Nielsen began to appear in the papers.

Some Outside Source.

Presumably inspired from some outside source, these stories indicated that Mr. Nielsen was not the type of man who could be counted on to serve with fairness. Mr. Nielsen has made to reply to these attacks, but has let it be known that he is through serving on any more commissions in which Mexico is the other party. He will go to Europe to sit on the commission called to adjudicate the claim of George J. Salem against the Egyptian government.

Though saying nothing official, the American government, it is intimated, has experienced a change of heart since the day it approved the naming of Mr. Alfaro as neutral commissioner. It will insist on some one else, if there is to be a next time, and on a change of procedural methods.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Gov. Paul M. Pearson of the Virgin islands has won the first brush in his feud with Herbert D. Brown, chief of the bureau of efficiency. An attempt made yesterday by Mr. Brown to have the governor ousted met with an announcement by the interior department today that Dr. Pearson would be given additional time to try out his theories of island management and that no changes were contemplated in the immediate future.

H. D. BROWN. [(C) Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Dr. Pearson, a former executive in the Swarthmore college chautauqua system, was appointed by President Hoover. He reports directly to the department of the interior since the Virgin islands were transferred to the interior department last winter from the navy on the recommendation of Mr. Brown. It was Mr. Brown also who picked Dr. Pearson for the new post.

Sent by Congress.

The interest taken by the bureau of efficiency chief in the islands originated in the circumstance that congressional committees sent him on three investigating trips to the islands in the last two years. Brown's break with his appointee came shortly after Brown went to the islands last spring to assist Dr. Pearson in working out administrative reforms. Pearson said he desired to run the islands without Brown's personal help. Mr. Brown returned to Washington.

Immediately afterward it was made known that Mr. Brown had filed a report with President Hoover criticizing Gov. Pearson, saying Pearson had hired a director of public entertainment and was paying him $3,900 a year to regale the 22,000 natives with Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. It was the efficiency chief's contention that this position had not been authorized by congress and was a waste of money. Mr. Brown also criticized the appointment of a commissioner of industry and a supervisor of community activities.

Creates Four New Jobs.

The present governor has created four positions in the islands which were not specifically provided for by congress. These are a commissioner of industry at a salary of $4,400; a post now held by Harry E. Taylor; supervisor of handicraft, Ruth Martin; supervisor of home and school associations, Mary L. Flynn, and supervisor of community activities, $3,900, Ralph Dunbar.

Dunbar, a chautauqua friend of Dr. Pearson, brought forty trunks of costumes to the islands and staged "Pinafore" with native talent. Such entertainments are now taking the place formerly filled by the navy band. Miss Flynn devotes her time to teaching the native women how to make their homes attractive.

The next stage of the duel is expected to come when congress meets.

FICTION TAG ON SAILORS' BRAWL IRKS MARINER

They Still Knock 'Em Cold, It Seems.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 4.—D. H. Search, who seems to be a sailor in the merchant marine, writes a letter on the stationery of the Seamen's Church institute of New York, protesting against my recent suggestion that sailors' brawls occur more often in the feature supplements of newspapers and between the covers of books about the sea than along the docks.

JACK KEARNS.

Up to now no such protest has come from the longshoremen whose docility in the presence of the labor racketeers who tell them where they may work and charge them for the privilege contrasts so sharply with their reputation for impulsive quarrelsomeness. So has there been any response from any of the veterans of the Alaska gold rush whose mighty tempers and sportsman endurance seemed to have been slightly exaggerated by Robert W. Service and Jack London.

Kearns Confirms Suspicion.

Instead, Jack Kearns, the manager of Mickey Walker, who says he was in Alaska at the time Tex Rickard was there, was inclined to confirm the suspicion that fiction had overdrawn things and that those who were there had instinctively bound themselves into an unorganized brotherhood, all for one and one for all, with an unspoken but effective pledge never to question another man's story of what he had seen and endured. These speculations were occasioned by the obituaries of Wolf Larsen, the Scandinavian sailor and prize fighter who never amounted to much in the ring, but who, when he died, was alleged to have thrown another man through a wooden door in a pleasure fight.

Mr. Kearns remarked that when he was in Alaska it was always the big man who had to be carried in off the trail and the little, spare man who carried him in. It was a shocking betrayal of the "God how cold it was" and the "Those were men in those days" school of prose and verse, but Mr. Kearns, who says he was there, insists that a man could get as cold in a real cold day in Minneapolis, and moreover, that a lot of the boys spent much of their time hugging the stoves.

Mr. Search writes: "The time that you visited the seamen's mission, or institute, on West street, several years ago, hardly gave you a true picture of the American seaman in action. Of course, these institutions are conducted under church supervision and must be kept on the up and up. And while seamen are dumb they can still see that they must cooperate a little if any benefits are to be derived.

"Now, if you really want to see the seaman perform, drop down here on South street some evening with a few bucks—I am broke, myself—and I will try to steer you around a bit.

"As an example, only last night three fellows went to the Broad street hospital, two of them with just minor injuries such as ribs, eyes, and mouth, but the third with a place on his head, caused by a blow with a beer bottle, which required seven stitches. I know; I saw it.

"I admit that doesn't happen every

FOX RIVER IS SO LOW MOTORISTS USE IT FOR ROAD

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sheridan, Ill., Aug. 4.—The Fox river is making a valiant attempt down here to be the kind of a stream canoeists, fishermen and campers want for their outdoor sports. Since leaving Yorkville THE TRIBUNE pathfinding canoe has been following a winding channel, pretty much devoid of the dense weed beds that make boating impossible on much of the way between Aurora and Yorkville.

Shortly after the getaway at Yorkville the Fox began to hint how it was going to conduct itself while hurrying down to Ottawa through a valley that has a new charm with every bend of the channel. The swift flowing water spread out over broad sparkling sand and gravel bars, sometimes hitched through small riffles, and then eased off into long pools in which we could see small bass, catfish and lazy carp and red horse.

Islands Make Work.

Given six more inches or a full foot of water, this stream between Yorkville and Ottawa would delight any canoeist, although more water would be needed for the outboard motorist. Camping spots are numerous among tall sycamores, cottonwoods, maples, and oaks.

Occasionally a string of small tree covered islands appeared, forcing us to follow many a twist and turn as we try to find enough water to keep moving. The problem now, in view of the very low water level, is not how far you can paddle in a day, but to find enough water to float a canoe.

Our camp last night was in an exceptionally beautiful stretch below what is known as the Plano bridge, where high timbered hills press close and force the river through small rapids. Below the fast water, an old dam provides another swift pitch for our TRIBUNE canoe. Near this noisy dam stands an old grist mill dated 1870. Its water wheels have been quiet many years, but the tall structure of Illinois limestone has been turned into a comfortable summer camp by the Chicago Y. W. C. A.

This morning we slipped our canoe into the water shortly after six o'clock, a good hour on this river because pace is slow when you must get out and hike down the middle of the stream in order to get your loaded canoe over gravel bars. With no news stand near, we had to forego our copy of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE until we reached Sheridan. Campers and fishermen were the only occupants of the river at this hour. At the little village of Millington we counted 15 fishermen near an old rock

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

It must be just newspaper talk, but we hear that there is going to be lively interest in the 1931 football season, after all. The Carnegie Foundation fellows reported a few weeks ago that the game's popularity was on the wane and that the situation was well in hand.

Then came a piece from the University of Michigan that the demand for tickets to this year's games at Ann Arbor was the heaviest since 1927. Northwestern reports that business is as brisk as it was at this time a year ago. Orders are said to be rolling in to Art Haley's office down at Notre Dame with old time speed.

The reformers ought to look into this right away. Conditions are getting no better fast. After all the time and money and effort they have spent attempting to take the emphasis out of the game, the situation really is deplorable. One of these days the deadly virus may extend to the high schools and you will read about 100,000 watching a game between Lindblom and Loyola at Soldiers' field.

The indictment against great crowds at college games is that it tends to overemphasize the sport. Efforts to curb the interest of the fans in football strikes me as a futile gesture whether the stimulus comes from the Carnegie foundation or the North Central association. It seems to have been fairly well established that nothing can be done to underemphasize the game the way it has spread in recent years among undergraduates and graduates.

I haven't read everything that has been printed against football, but have heard of no convincing treatise that the game is detrimental to the educational advancement of the freshman mind, if any. Until a foolproof paper has been prepared on the subject, I should think the deans and the head masters would be content to adopt a philosophical attitude toward the situation.

Few colleges have suffered any noticeable defamation of character because of the extraordinary ability of their half backs. And more to the point, some of these brilliant ball carriers prosper in other fields after they leave the campus despite the vicious influence of the overemphasized sport to which they have been exposed.

A VOTE FOR WILSON.

"I am a Cub fan. Nothing extraordinary about that, to be sure, but I am a Cub fan of a rather extinct class. I belong to the group that thinks the team is great even when the sluggers are hitting only .067.

"Last year Hack Wilson was the biggest hero in Chicago. This year, but why go into that? Chicago fans have been known as loyal, but they look like a bunch of quitters to me right now.

"No one is more conscious of Wilson's slump than Hack himself. No one knows how hard he is trying to pull himself out of it. There is a man for you, fighting away day after day to regain his lost punch and getting the Bronx cheer to urge him on.

"I wish you would urge the Cub fans to stick by Wilson. Show them how unfeeling and yellow they are. That just isn't the spirit of baseball or of Chicago.

"Wilson is not and never was my favorite player, but I think more of him now than I can hope to explain. What more can I say?"

BABE CARRIES ON.

It is interesting to observe that Babe Ruth, who was a rival of Hack Wilson for home run honors last season, shows little signs of slowing up. When he was passed by Wilson as a long range slugger last year it was feared that a vagrant hot dog had become lodged in his heart valve and that the home run king was through.

But here he is at 37, hitting .380, which is 15 points higher than his average a year ago today. He has smacked only 28 home runs against 36 at this stage last season, but he is showing all his old time pepper.

There was a feeling when the Yankees granted him a two year contract in 1930 at $80,000 a season that his period of usefulness would be over at its expiration.

But Col. Ruppert may have to talk big figures again when the Babe comes around to sign up for the season of 1932.

PICK COL. WINN TO HEAD NEW $2,000,000 TRACK

New York, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Col. Matt J. Winn, president of the American Turf association, which has jurisdiction over Chicago and Kentucky tracks, today accepted the post of executive director of the newly formed Miami Beach Jockey club.

In making this announcement, Thomas V. O'Connor, chairman of the board of the Florida organization, said Col. Winn would begin his duties at once, although it is not planned to open the Miami Beach track until the winter of 1932-'33.

Risko Defeats Christner in 12 Rounds at Cleveland

Cleveland, O., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Hitting his opponent almost at will, Johnny Risko, the Cleveland ex-baker boy, tonight won a twelve round decision over Meyer [K. O.] Christner of Akron, O. Risko's victory evened up for a loss in their only previous encounter.

ROBERTI LASTS 3 ROUNDS WITH PRIMO CARNERA

Newark, N. J., Aug. 5.—[Special.]—Primo Carnera, giant Italian, knocked out Roberto Roberti, also of Italy, in three rounds here tonight before a crowd of 12,000.

Aside from the first round, when Roberti was fairly successful at long range, Carnera was in command. He reached Roberti with lefts and rights and scored the first knockdown midway in the second round with a two fisted attack to the face. Roberti took a count of seven and arose comparatively fresh, but soon went down again for a six count.

He took another as the result of a left to the jaw, and then sagged helplessly to the floor twice more under the force of a heavy body attack. Carnera forced his rival to retreat continuously until Roberti reached the ropes, where he sank to the floor exhausted. He attempted to rise, but the referee stopped the bout.

Shut That Cellar Door, Boy! Our Sox Trounce Tigers, 5-1

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 4.—Victor Frasier, the victory kid, pitched another masterpiece against the Detroit Tigers this afternoon and—(we know this will make you happy)—tomorrow the White Sox triumphantly will return home, not in the cellar, but right up there in the sunlight of seventh place in the American league standings.

The score today was Chicago, 5; Detroit, 1, and the outcome might easily have been Frasier's second shutout of the four game crucial series but for a little dizziness in the outfield which enabled Stone's legitimate single in the sixth to bloom as a phoney triple. But Victor is a lad as wants to win regardless and cares little for a run more or less if his team has more runs.

It Was a GREAT Trip.

As baseball lovers everywhere know, today's contest was pretty important, for the Sox would have plunked right back into the cellar had they lost—in the cellar where they were when they left home. And all their valiant work on this prolonged trip would have counted for naught.

And say what you will, neighbors, it was a great trip, considering the harassing problems with which Manager Donie Bush was confronted, due to having only three pitchers in working condition and two of them wabbly as often as they were good.

Our Sox Won Nine, Mates!

The Sox won nine games on the trip, which is many more than any one dreamed they could win. And it isn't going too far into the realm of second guess to say there were five other games that were waiting to be won if the Comiskey frugality campaign relative to pitching replacements hadn't been raging to present one of the most ridiculous situations in the recent history of major league baseball.

Incidentally, however, it was rumored here today that Mr. Comiskey has spoken from his retreat in the Wisconsin woods and may relent. It is said that spirited efforts are being made to recall Lou Garland from Dallas, Tex., and Bob Weiland from Louisville, Ky. Both clubs think they are in their respective pennant races, however, and are reluctant to help Mr. Comiskey out of his jam.

The Browns Are Next.

The Sox will rest tomorrow, then on Thursday will face another severe test of their pitiably undermanned status. They will play six games with St. Louis in four days, including double headers Saturday and Sunday.

The three run rally the Sox perpetrated in the third inning was the first scoring of the game. This cluster was accomplished despite the depressing effect of a characteristic double play tap by Reynolds. The foray opened with a walk to Frasier, after which Blue was hit by a pitched ball. Sullivan singled, scoring Frasier and putting Blue on third and Blue scored while Sullivan and Reynolds were sinking in a double play. Fonseca singled to right and proceeded to second when Johnson juggled the ball. Fothergill singled to center, scoring Fonseca and went to third on Kerr's single. Cissell forced Kerr for the third out.

The Sox seemed in a fair way to add at least one run in the fourth when Grube led off with a double, but Johnson made a shoestring catch of Frasier's drive and threw to Owen in time to double Grube off second. Hogsett then threw out Blue.

Tiger Threat Failed.

In the fifth the Tigers stirred up a threat after two were out. Hogsett singled and stopped at third on Johnson's double. Then Fonseca went to the score board in left center to pull down Gehringer's drive.

The manner in which the Tigers scored their first run of the series off Frasier, in the sixth, was slightly spurious. Stone opened with a hit over Sullivan, which bounced past Fonseca and was scored a triple. Stone held third while Kerr was throwing out Alexander and scored on Quellich's grounder to Blue. McManus flied to Fothergill.

The Sox made two runs in the seventh. Blue singled to right, went to second on Sullivan's sacrifice, to third while Gehringer was tossing out Reynolds, and scored on Fonseca's

Bush and Sweetland Hurl Victories.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mainly because Vin Barton, the recent import from the Coast league, got loose again with his bat, the Cubs took a double bite out of the already badly mangled Reds yesterday. Battle No. 1 resulted in a 4 to 2 victory, with Guy Bush performing at his best before a turnout of 37,000. The second game was almost as simple for Les Sweetland, barring an eighth inning which for a few moments had the Cubs' lead down to one run. They adjusted that in their portion of the same inning to triumph, 7 to 3.

VINCENT BARTON.

Despite the double jolt, the Reds didn't count the afternoon an absolute loss. They finally broke the spell that had kept them from getting a runner around to the plate. They performed this miracle in the sixth against Bush, thus ending their scoreless string at 45 innings.

Barton Collects Two Homers.

The deeds of young Barton didn't become noteworthy until the second battle. In the first affair he singled twice off Larry Benton, driving in one run, but this was a mere warmup. In the concluding battle he started Ben Frey on the slide with a homer in the second inning. In the sixth he did it again, this time with a mate on base. One of these taps was close to the flag pole and of the right field bleachers, the other well down toward center. Then, as an appropriate way of tapering off, he hit a single as part of the three run rally with which the north siders made the decision secure in the eighth.

For the final with the Reds today, and the last at Wrigley field for three weeks, Hornsby plans to start Ed Baecht, thus reserving Pat Malone for the opener at St. Louis Friday. Red Lucas will be the Cincinnati choice.

FIRST GAME

Blair bounced a double over Hendrick's head with one out in the third and that started the scoring in the first game. English followed with a single too hot for Durocher to handle and Blair scored. Cuyler hit safely to right, putting English on third. Barton also singled to right, English scoring and Cuyler drifting over to third. D. Taylor sent a fly to Crabtree and Cuyler figured there was a chance to get home after the catch. Crabtree's accurate throw nailed him.

The pair of Cubs' runs in the fifth were picked up in much the same fashion as the previous two. With one out Blair hoisted a fly to short center and stretched it into a double with the help of Douthit, who slipped on the seat of his pants while fielding the ball. English doubled down the third base line, Blair going home. Cuyler's third successive hit was a single to center, English counting. Then Barton walked, but no help was offered by either D. Taylor or Grimm.

Reds Finally Score.

Crabtree's third single opened the sixth and started the end of the Reds' long scoring drought. A whale of a running catch by Cuyler robbed Cullop of a hit. Cuyler also took a fly

LOOKING IN ON SPORTS HAPPENINGS OF A DAY

Signs of the approaching football season. Dick Hanley, Northwestern grid coach, rounds up his summer coaching school class for instruction in football. Kiki Cuyler figured he would sneak home on Danny Taylor's short fly in the third inning of the first game with the Reds, but Crabtree's throw from center field was waiting for him when he arrived at the plate. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Jimmy Slattery skips the rope in his final workout for his bout with Maxie Rosenbloom at Ebbets field, Brooklyn, tonight. The challenger for the 174 pound title has not been impressive in his drills, but is confident of victory.

LADY DEAN WINS SHORE LAND IN A CANTER; PAYS 8-1

Jockey Hanford Set Down at Hawthorne.

BY FRENCH LANE.

There was an old fashioned Kentucky melon cutting in the running of the Shore Land purse, a dash at a mile and a sixteenth, at Hawthorne yesterday when Lady Dean at 8 to 1 galloped home an easy winner by four lengths.

Lady Dean had just traveled to Hawthorne from Latonia and was dropped in with a band of three year olds that had been running at Arlington. And when Clyde Van Dusen, one of the little giants among the country's trainers, lifted Jockey R. Tilden into the saddle she was full of run.

In fact she was in such a running mood she romped to the front a dozen strides after the field was in motion. She drew out into a three lengths advantage while wheeling around the club house turn and all Jockey Tilden had to do for the rest of the journey was to give her a few words of encouragement and enjoy the scenery.

Beats All Challengers.

There were numerous challenges. The French horse Quatre Bras II. made the first bold bid, going out of the back stretch. Lady Dean soon whipped him and he dropped back. Then Stone Martin and Mouthpiece tried to catch the flying Kentucky filly early in the stretch. They both gave it up as a bad job a sixteenth from home and Lady Dean was cantering and going easiest of all as she greeted the judges. Mouthpiece landed second and Deswasey, a far westerner, was third.

There was one incident in the race which helped Lady Dean roll up her easy triumph. Soon after the start as the field charged down toward the first turn, Jockey Hanford brought Mouthpiece over so sharply he cut off and pushed back everybody in the field except Lady Dean. Lady Dean was running faster than Mouthpiece or she might have been pushed back with the other stragglers.

Hanford Set Down.

For a time it looked like Mouthpiece might be ruled out of second money. But the original placing was allowed and Jockey Hanford, instead of the horse, was punished. He was banished for ten days.

Lady Dean races in the silks of Charles Fisher's Dixiana Farm stable. She is a daughter of Chilhowee-Dorothy Dean and when she won, it was the first time anybody knew there were folks and horses from old Kentucky trying for the Hawthorne prizes.

Lady Dean ran her mile and a sixteenth in 1:46 3-5, the best time of the day. In the mutuels she paid $17.56 to win, $5.16 to place, and $3.68 to show. Mouthpiece, the favorite, was $3.12 to place and $2.56 to show. Deswasey, the Californian, paid $6.08 to show.

Some of the best 2 year olds on the ground clashed in the Ambassador purse, which brought defeat to the heavily backed Unencumbered, running for Herbert M. Woolf of Kansas City.

Unencumbered had raced brilliantly at Arlington and the crowd at Hawthorne thought the son of Sweep On would be unbeatable in this contest. The Woolf color bearer broke on the inside and was away a trifle slow. He was forced back as the rest of the field fought on for the lead. Portden, from John Schorr's stable, soon raced to the front and, while the others tried desperately, they never caught him.

McCoy's Ride Good.

McCoy gave him a rousing ride in the stretch and he beat Prince Fox by a couple of lengths. Pending, from Mrs. Whitney's Greentree stable, was third. After his setback early in the race, Unencumbered did not threaten the leaders and the best he could do was finish fourth in the six horse field.

Schorr and his friends wagered heavily on Portden despite Unencumbered's good record. They got $8.90 for each two dollars invested. Portden ran his 5½ furlongs in 1:06 3-5.

Mark Arie Wins Opening Event of Eastern Shoot

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Mark Arie of Champaign, Ill., with a score of 146 out of 150, led a field of 46 in the Yorklyn introductory, opening event of the annual $7,000 T. Clarence Marshal shoot over the Yorklyn Gun club traps today. S. M. Crothers of Philadelphia was runner-up with 139.

New Totalizator at Hawthorne Is Accurate Check

The place and show totalizator at Hawthorne was operated more efficiently yesterday. Place and show prices were usually announced on the mutuel board before the total amount wagered was made public. Only a few expert mathematicians lingered long enough to figure how the announced amounts compared with the price paid.

They, however, discovered the board, while slow in operating, was accurate, and that it gave an approximate idea of what each horse was to pay for place and for show.

According to the totalizator board a total of $218,217 was wagered on place and show in the eight races. The exact figures follow:

Race—	—Amounts— Place.	Show.	Total.
First	$ 9,259	$ 12,828	$ 22,086
Second	11,190	14,450	25,640
Third	14,045	17,800	31,845
Fourth	15,425	16,186	31,611
Fifth	14,487	14,623	29,110
Seventh	13,182	13,428	26,610
Totals	$102,277	$115,940	$218,217

The amount of money wagered to win is not shown on the board, but on an average day it usually is about equal to the combined place and show total.

SMITTY—EVERY ONE TO HIS TRADE

WEIGHT DOESN'T SCARE SUN BEAU IN $25,000 RACE

Sun Beau has accepted his weight assignment of 131 pounds in the $25,000 added Hawthorne handicap of next Saturday afternoon.

Only a training mishap will keep him from starting, Trainer Jack Whyte said yesterday after he had held a lengthy telephone conversation with Willis Sharpe Kilmer, owner of the world champion.

Gallant Knight's leg ailment has not responded to treatment and he is regarded as a doubtful starter. However, the field promises to be of considerable size. Included among the probable starters are Satin Spar, Plucky Play, Paul Bunyan, Tannery, Silverdale, Mike Hall, The Nut, Epithet, Minotaur, Ironsides, Spanish Play, Brown Wisdom, and My Dandy.

For the first time in a number of seasons C. E. Durnell is going to pass us the Saratoga auctions this month. He has been among the most lively bidders at Saratoga for the last three years.

While there hasn't been a disqualification at Hawthorne, the officials are dealing out sentences right and left to the jockeys who are guilty of rough riding. Ten day vacations already have been handed to Jimmy Smith, G. Williams, and Buddy Hanford.

The mare Nellie Custis, after a long and brilliant career as a color bearer of the Audley Farm stable, has passed into the hands of a new owner. She is now the property of Bill Schmidt, the undertaker-turfman of Chicago, who grabbed her out of a claiming race for $3,900.

Dick Morris, which won the 6½ furlong second race yesterday, was the first favorite to win during the meeting. Maybe you think the favorite players were not beginning to yell.

C. C. Van Meter of Lexington lost his useful 3 year old old Black Comet yesterday on a claim to Ed Haughton, who trains the western division of Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree stable. The claiming price was $3,000.

The electric clock over on the stewards' stand in the infield simply won't behave. It starts all right, but on numerous occasions has forgotten to stop when the winner passes the line of finish. The split second clockers chortle long and loud when the electric timepiece fails to function.

BARNHART LOSES IN WASHINGTON PARK NET PLAY

Arthur Barnhart of Harvard university was eliminated in the third round of the United States open tennis tournament yesterday on the Washington park courts. Barnhart lost to T. J. Brown of Kansas City, 6-4, 6-2.

Others who will compete in the quarter final round today are Dudley Woodward, Washington, D. C., who defeated E. H. Webb, Chicago, 6-3, 8-6, and H. Lee, Chinese player, who won from A. Imala of the Phillipine Islands, 6-1, 6-4. Wilbur Clarke, Chicago Normal college, also advanced to the quarter finals, defeating Rosich, Loyola university, 7-5, 6-1.

Two matches were played in the men's doubles yesterday. Ewell and Parrish defeated Le Cesne and Webb, 6-3, 6-3, and Elam and Timmons triumphed over Wilson and Hill, 6-4, 6-4. Play will begin this afternoon for the women's championship. Yesterday's results:

T. J. Brown, Kansas City, beat Arthur Barnhart, Harvard U., 6-4, 6-2.

M. W. Clarke, Chicago, beat Eugene Turner, Chicago, 8-6, 3-6, 6-3.

Dudley Woodard, Washington, D. C., beat E. H. Webb, Chicago, 6-3, 8-6.

Babe Hits Homer; No More Balls, So They Call Game

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 4.—(AP)—More than 7,000 saw the New York Yankees and Springfield of the Eastern league play an exhibition game here today. The game ended in the Yankees' ninth, after Babe Ruth had hit his second home run, because there were no more baseballs and because youngsters by the hundreds encroached on the playing field. The score at the time was 7 to 5 in favor of the Yankees.

Patrick, Saltis to Headline Cepak Fight Card Friday

Mickey Patrick, East Chicago middleweight, and Bud Saltis, Chicago, have been signed by Promoter Billy Cepak to fight in the six round windup of the weekly show at Denemark stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue, Friday night. There will be four other six round bouts.

CARDS RALLY IN 6TH AND 7TH TO DEFEAT PIRATES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 4.—(AP)—The stretch of scoreless innings Pittsburgh has handed opponents reached 45 today before a fumble by Pitcher Heinie Haines in the sixth allowed St. Louis to tally three times and ultimately win the game, 7 to 1. Previously the Buccaneers had won four straight contests.

Jess Haines, who held the Pirates to seven hits, started the sixth inning assault on Meine with a single. Four more runs were added in the seventh.

The Pirates' lone run off Haines in the eighth, resulting from Jensen's triple and Grantham's single, was the first scored off the Cardinal hurler in 21 innings. Score:

In the first clash, Fred Fitzsimmons let the Brooklyn hits well scattered while the Giants drove Watson Clark from the mound in the eighth inning, scoring four runs to take the game.

Bill Walker pitched superbly in the second game, getting the better of Tony Vance in a mound duel in which each pitcher allowed six hits. Walker struck out eight. Scores:

New York, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Whatever the training faults of Maxie Rosenbloom, boxing's gift to the night clubs, it cannot be said the clowning king of the light heavyweights was picking his spots when he signed to meet Jimmy Slattery, the Buffalo boxer, in tomorrow night's fifteen round bout at Ebbets field.

In Slattery the champion meets the one man of his own weight who has been able to beat him with fair consistency over a period of years. Before he won the title Rosenbloom dropped four decisions to the Buffalo fighter, and in a subsequent fifteen rounder with the title at stake barely was able to gain a verdict. On that occasion the referee cast his vote for Slattery, but the two judges decided in favor of the champion.

Slattery evidently intends to make the supreme effort tomorrow night. Like Rosenbloom, he never has been known for the time he spent in training, but he has worked long and hard this time. Six weeks at Speculator have brought him down to what he considers his best fighting weight, 170 pounds. He appears to have some excess poundage around the middle but is not letting it worry him.

Rosenbloom has done little actual work in preparation for his title defense, but he has been fighting with such regularity in recent months his backers figure he will be able to go at top speed all the way. Current odds have the champion a 6 to 5 choice.

STONEHOUSE'S 142 LEADS INDIANA OPEN TOURNEY

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Five strokes ahead of the field, Ralph Stonehouse, Indianapolis public links course professional, held an undisputed lead at the halfway mark of the state open championship tournament tonight.

Stonehouse had two perfect rounds of 71, and from the time he came in with the early finishers it was just a contest to see who could come the nearest to him.

John Bird of St. John's, Ind., a professional, came in late with a 74, one more than he took in the morning, and it gave him 147 for second honors. Just before Bird came in Walter Murray, veteran Gary professional, reported 148 for third. Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis, twice holder of the title, had a 76 in the morning and cut three strokes on the second 18 for 149 and fourth.

MILLS TO MEET ALL-STARS.

The Mills and colored All-Stars will meet in a double header at Mills stadium Sunday. Stokes, former Braves' catcher, will be behind the plate in one of the contests.

Zeigler, State Legion Champ, Defends Diamond Title Friday

Down in southern Illinois, tucked away in the corner of Franklin county, is a small mining town called Zeigler. Until the last couple of years only persons acquainted with the coal industry were aware of its existence. A colony of some 2,000 odd folk goes quietly about its way, not attracting attention, but times are changing for little Zeigler.

The little mining hamlet doesn't need a trumpeter, a press agent, or any other device to put the town on the map in a big way. A group of boys, the Zeigler American Legion junior baseball team, is attending to that while playing their favorite sport.

Play in Chicago Friday.

Zeigler's boys are coming to Chicago to play at Wrigley field Friday against the winners of the Chicago district American Legion baseball elimination series. Zeigler was state champion last year and is out to repeat in the best two out of three game series at the home of the Cubs.

Of the fifteen youths comprising the roster of the Zeigler club, only one is of American descent. Six are Croatians, two are Finnish, and the others are Lithuanians, Russians, French, Slavs, Hungarians, and Austrians. Who said baseball was an American game?

Grew Up Playing Baseball.

These boys, 14 to 16 years of age, all sons of miners in southern Illinois bituminous coal fields, have been playing baseball ever since they were big enough to lift a ball. Let their record speak for itself:

In 1928 Zeigler won the 24th district Legion championship, but lost the divisional play-off to Fairfield, Ill. In 1929 it played 24 games, losing three, and was eliminated in the second game of the state finals. The team batted .336 that year and fielded .926.

Last year, when the team won the state championship, thirty games were played, and only two resulted in defeat. The boys were eliminated in the regional No. 5 game by Springfield, Mo., but they gathered some solace in the fact that they had a season fielding average of .909 and a batting mark of .340.

Win 23 This Year.

This season, while capturing the fifth division championship, Zeigler has won 23 of 26 games. The boys are hitting harder than ever, for their batting mark is .342 and they're fielding at a .934 clip.

John Venoski, 16, Lithuanian; pitcher.
Steve Sortal, 15, Russian; utility outfielder.
Mike Melosevich, 16, Croatian; shortstop.

Legion Juniors Play for County Title Tonight

South Chicago and Berwyn will play for the Cook county championship of the American Legion Junior Baseball league at 6 o'clock tonight at Mills stadium. South Chicago entered the finals by defeating the Marine Post, 11 to 4, at Grant park last night.

South Chicago took an early lead, scoring two runs in the third inning, a run in the fourth and another in the fifth gave South Chicago a 4 to 0 advantage, but the score was tied when Marine Post counted four times in the sixth.

The victors again took the lead by scoring in the seventh and five hits gave them six more runs in the eighth. McKuchy, South Chicago hurler, struck out 18 batters.

The winner of tonight's game will play Zeigler, Ill., 1930 state champion, and which won the downstate title last Sunday. The Zeigler series will be best two out of three games at Wrigley field, starting Friday for the Illinois state title. The South Chicago-Marine Post score:

Marine Post	000	004	00— 4
South Chicago	002	110	16—11

Batteries—Bunge and Fauna; McKuchy and Halem.

Fox River So Low Motorist Drives in It

Although this part of the Fox river is devoid of good sized towns, the use of the stream by outdoor fans continues to be amazing. Nearly every desirable camping spot belongs to a group of tent dwellings, including family parties. Every hole in the river that measures between two and three feet in depth has a standing room only sign on it for the fishermen, who mostly are after catfish and bullheads. They splash around in the shallow water with bait cans tied to their belts. If they are lucky, their catch is tied up in a similar manner.

This low water condition can be an asset, it was proved this morning when we were quietly paddling along a broad stretch of the Fox watching a pair of night herons. Suddenly we heard an automobile on the left. It dashed out of the woods, rolled over the low bank and headed for the opposite bank. Suddenly the driver stopped, shifted gears, swung the car and turned it around almost in midstream. Because the Fox was so low he was simply finding it easier to turn around in the river than on a woods road.

From Sheridan, the Fox goes about 20 miles where it reaches the Illinois and empties its water. This stretch, combined with the Yorkville-Sheridan section is without doubt the best bet for the canoeist who wants beautiful country, few towns, good camping shoots and a fairly short paddle. However, the wise canoeist will wait until the river has a couple more gallons of water in it.

CALL MASSMEETING

Coöperative action to bring about and maintain the normal water level in Fox river, now weed ridden and at one of the lowest levels in 20 years, was sought at a massmeeting called yesterday by the Fox River Valley federation. The meeting will be held next week at the federation offices in Geneva.

Among those who conferred on the situation yesterday were Lester Norris of St. Charles, federation president; E. A. Keplar, secretary; Col. W. C. Weeks, Chicago, war department engineer; W. G. Potter of the state waterways divisions, and F. M. Burnett, river and dam inspector in the federation offices. They discussed the menace to health and the natural beauty of the valley due to the continued low water level in the river and decided to call a public meeting of water power users and civic authorities in an effort to adopt coöperative measures to regulate the river flow.

The authorities in control of the regulatory dam at McHenry, which maintains the water level in the chain of lakes region, also will be invited to the meeting.

Bob Becker, now on a canoe cruise on the river, has called attention in recent articles in THE TRIBUNE to the dangerous low water level in the river, terming the stream in the Elgin vicinity "more walkable than navigable." Scores of complaints have been received at the federation offices concerning the dry river bed.

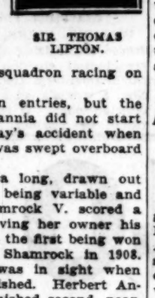
FLORALS PLAY MADISON.

The Madison Blues of the Wisconsin State league will meet the Duffy Florals in a double header at Shewbridge field next Sunday.

Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V. Is King Cup Victor

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

COWES, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The grand old man of yachting, Sir Thomas Lipton, captured the king's cup with the America's cup challenger Shamrock V. in the royal yacht squadron's regatta today. He watched the race from his steam yacht Erin.



SIR THOMAS LIPTON.

The event was raced under new conditions, the race being open to all British yachts of 60 feet ratings and upwards, sailing on a time allowance, instead of being competed for by members of the squadron racing on handicap terms.

There were ten entries, but the king's yacht Britannia did not start following yesterday's accident when the second mate was swept overboard and drowned.

The race was a long, drawn out affair, the breeze being variable and flukey. The Shamrock V. scored a run away win, giving her owner his second king's cup, the first being won by the 23 meter Shamrock in 1908. No other yacht was in sight when the Shamrock finished. Herbert Andrew's Candida finished second, nearly half an hour later.

FICTION TAG ON SAILORS' BRAWL IRKS A MARINER

night, but there are plenty of interesting sights, well worth the price of a few 10 cent beers."

Doesn't Want Special Brawl.

It would be just my luck to be down there drinking 10 cent beers in the interests of journalism on one of those off nights when this wasn't happening, and I wouldn't have Mr. Search promote a sailors' brawl as a special demonstration for me. Once, at college during football practice, the head coach walked over to the sidelines where several noncombatants were standing and I asked him if the boys were going to have scrimmage that afternoon.

"Well, not for my special benefit," I said, "but if you're to have scrimmage——"

"O. K.," he said. "You want to see scrimmage. We'll scrimmage for you," and with that he blew his whistle, and yelled some orders and the A and B teams fell in for scrimmage. And, on the second play one of the most likeable and efficient young men on the squad broke his right hand. In a special demonstration brawl, those sailors just might kill some one.

Not a Regular Occurrence.

I suppose the sailors on the water fronts of New York and Liverpool and such ports do have their spontaneous social disagreements from time to time and settle them in the manner so proudly described by Mr. Search. But, as he says, these incidents are not matters of regular occurrence and from his description of this particular sailors' brawl I do not gather that they brawl with any greater abandon than other people under corresponding conditions and provocation.

There was a news story in the papers last week about a gentlemen sailors' brawl on a yacht in Long island sound in which a famous young millionaire who has flown across the Atlantic was reported to have inflicted damage on his particular opponent much more serious that the worst damage described by Mr. Search.

There is a literary tradition that sailors, cargo handlers and members of a couple of other trades are great natural brawlers, but the reputation is due in part to publicity. If the spontaneous fist fights and bottle fights which occur in private clubs on beer nights, and even on casual nights, received the same degree of publicity, the operators of the sightseeing buses would have their barkers on Broadway yelling to the out of town trade, "Ride past the swell clubs and see the millionaires brawl."

But the millionaires and the young gentlemen of certain colleges do not seek the brawling reputation. When they brawl they do it unaffectedly out of artistic enthusiasm and if any one is hurt, the police record reads: "Broken arm; contusions and abrasions; accidentally fell down."

"Two Years Before the Mast" dealt with the time when iron men sailed wooden ships, but that abused and desperate crew stood silent when the captain flogged one of their shipmates to exhaustion, though they were very angry about it.

Japanese Golfer Shoots 72; Leads in Public Links

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Arthur Sato, a Japanese fish salesman from San Francisco, was the story in the first 18 hole round for medalist honors in the National Public Links gold championship today.

Defying a heavy southwester which sent scores soaring, the 115 pound Nipponese blazed his way over the championship Keller course with the only par 72 performance of the day to take the lead by two strokes. His work also lifted the San Francisco team into first place by four strokes with a four man total of 313 at the halfway mark in play for the Warren G. Harding trophy, emblem of public links team supremacy.

Sato, a native of Japan who learned his golf only six years ago from Jimmy Duncan, made only two mistakes on his found, which found him even with par at the end of the outgoing and incoming nines, and made up for them by spearing two birdies.

Trailing the diminutive pace setter by two strokes came Charles Albertus of Philadelphia, Pa.; Art Nutting of Louisville, Ky., and David Mitchell of Indianapolis, Ind. Albertus scored a par 36 going out but fell afoul of the wind on his way back and took a 38 for his 74. Mitchell burned up the course with a par shattering 34 out, but fell apart on his return with a 40, while Nutting tallied a pair of 37s, one shot over par on each nine.

Bob Wingate of Jacksonville, Fla., defending champion, was forced to make a sensational finish to creep away from the danger line of qualification for the title grind, which starts with the 32 low scorers for the 36 hole qualifying round Thursday. Standing on the 18th tee, Wingate was nine strokes over par.

Taking a chance with the treacherous wind, he cracked a long tee shot and then spanked an iron second that holed out for a startling deuce on the 468 yard, par five hole. The break gave him a 78 for his shaky round.

So hard was the traveling against the wind that less than 40 broke 80, indicating that a 156 total for the 36 holes would be good enough to qualify.

Logan Square A. C. Holds Its Annual Frolic Today

The Logan Square Athletic club will hold its midsummer frolic under the direction of Harry Schroeder, chairman of the golf committee, at the St. Andrews Country club today.

GOLF, THEN MORE GOLF AT CHICAGO CLUBS IN AUGUST

Invitation, Official Meets Share Popularity.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

There hasn't been an idle day on Chicago's golf calendar since the season started, but the next two weeks stand out as a pair of the busiest seen in these parts in some time. Today's schedule alone is one of the fullest of the year, including four individual events. Among these are the annual invitational at Knollwood, Butterfield's Cruise, Calumet's Play Day, and the St. Charles Fox Chase. In addition to these the Blue Island Golf association will hold its Merchants' day at Oak Hills and the Englewood Business Men's association will gather at Ridge.

Two of the best tournaments in the district will be played tomorrow when the Chicago District Golf association holds its annual Club Relations day at Oak Park, and the Knights of Columbus Golf league meets in its annual championship tournament at Elmhurst. Club Relations day brings together all of the officers and directors of member clubs of the C. D. G. A. The Knights of Columbus golfers will compete for the Fred B. Snite trophy, emblematic of the state championship. George T. O'Shea has won two legs on the big cup and just missed permanent possession of it last year when he missed a short putt on the last green. J. M. Kennedy tied O'Shea and later defeated him in the playoff.

Exmoor Jamboree Friday.

Exmoor will conduct its annual Jamboree to lead Friday's calendar, which also includes the Chicago Women's District Golf association foursome event at Medinah. The Stockyards post of the American Legion will hold forth at Cog Hill on the same day, and the Chicago Hotel Men's Golf association will play at Beverly.

On next Monday the C. D. G. A. will conduct the annual tournament for Chicago district caddies, caddymasters and their assistants, Bob o' Link being the scene of the doings. The women's intracity team matches will take place at North Shore the same day. On Monday also the 27th annual Chicago amateur championship will get under way at Jackson park, continuing through Aug. 15. Entries for this tournament should be received at the Jackson Park Golf clubrooms, 1545 East 63d street, before midnight of Friday. Monday also will be the day when the professionals of this neighborhood will battle for the seven places allotted to the district for the National P. G. A. championship. Edgewood Valley will be the scene of this qualifying play.

The calendar for Aug. 11 is featured by the opening of the western junior amateur tournament at Midlothian, which will continue through Aug. 14. More than 125 of the younger generation have entered the tournament, with Winfield Day, young Elmhurst star, heading the list. Charles K. Collins of St. Louis, winner last year, has passed the age limit and will not defend his title. Westmoreland's annual Tam o' Shanter also will be played on Aug. 11.

Camel's Trail Largest Meet.

Aug. 12 is another busy day, featuring the Medinah Camel's Trail, probably the largest invitation event in the district, and North Shore's Silver Tassel. On this day also Exmoor will hold its twelfth annual Old Boys' tournament, open to all golfers 55 years old or over affiliated with the United States and Western Golf associations.

The card for Aug. 13 sees the start of the annual Cook county amateur championship at Garfield park, which will go on through Aug. 15. The Chicago District Golf association on the same day will stage its annual team matches at Flossmoor for the Chick Evans trophy now held by Edgewood Valley.

D. R. ANTHONY OF KANSAS, 22 YRS. IN HOUSE, DEAD

Nephew of Celebrated Woman Suffragist.

Leavenworth, Kas., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Daniel Read Anthony, representative in congress from the First Kansas district from 1907 to 1929, died today at Hilltop Camp, near Leavenworth. He would have been 61 on Aug. 22.

Political proclivities of Mr. Anthony were a heritage from his aunt, Susan B. Anthony, the illustrious figure of the woman suffrage movement in America, and from his father, Col. Daniel Read Anthony, who stood among the foremost Kansas Republicans for almost half a century. This heritage kept the younger Anthony in congress for more than two decades—longer than any other Kansan ever served in the house of representatives.

"During America's participation in the world war, Representative Anthony, serving as the ranking member of the house committee on military affairs, received praise from the Democratic secretary of war, Newton D. Baker, for bringing about "the harmonious and helpful relationship between congress and the war department in carrying forward the heavy burden of war." In 1919 Mr. Anthony accompanied Secretary Baker to Europe to inspect the army of occupation in Germany and the American camps in France.

"With the advent of the Harding administration Mr. Anthony severed his connection with the house committee on military affairs to go to the appropriations committee. As a member of this committee he played an important rôle in the Harding-Coolidge economy program.

"Daniel Read Anthony was born at Leavenworth, Aug. 22, 1870. He was graduated from the University of Michigan law school in 1891, but upon returning to Leavenworth, he preferred work in his father's newspaper office to the practice of the legal profession. He succeeded to the editorship of the Leavenworth Times upon his father's death in 1904.

When Charles Curtis resigned as representative in congress from the First Kansas district in 1907 to take a senate seat, Mr. Anthony was elected to succeed him in the lower house.

Mr. Anthony married Miss Elizabeth Havens of Leavenworth in 1897. They were the parents of Daniel Read Anthony III., and Eleanor, the wife of Donald W. Sawtelle, a young officer in the regular army.

FORD PREPARING FOR SEPTEMBER OUTPUT OF 100,000

30,000 Kept on Pay This Month.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Present reduction of the Ford Motor company employment roster to 48,000 is necessitated by preparations for a September schedule of 100,000 units of an improved model A, officials of the company said today. They did not give any details of the improved model.

Not only is the reduction of employment temporary, but not less than 30,000 men will be continually employed during the current month, the officials said, with the daily pay roll approximately at $500,000.

Rumors that Ford is preparing to offer an eight cylinder car to the public were not supported by the Ford officials. On the contrary, they said that the September schedule starts off with four cylinder cars exclusively, and that there are no plans for an eight cylinder car in the immediate future.

Although many employés and automobile officials expect that a new model, reported christened "Model 10," will be announced soon after the opening of the plant, it is believed that the company is not likely to introduce the new line immediately, but that it will be placed on the market some time in the early fall.

According to reports from a reliable source, the new model will be powered with a four cylinder motor, and the body of the car will be about one foot longer. Among other changes expected is that of the gasoline tank, which may be moved from its present position underneath the cowl to some position on the chassis.

DR. MERLE PRINTZ IS SUED BY WIFE FOR SEPARATION

Dr. Merle M. Printz, former president of the Chicago Dental society, was sued for separate maintenance yesterday by his wife, Adeline, who charged cruelty in a bill filed in the Superior court. Mrs. Printz asked an injunction restraining her husband from molesting her and a writ to prevent him from fleeing the state.

In the bill, filed by Attorney Edgar O. Eakin, Mrs. Printz charged her husband with five acts of cruelty and habitual drunkenness. She charged that he threatened to beat her if she instituted divorce proceedings and declared that he would conceal his assets and leave the state. She said that she had dropped court proceedings begun in 1930 when they became reconciled.

Mrs. Printz stated that she was married on June 10, 1926, in Crown Point. She separated from her husband on May 10, when he abandoned her and their daughter, Marilyn, 4 years old. the wife charged. According to the bill Dr. Printz's income is $20,000 a year.

22 PICNICKERS DIE WHEN CROWDED BUS PLUNGES INTO RIVER

Georgetown, S. C., Aug. 4.—(AP)—With 19 bodies recovered, search was continued late today for other victims of a drawbridge tragedy here last night that claimed the lives of more than 20 persons returning from a picnic. The victims drowned when a bus carrying them ran into the draw and plunged into the Sampit river.

The death list was placed at 23 by Georgetown county authorities. All of the victims were Negroes except Warren Newton, owner of the bus, who rented it to the picnic party, and his 20 year old son, Olin.

The bridge keeper said the heavily loaded machine crashed through the protecting gates, disregarding red stop lights and into 40 feet of water.

30 Boys Hurt in Crash.

Center Sandwich, N. H., Aug. 4.—(AP)—About thirty boys were injured, two of them probably fatally, today, as an automobile truck went out of control on a steep grade, turned a somersault and plunged into a ditch.

The inventory of the estate of Jack Zuta, north side gang chief who was slain by other gangsters a year ago at Delafield, Wis., was approved yesterday by Nuncio Bonelli, assistant to Probate Judge Horner.

The assets consisted of $10,683 in personal property, of which $8,765 was an insurance policy and the remainder jewelry, clothing, and furniture, and three parcels of real estate valued at a total of $5,000. Notes of Isadore Ginsberg, the Kentucky cousin, who is the heir to the estate, amounting to $10,000, were described as worthless.

The inventory also listed "a number of notes of doubtful value, held by the state's attorney's office in a criminal investigation." Those were the Zuta papers, bearing the names of a number of politicians and policemen, which were seized by Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, in investigation of the killing.

SEEK ROBBERS AFTER $100,000 JEWEL HOLDUP

Bureau of identification records were searched in vain by Chicago detectives yesterday in an effort to trace the identity of three gunmen who robbed Julius Dreyfus, New York diamond merchant, of unset gems valued at $100,000 while he was en route by bus from Rockford to Fond du Lac, Wis., on Monday. The diamonds, the merchant told the police, were wrapped in three packets and were insured.

Dreyfus said he was ordered from the bus at Oak Grove, Wis., by two fellow passengers who suddenly drew guns and told him to get off quietly or they would kill him. They then drove him back to Des Plaines, Ill., in a car that had been following the bus and there they released him. He said he would be able to identify one of the men, but that he had only caught a glimpse of the other two before he was bound and gagged and placed in the bottom of the bandit car.

WHEAT PRICES DROP AGAIN TO RECORD LOWS

Cash Grain, Futures Yield Ground.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

New low records were again established for cash wheat and futures on the Chicago board of trade yesterday, No. 1 red winter selling as low as 69c (for shipment with permissable shipping billing or ½ below the inside figure in 1932, and it is necessary to go back to the newspaper files of October, 1852, to find a period when the price was lower. In the latter month it sold as low as 45c, while in May, 1851, it was down to 28c, the lowest figure known since Chicago became a factor in the western grain trade.

QUEEN ELIZABETH.

Lowest Since 1592.

Prevailing low prices for wheat are related in all of the leading countries of the world. Liverpool reported wheat from the Danube river offered at equal to 45½c per bu, cost, insurance, and freight paid, and, while the quality was not mentioned, an examination of the records of prices in England showed that at no time since 1931, or 339 years ago during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, was the price level near the prevailing figure for the central European grain.

Argentine farmers are equally as badly off as those in Europe, as the August delivery in Buenos Aires was quoted at 60c per bu yesterday, a figure which is regarded as equal to about 15c per bu to the producer after allowance is made for threshing and for freight charges to the ports.

All deliveries of futures sold at a new low for the season in Chicago, with the September touching 48¾c on the break, making a new all time record for that month, and came within 1c of the inside figure established on the July on the closing days of that month.

Heavy Hedging Pressure.

Hedging pressure was largely responsible for the break of 1¾c from Monday's finish, and some stop-loss orders were uncovered on the way down. Buying against bids, and later some purchases credited to spreading operations between the local and the Winnipeg and Minneapolis markets, caused a rally from the inside price with the finish ½@⅝c lower for the day. September closed at 49¾c; December, 53⅝@53½c, and May, 58¼@58c.

Winnipeg wheat prices are relatively the highest in the world, although that market closed 1⅝@1¾c lower as compared with Saturday's finish, the October delivery being quoted at 53¾c at the last, or only 3c less than the nearby future in Liverpool. Canadian cash wheat in the latter market, however, commands a premium over all other varieties, due to the excellent quality, with No. 1 northern held at 57½c in Liverpool. Those who feel that a turn in the wheat market is due at hand found some consolation in the fact that American hard winter in Liverpool was quoted at 66⅝c, or 8c per bu above the nominal asking price for August loading at gulf ports, a difference which might result in some business. The demand from abroad yesterday, however, was distinctly slow.

Corn Market Irregular.

The corn market was unsettled, with the September easy and the new crop deliveries firmer, the nearby month closing ½c lower at 52⅛@52¼c, while the deferred were ¼c higher, December finishing at 43¼@43⅜c, and May at 41⅝@41c. The local element were on the selling side of the September, but there was no material pressure on the December and May.

The decline in the September was in the face of arrivals of only 16 cars of cash corn here, while the six leading markets had only 42 cars. The demand for cash grain, however, was relatively slow. No rain of consequence was shown over the corn belt over night, but the forecast indicated the probability of showers in some sections, with lower temperatures in the northwest.

Oats at Bottom.

All deliveries of oats dropped to a new low for the season and for a number of years, the September touching 22c, a figure that has not been reached since September, 1900, when it was down to 21¼c. Hedging pressure and stop-loss selling were responsible for the early decline, while cash interests and locals were the buyers and the close was on a rally, with net losses of ¼@⅝c, September being at 25c; December, 25@25¼c, and May, 27½c.

According to a Waterloo, Ia., message to Lamson Bros., bids for No. 3 white oats there Monday night figured out equal to 6⅝c per bu at loading stations after allowing 2½c for threshing costs. Rye closed ⅛@¼c lower, largely in sympathy with wheat, the September being 34½c and December, 37½c.

Believes Commodities Have Passed Low Point for Year

Commodity prices in practically all cases have passed their lows for the next year or more, in the opinion of the Standard Statistics company of New York as set forth in a bulletin on the outlook and a suggested purchasing policy for important commodities. The bulletin continues in part:

"Commodity prices in general during the last month have registered the first definite reversal in trend since the inauguration of the abrupt decline in the early summer of 1929. The drought scare of a year ago, it is true, was of sufficient potency to force fairly marked advances in farm and food products, but did not prevent continued liquidation in other divisions of the commodity list. At the trough of the decline in June, last, average values were nearly 30 per cent below the 1929 high, and 58 per cent under the 1920 post-war peak.

Rise of Short Duration.

"The advance of prices, which was initiated with the President's moratorium plan, was of relatively short duration and meager proportions, in contrast with the preceding decline. Moreover, the subsequent partial relapse of the previously hopeful sentiment has caused them to relinquish part of their gains. At the same time movements of the last month have served to emphasize that the thorough deflation of values has made them latently sensitive to any unexpected development of a definitely constructive nature.

"Subject to specific factors governing the position of fourty-four major commodities analyzed, we have, in a broad way, based our purchase recommendations on the belief that the general trend of commodity prices will be gradually and irregularly upward during the course of the next year.

"We are led to this conclusion by indications that [1] liquidation is proceeding faster than costs are being reduced, and the average narrow profit margin is continually driving marginal producers temporarily or permanently out of business; [2] normal growth, plus deferred demand, is expanding the potential market for materials, and the incentive for satisfying these needs has not yet fully materialized, and [3] statistical measures of trade showing favorable comparisons with a year previous will become increasingly numerous during the next few months, improving the general business morale and encouraging larger commitments.

"We expect a series of moderate buying movements followed, in each instance, by lesser relapses, which will correlate with succeeding periods of hope and discouragement, but pursuing, nevertheless, a moderately upward trend."

Failures Increase.

For the third successive week in July there was an increase in the insolvency record of the United States, compiled by R. G. Dun & Co. Reaching a total of 483, the last week's exhibit was seventeen in excess of the previous week's, and fifty-five more than the number for the week ended July 16. When compared with 468 for the week ended July 31, 1930, there is a rise of 15, or 3.1 per cent.

As compared with the record of a week ago, there were fewer defaults in the south and the Pacific coast states, 88 and 54 comparing with 115 and 65, respectively. When the comparison is extended to the corresponding week of 1930, the same favorable situation exists for these two geographical divisions, the failures in the south totaling 94, or 6 more, and those in the Pacific coast states running to 74, or 20 more, than they did during the current week.

DAILY AVERAGE GROSS CRUDE OIL OUTPUT IS UP 13,700 BARRELS

New York, Aug. 4.—(AP)—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 13,700 barrels in the week ended Aug. 1, totaling 2,500,650 barrels, the American Petroleum institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California increased 33,400 barrels to 1,996,450 barrels.

Refineries representing 95.0 per cent of estimated daily capacity operated at 65.1 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,381,300 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 94.7 per cent of total operated at 69.0 per cent of capacity was 2,514,100 barrels.

Production of cracked gasoline by refineries representing 94.9 per cent of total charging capacity was 3,305,000 barrels. Production the previous week by refineries representing 94.9 per cent of total was 3,220,000 barrels.

CAR LOADINGS FOR WEEK TOTAL 741,752 CARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on July 25 totaled 741,752 cars, the car service division of the American Railway association announced today.

This was a decrease of 15,803 cars from the preceding week and a decrease of 177,549 cars from the corresponding week last year. It also was 360,801 cars under the same week two years ago.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of July 25 totaled 278,796 cars, a decrease of 7,145 cars from the preceding week this year, 76,131 cars under the corresponding week in 1930, and 149,981 cars under the same week in 1929.

Bank Reports Increase in "Movie" Employment

Employment in the California motion picture industry gained 6.4 per cent in June over that of May, although employment generally in the state was off 18 per cent in June as compared with the corresponding month last year, according to the Wells Fargo Bank and Trust company. Total pay rolls were 26 per cent less in June than in June, 1930. Paper goods, wood manufactures, food, beverages, and tobacco showed gains this year as compared with June last year. Number of laborers on farms is considerably smaller this year than last because of the low prices for agricultural products.

CHICAGO FLOATS 60 PCT. OF BOND ISSUES IN JULY

The growing importance of Chicago as a financial center, according to Lawrence Stern, head of Lawrence Stern & Co., was strikingly illustrated during the month of July, when Chicago investment bankers underwrote more than 60 per cent of all the bond issues offered in the United States.

New York bankers, says Mr. Stern, of course usually underwrite the greater part of the nation's bond offerings, but in July, according to figures compiled by the research department of Lawrence Stern & Co., New York was responsible for only 25 per cent of the total as against 60 per cent for Chicago.

"While the fact that Chicago underwriting houses have a lead of more than two to one over New York in July bond offerings is largely accidental," comments Mr. Stern, "there is no question of Chicago's growing strength as a financial center. One factor of importance in this connection is found in recent bank consolidations, which have created a strong group of Chicago banking institutions with large assets and practically unlimited underwriting capacity."

Place E. J. Brach & Sons Stock on $1 Yearly Basis

Directors of E. J. Brach & Sons, candy manufacturers, have declared two quarterly dividends of 25 cents a share each. The dividends represent a reduction from the rate of 50 cents a quarter previously paid. Edwin J. Brach, vice president and treasurer, said that up to May 1 of this year the company had shown a gain in tonnage shipped of approximately 18 per cent, compared with the like periods of 1929 and 1930 and a gain in dollar sales of about 5 per cent. Net profits up to that date had been almost on a par with the preceding year. During May and June both volume and profits fell sharply, due largely, in the opinion of officials of the company, to the heat wave.

Reports Buick Gains All Over Nation During June

Commenting on June passenger automobile registrations, C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor company, said that gains cover every section of the country. "This is one of the encouraging features of the June report," he added, "not alone for the automobile industry, but for business generally." He said that Buick in June registered 8,686 cars, compared with 8,550 in the like month last year.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 4.—(AP)—The Wabash Railway company announced today its car loadings totaled 68,203 this July, compared with 74,722 in July, 1930.

COTTON DELEGATES ASK PRODUCTION BE CURTAILED BY LAW

Austin, Tex., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Most of the delegates to the southwide cotton conference here today asked cotton states to curtail their production by law. They coupled with this a request that the south leave no stone unturned in increasing the use of its chief crop.

ROSS S. STERLING.

The conference was called by Gov. Ross S. Sterling of Texas, in which state a bill has been introduced in the legislature, meeting in special session, to prevent the planting of land in cotton two years in succession. Conferees asked that Texas, the largest cotton producing state, take the lead by enacting this law and asserted they believed other states would follow.

T. Arthur Edwards of Lake Charles, the Louisiana governor's representative, suggested a campaign advertising the possible uses of cotton. He said the farmer could afford to advertise a product as valuable as cotton if manufacturers found it profitable to advertise commodities worth 5 cents or 10 cents. Edwards told of a railroad substituting cotton table cloths for linen cloths in its diners as an example of what might be accomplished.

Dr. H. L. Kent, president of New Mexico agricultural college, said cement manufacturers were using paper bags in their shipments whereas they could just as easily use cotton bags and at no additional expense to the consumer. Dr. Kent stated that the south must look more and more to the American market for disposal of its crop.

C. O. Moser of New Orleans, vice president of the American Cotton Cooperative association, asserted that "everywhere agriculture has touched industry, agriculture has been the sufferer." He stated that was because industry was organized and agriculture was not.

EXPORT COPPER PRICE REDUCED TO EIGHT CENTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 4.—Copper Exporters, Inc., the export association of copper mining companies, today reduced the price of the red metal ¼ of a cent a pound to 8 cents delivered in London, Hamburg, and Havre. That is a new low record for the export trade. The reduction resulted in automatically reducing the official price for the domestic market to 7¾ cents a pound. Actually copper has sold at 7½ cents a pound this week. The official price is the price at which the major producers are holding copper, while the actual market is the price at which copper mined by small companies is available at smelters.

Raw Steel Production at Youngstown Drops

Production of raw steel in the Youngstown district is now at a rate of 33 per cent of capacity compared with 42 per cent at the beginning of the week. Republic Steel corporation has suspended melting operations in its open hearth furnaces. Activity at some tin plate mills has improved, however.

Recommends I. C. C. Reject Merger of Three Railroads

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—(AP)—Holding that unification of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, the Detroit and Ironton, and the Toledo-Detroit Railroads would, in effect, recognize legality of their control by the Pennroad corporation and the Pennsylvania railroad, Examiner A. C. Devoe today recommended that the interstate commerce commission withhold its approval of the plan.

The Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, which filed the application for unification of the three roads, owns all of the capital stock of the Toledo-Detroit, while the Pennroad corporation owns all of the stock of the Detroit and Ironton and certificates representing its first mortgage bonds.

The Pennroad corporation also owns all of the adjustment mortgage bonds of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton and all except four shares of its preferred stock and six shares of its common stock.

Agree to Reorganization.

On Nov. 1, 1930, the Detroit and Ironton, the Toledo-Detroit and the Pennroad corporation agreed to a reorganization for the purpose of bringing the various roads under ownership of a single corporation. The Pennroad corporation was to exchange its holdings of the securities of the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton and the Detroit and Ironton for new securities of the consolidated lines dollar for dollar.

The examiner recalled that the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, under the commission's consolidation plan, was assigned to the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate system.

After reviewing methods of organization and operation of the Penn-Road corporation he said:

"From the record it is clear that the Pennroad is merely an agency of the Pennsylvania, that as such agency it has acquired control of the applicant, the Detroit and Ironton and the Toledo-Detroit and that for all practical purposes the Pennsylvania through this agency now controls the three companies.

Lawfulness of Control.

"The commission, in effect, is asked to recognize the lawfulness of this control by authorizing the applicant to issue its stock and bonds, all of which, with the exception of four shares of stock, would be delivered to the Pennroad.

"Provision for acquisition by one carrier of control of another under lease or by purchase of stock or in any other manner not involving consolidation of such carriers into a single system for ownership and operation is made under section five of the interstate commerce act, and provision for consolidation of two or more carriers into a single system for ownership, management and operation of properties theretofore under separate ownership, management and operation, when such consolidation is in harmony with the commission's plan of consolidation, is made in section five, article six of the act.

"The commission has prescribed the procedure to be followed under these provisions. Control of the applicant and its affiliated companies was not effected pursuant to either of these provisions."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 4.—The Chevrolet Motor company reports July production of cars and trucks totaled 66,307 units in comparison with 84,597 units in June and 58,690 units in July, 1930.

July is the third successive month in 1931 to show a gain for Chevrolet over the corresponding month last year. The output for July brings the total for the first seven months to 588,452 cars and trucks. Chevrolet is continuing production into August at a seasonal rate and no summer shutdown is planned. Current employment is around 33,000 men.

The Chrysler corporation reports that registration of the new Plymouth exceeded all other makes of cars in Wayne County, Mich., during the month of July. This is the first time in recent years, the corporation states, that retail sales of any automobile in the Detroit area have surpassed the sales of either Fords or Chevrolets in this county, which is recognized as the capital of the motor world. July registration figures compiled by the state license bureau show that sales of Plymouths totaled 1,249 in comparison with 1,063 Fords and 850 Chevrolets. The Plymouth figures are for a little more than three weeks, inasmuch as the new car was not announced until July 6.

Says Wise Farm Investor Buys During Depression

"The wise farm investor buys during a depressed period," said Renick W. Dunlap, assistant secretary of agriculture, who was in Chicago for a few hours yesterday en route for St. Paul. While here he had an opportunity to witness the making of the lowest prices of wheat on record and of oats the lowest known in many years on the Board of Trade. "During the last ten years, particularly during the last decade," said Mr. Dunlap, "farm values in many localities have dropped to such a low point that there are now numerous bargains, even when figured on the basis of current returns, these returns based on prevailing low prices of farm products."

Stinson Aircraft Reports 70 Pct. Sales Increase

The Stinson Aircraft corporation delivered $979,000 worth of planes in the first five months of 1931, or 20.2 per cent of all the commercial airplanes delivered in the United States in that period, according to W. A. Mara, vice president of the firm. Total dollar volume of planes produced by the approximately 60 commercial airplane manufacturers for the period was $4,897,725, according to official figures released by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. Stinson's volume of $979,000 is a 70 per cent increase for the company over the corresponding period last year. The $4,897,725 total for the commercial manufacturers this year compares with $9,050,726 for the corresponding period in 1930.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 4.—Rumors for some time of a shipping merger involving vessels plying between Australia and Canada were confirmed here today when E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific railway, announced that a new company had been formed to take over the liners Aorangi and Niagara of the Canadian and Australian Royal Mail line, operating between Vancouver and Australia and New Zealand. The new company, which will be known as Canadian Australasian Lines, Limited, will be jointly owned and operated by the Canadian Pacific and the Union Steamship company of New Zealand.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 4.—Outside of unusual weakness in the railroad shares, today's stock market was a spineless affair, with little certainty of price movement anywhere. Trading was insufferably dull, the total falling a good 100,000 shares below that of yesterday, even.

Such tidbits of news as developed had little effect on sentiment either way. Most of them were too far from Wall street to count. The news included runs on Mexican banks growing out of the bizarre monetary changes recently put into effect below the Rio Grande, for instance; the reopening of the German banks and the continued log rolling of the great and the near great in the diplomatic field over the muddled European economic situation.

Oils Are Blasé.

The reduction of the price of export copper to 8 cents a pound might have had some influence on the red metal shares in a normal market, but it didn't get a tumble today. The oils were just as blasé to the announcement of an increase in oil production due to a rise in the east Texas flow and a rush to produce in Oklahoma as a precaution against forcible shutdowns.

Finally there were some rather poor earnings statements for the trade to gulp down, but it isn't of record that a single share was sold on their account.

As everybody knows, the market has been in the hands of professional traders for weeks now, and with the weather what it is and the public salting its increment away in the old sock for the coming winter, this hard boiled gentry is obviously not disposed to work up an expensive excitement over small time happenings in the outside world. Wall street has been hearing for some time that they—the bulls and the bears—have declared a truce for the time being and each day's dull doings serve to lend additional credence to that much scoffed at report.

Renewed weakness in the railroad shares was instrumental in lowering

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 4.—Chicago and Alton Railroad common and preferred stocks came to the end of their time on the stock exchange list today as a result of the action of the exchange in striking them from the list. Their obituaries mark the passing of two rail issues which for a quarter of a century have been fairly prominent members of the rail group.

Their removal from the list follows the sale of the Chicago and Alton to the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, this involving the creation of a new corporation—the Alton Railroad company—which has acquired the properties and assets of the old company.

The history of the Alton issues on the stock exchange has been featured by numerous active speculative movements, particularly in the early years of the century when E. H. Harriman had plans for making the Alton a link in a transcontinental system which he conceived, but which he was prevented by death from carrying into reality.

Hogs scored a 10@25c advance on an active market yesterday, all classes sharing in the upturn, although most competition centered on top light and underweights which suffered most on the break late last week. Fully half of the loss has been regained and closin., sales yesterday were made at the highest prices of the day. Quality of light weights is poorest of the season and several fairly large eastern orders were "short" at the close due to the acute scarcity of choice grades of hogs averaging 225 lbs., and less.

Underweights and pigs that slumped 50c to $1.00 late last week are selling 50@75c above the low spot. The extreme top advanced to $7.95, persistent rumors of sales at $8.00 failing to materialize. The general average gained 15c at $6.55. Although medium and weighty hogs shared in the advance yesterday, there is a tendency to spread out the range of prices again, due to the narrow outlet for big cuts. Packers are willing buyers of lighter weight hogs that can be moved immediately into consumption, but are determined to store away as little product as possible for the next few weeks. Outlet for light loins continues good and the trade expects top hogs to recover all of the recent loss. The upturn was general at most markets and reports from the east indicate a shortage of top kinds.

Today's Hogs Bid $8.00.

Light weight hogs for today's delivery were bid $8.00 on the "to arrive" market yesterday. Contracts for the first half of this month also carried bids of $8.00, but there were no offers to sell at that figure. September mediums were offered as low as $7.85 and October mediums were offered at $7.50. December mediums were offered at $6.75 and heavy for the same month at $6.90. September heavy offers were at $8.00.

The trend of prices in the cattle yards was reversed abruptly late yesterday, some late bids and sales showing losses of as much as 25c after a steady to strong opening. Early sales were in line with the high point of the season established Monday, but competition at opening prices were lacking. Most buyers held back until late in hopes of shaving quotations. Some bought conservatively in view of the larger supply in sight at Chicago for today.

However, expected decreases at other points more than offsets the increase here. Sales above $8.50 were not as numerous yesterday and only a few lots of yearlings passed the $9.00 line. Two loads averaging 944@1,003 lbs., topped the list at $9.40. Grassy cattle ruled weak to 25c lower. Butcher stock sold steady to 25c lower, cows and heifers having a "grassy" appearance showing most weakness. Calves opened strong to higher, but finished in a slump. Stockers and feeders were weak.

Lamb Sorting Drastic.

Sorting of lambs lately has been the hardest of the season and the general market shows a sharper decline than that indicated by top quotations. Hundreds of native culls are being rejected from load lots and sold at $4.00, while only the best selections are selling at $7.25@7.75. Packers complain that the unfinished lamb is hard to dispose of on the wholesale market and any thing lacking quality must be moved immediately, sometimes at a loss to the packer.

Plain quality stock always suffers most on the breaks and sorting is usually heavier when prices are headed downward. Aged sheep and yearlings were quoted steady. Feeding lambs met better demand, but prices are 25@50c under the high point of last week. Good western feeders are bringing $5.00@5.50, while occasional lots of culls natives go countryward at $4.00@4.50.
